Hospital Expands Medical Staff

Patricia Gotsch, M.D.

Sotiere Savopoulos, M.D.

David Tuel, M.D.

In its continuing effort to increase the services available to area residents, Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently added three physicians to its medical staff.

Patricia Gotsch, M.D., a native of Baltimore, is in practice with the Garrett Medical Group where she provides family medicine and obstetrical services. Dr. Gotsch is a graduate of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine located in Baltimore. She then went on to complete her internship and residency at Hinsdale Hospital in Hinsdale, Ill.

Gotsch is board certified in family practice and resides in Mountain Lake Park with her husband, Ken and two children.

In addition to providing family medicine and obstetrical services at Garrett Memorial, Sotiere Savopoulos, M.D., serves as the physician for the Terra Alta Family Practice Center in Terra Alta, W.Va. Originally from New Castle, Delaware, Dr. Savopoulos is a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College located in Philadelphia. He completed a family practice residency and family practice obstetrical fellowship at Franklin Square Hospital in Baltimore.

"I believe in a holistic practice of medicine -- meaning that each individual has physical, emotional, spiritual and social needs and that these must all be considered to care for the patient effectively," stated Savopoulos. "Overall, this provides better care for the individual and his or her family."

Savopoulos resides in the local area with his wife, Susan and two children.

David Tuel, M.D. Oakland, is an orthopedic surgeon with Garrett County Orthopedics. A West Virginia native, Dr. Tuel graduated from the West Virginia University Medical School and completed his internship and residency at West Virginia University Hospital. In addition to the services he provides for Garrett Memorial and Garrett County Orthopedics, Tuel works regularly with athletes from Frostburg State University and Garrett Community College. He also conducts a Saturday morning acute orthopedic sports injury clinic for area junior and senior high athletes during the football season.

"Garrett Memorial's physicians provide a wide range of medical care that meets the ever-changing needs of the people of Garrett and the surrounding West Virginia counties," stated Benjamin Rosenthal, GCMH president. "Our medical staff is a very professional and talented team, providing the best medical care available to our area residents."

Area Boy Scouts Present Annual Show At Mall

Hundreds of Tiger, Cub, Boy Scouts and Explorers descended on the Country Club Mall in LaVale Sunday, February 26, for the ninth annual Potomac Council Scout Show. Youth, leaders and gear of some 35 units were on display, all with the 1994 theme, "Character Counts, Be Prepared for the 21st Century."

"Scouting has historically endeavored to reach young people, guiding them toward good citizenship, sound character and moral and physical strength," stated Council President Ben Elkins. "We think that's all the more important now. And as we enter the next century, we look forward to helping youth take full advantage of opportunities ahead. Scouting has an illustrious past and exciting future, as these young people and their leaders are demonstrating."

The Scouts were in the spirit of this year's theme, with Troop 4, Cumberland, presenting an exhibit of future camping on the moon as a part of their "Scouting in the Future" display. Troop 70, Mt. Lake Park, had a display titled "Taking the Right Bridge to Success," and Pack 10, LaVale, examined "Box Hockey Building Character Today."

Several thousand spectators were on hand to learn the latest in Scouting and to enjoy inspecting and trying out the many activities the units provided. Garrett County units participating in the 1994 Scout Show were Troop 82, Accident; Troop and Pack 49, Grantsville; Troop 70, Mountain Lake Park; Troop 22 and Pack 70, Oakland.

As in years past, Scouters and boys were "locked up" in the Council jail and bailed out by friends, raising funds for Camp Potomac and the summer "campership" program which helps youth who otherwise would not be able to attend camp.

For information on Scouting in the tri-state area, persons may call the Scout Service Center at 301 729-1300.

Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, serves the youth of Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland and Mineral, Hampshire, Hardy and Grant counties in West Virginia. Potomac Council is a participating United Way Agency.

Gov. Schaefer Proclaims March Nutrition Month

Governor William Donald Schaefer and Rosalie S. Abrams, director of the Maryland Office on Aging, have announced that special education and nutritional screening activities have been planned throughout the state of Maryland, to promote the importance of nutrition in maintaining the health and well-being of all citizens -- particularly the elderly.

In support of National Nutrition Month, Governor Schaefer has proclaimed the month of March "Nutrition Month" in Maryland. "Proper nutrition is essential for everyone," he said. "I encourage our older citizens, their families, and the caregivers of the frail elderly, to take this opportunity to learn as much as possible about how to preserve their health and well-being through healthy eating."

"New knowledge has become available that provides greater insights about the nutrition requirements of older adults," said Abrams. "The local Area Agencies on Aging are to be commended for developing programs that will provide the knowledge necessary to make appropriate decisions regarding the specific food and nutrition needs of older people."

In Garrett County, Nutrition Month will be observed with an "Eat for Good Health" Day, March 28, at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland, and again on March 29 at the Flowery Vale Senior Center in Accident. Extra Senior Nutrition Program meals will be served on these days, and the same meal will also be sent to home-delivered meal clients.

Persons interested in participating in Nutrition Month activities may contact the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging at 334-9431, ext. 137.

Dollars From Woodlots Evening Workshop Slated

With prices for timber at record highs, many woodland owners may be considering marketing some of their forest products or may have been approached by buyers. Because the selling of timber is an infrequent experience for most woodland owners, there is much to consider before making an informed decision to assure profitability and good forest stewardship practices are followed, according to a Maryland Cooperative Extension Service spokesman.

On Tuesday, March 15, from 7 to 9 p.m. a program titled "Dollars From Woodlots" will be offered by the Extension Service. The workshop will take place in the Allegany County Commissioners' Meeting Room at the Kelly Building, 701 Kelly Road, Cumberland.

The workshop will start with a short overview of the history of Maryland forests and forest management. This will be followed by a discussion of the Maryland forest stewardship program and the opportunities for woodland owners to take advantage of management planning assistance provided by public and private foresters. Cost share assistance programs that pay up to 65% of the cost of developing a forest stewardship plan and implementing management practices for wildlife, fisheries, forestry and more will be discussed. The final session of the workshop will discuss the nuts and bolts of marketing forest products. Answers to the following questions and more will be discussed: What is the value of using a professional forester? What is competitive bidding? What should be in a sale contract?

The marketing of forest products should be the part of a long-term stewardship plan, involve a professional forester, and be in writing. How all this is accomplished will be the focus of this evening workshop.

There is no charge for the workshop, but pre-registration is required. For more information and registration, persons may contact Ted Sprangel at the Allegany County Extension Office, 701 Kelly Road, Suite 143, Cumberland, MD 21502; or call (301) 724-3320.

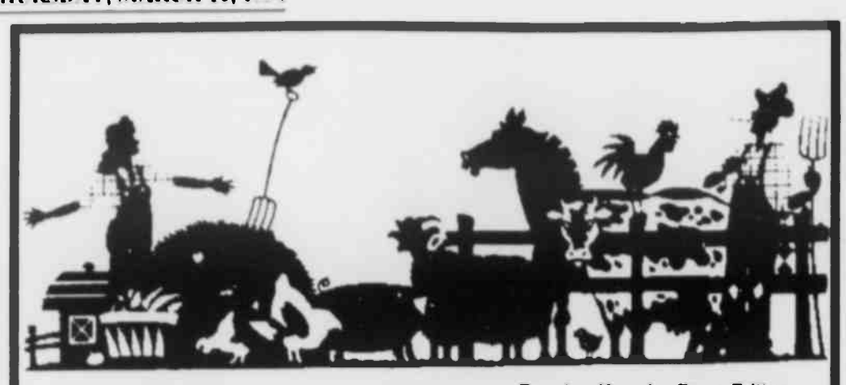
USDA Announces Crop Insurance Reform Proposal

The American Farm Bureau Federation recently expressed concerns with certain provisions of the Agriculture Department's federal crop insurance proposal. The farm organization voiced objection to a provision that would "link" mandatory purchase of federal crop insurance with participation in other USDA program areas.

Hyde Murray, a director of governmental relations in the AFBF's Washington, D.C. office, said although the plan offers benefits to American farmers, Farm Bureau stands in strict opposition to any requirement that would make the purchase of crop insurance a prerequisite to agriculture program participation.

The USDA plan, which requires congressional approval, would compel farmers to purchase the minimum amount of federal insurance on eligible crops to qualify for Farmer's Home Administration loans and to be eligible for commodity price support programs. Linkage is a critical component of the USDA's reform proposal.



"We think programs, if they are good, should stand on their own merit and farmers should be allowed to use their own common sense to decide if it is a good bargain," Murray said. "Farmers shouldn't be forced to cross-comply and have more restrictions put on obtaining loans. There is already enough complexity and difficulty now, without adding another layer of conditions."

Under the USDA proposal, ad hoc disaster bills -- created in response to federally declared disasters and similar to legislation enacted to aid victims of last year's midwest floods -- would be replaced by federal crop insurance. The crop insurance program would become the primary mechanism for a federal response to emergencies involving widespread crop loss and would put in place parliamentary "hurdles" that would make it more difficult for Congress to pass future disaster relief bills.

The proposed legislation would enlarge the current federal crop insurance program by offering new basic catastrophic coverage as a standard feature of all crop insurance policies and would insure a greater number of American farmers.

"The current crop insurance program has not had widespread participation," Murray said. "The USDA proposal is a constructive effort to try to address the crop insurance problem and an attempt to merge the crop insurance and disaster assistance programs."

The Crop Insurance Reform Act of 1994 would require participating farmers to pay a $50 "processing fee" per crop, per county, with a cap of $100 per farmer imposed for crop insurance participation. This fee structure would provide farmers with coverage that would pay benefits on a combination of 50 percent of average yield and 60 percent of the price to those holding affected commodities. The plan also contains provisions and incentives for an insurance "buy-up" that would enable individual farmers to increase their coverage with supplemental private insurance.

Farming In Maryland.....

Maryland Milk Commission Bill Drafted

A bill has been drafted and readied for the House of Delegates which would create a state milk commission. The bill (H.B. 1411), if enacted in its draft form, would create a commission with six members appointed by the governor, two of whom would be dairymen. The other four members would include representatives of the processing industry and three consumers. The commissioners would serve four-year terms, a maximum of two consecutive terms. The governor also would appoint an administrator of the commission.

Responsibilities of the milk commission, as defined by the proposed legislation, would include the investigation of "all matters pertaining to the processing, storage, transportation, distribution and sale of milk in the state." The commission would be empowered to examine the business, books and records of producers and distributors of milk.

After a public hearing, the commission would have the authority to set minimum prices to be paid dairymen in the state. The commission also would establish minimum wholesale prices. The commission would license milk processors. Without the license, a processor would not be allowed to operate within milk markets defined by the commission.

Any person found guilty of violating regulations established by the milk commission, would be subject to a fine of $500 or one year in prison, or both. Violations would be classified as misdemeanors.

The milk commission bill results from a proposal by the Maryland Dairy Task Force to ensure that processors in the state don't circumvent a premium -- about 80 cents a hundredweight -- on Class I fluid milk, designed to help financially stabilize dairy operations in the state. Called an over-order premium, the additional payment was established by the Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Association made up of the area's dairy co-ops.

Currently, according to co-op officials, milk can come into the state at a price less than that paid Maryland dairymen. The milk commission proposal received overwhelming support from dairymen who attended a series of Maryland Farm Bureau informational meetings on the idea. At their convention, Farm Bureau delegates underlined their support for the milk commission in a resolution.

Delegate James E. McClellan, head of the Frederick County delegation, is the bill's primary sponsor, with Delegate George Edwards a co-sponsor. McClellan stated that the bill has "at least" 20 delegates supporting it. Those supporters include the delegations from Frederick, Carroll and Harford counties -- major milk areas of the state.

Opponents of the commission proposal have included processors like the grocery store chain Giant.

The state ag department had not thrown its weight behind the proposal until late in December after Secretary of Agriculture Robert Walker met with dairy officials from Virginia and Pennsylvania. Those officials essentially told Walker that the milk commissions in their states had worked and at no additional cost to consumers.

In the legislature, the battle for proponents of the milk commission will be to convince lawmakers that by ensuring a minimum price for milk to dairymen, the state's milk consumers won't have to pay much more. And because the commission would be a new government agency, there could be some resistance in an election year full of calls for lessening government's costs and reach.

McClellan, a veterinarian who is a prominent member of the farming community in Frederick County, is a powerful member of the House of Delegates, serving as vice chairman of the appropriations committee. McClellan has been a member of the legislature since 1979, and his leadership on the bill is considered a boost for the proposed milk commission. McClellan, however, said he could not guess at the bill's likelihood of passage. But, optimistically he pointed out, "Everybody I've talked too has asked to go on it."

McClellan said the milk commission bill most likely will be assigned to the environmental matters committee. According to Lew Riley, deputy secretary of agriculture, the environmental matters committee deals with many ag issues. Riley said, perhaps, the strongest argument for creation of a milk commission is that it "levels the playing field" between Maryland and neighboring milk-producing states. The complexity of the issue will be a hindrance to quick passage of the milk commission bill. Riley said, however, that there is a sincere desire among many legislators to help dairy farmers.

Brochure Now Available On Md. Seafood

Seafood of the highest quality is produced by Maryland seafood harvesters, processors, distributors and retailers who take great pride in their products, says a representative of the Maryland Department of Agriculture. They are licensed and inspected by state agencies, local health departments and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to further ensure their product's wholesomeness.

In addition, new regulations announced recently by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration will further enhance the already in place safeguards. These seafood safety regulations are based on the principles of the system known as Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point (HACCP).

The system calls for a science-based analysis of potential hazards, determination of where hazards can occur in processing, and institution of preventative measures to prevent problems and corrective actions if they do occur.

These new regulations, along with the already existing safeguards, should make purchasers of Maryland seafood feel confident that it is safe and wholesome.

For a free brochure describing the Maryland State agencies' various roles in safeguarding Maryland seafood, please send a legal size, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: "It's as Good as it Looks", Maryland Seafood Marketing, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Balanced Budget Amendment Falls Short In Senate

The Farm Bureau-supported balanced budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution fell just four votes short of the two-thirds majority needed for passage.

It was defeated in the Senate by a vote of 63 to 37. Attention now turns to the House, where a floor vote is expected on the amendment in mid-March.

"We are disappointed in the Senate's lack of response to the will of its constituents in this matter," said American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner. The government needs to begin to rein in out-of-control federal spending and this amendment would have been a first step."

Farm Bureau backed a proposal forwarded by Sens. Paul Simon (D-Ill.) and Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) that would have mandated a three-fifths majority vote of Congress to increase the federal debt or increase federal spending levels above the government's revenue base. The Simon-Hatch amendment would have mandated spending controls across all federal levels, rather than targeting the most vulnerable programs, including agriculture.

Kleckner applauded the senators who supported the amendment.

"The balanced budget amendment presented a rare opportunity for the Senate to send a message to the voters and tell them that they are truly concerned about this nation's spending habits," he said. "This measure would have put some much-needed discipline into the system."

Although Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell (D-Maine) has said he will not bring up the amendment in the Senate again this year, a strong vote in the House and an outpouring of public support for the amendment could result in another Senate vote, according to Grace Ellen Rice, deputy executive director of AFBF's Washington office.

A weaker constitutional amendment, sponsored by Sen. Harry Reid (D-Nev.) and opposed by Farm Bureau, also was defeated. The Reid proposal was designed to give political cover to senators who opposed the Simon-Hatch amendment. The Reid amendment would have exempted Social Security, the government's largest entitlement program, from the restraint required of other spending areas.

The House companion to the Simon-Hatch proposal (H.Res.103) is sponsored by Reps. Charles Stenholm (D-Texas) and Bob Smith (R-Ore.) Kleckner said Farm Bureau will continue to push for passage of the amendment when it comes up for a vote in the House.

Maryland Cattle Inventory Declines

The inventory of cattle and calves in Maryland on January 1 numbered 315,000 head, a decline of three percent (10,000 head) from the inventory of 325,000 head a year earlier. Declines occurred among the dairy type classes including milk cows (down four percent, 4,000 head) and heifers for milk cow replacement (down two percent, 1,000 head) as well as steers weighing 500 pounds or more (down 19 percent, 6,000 head).

Classes of animals with increases from a year earlier were mostly for meat production; beef cows, heifers for beef cow replacement and other heifers. The calf crop in Maryland during 1993 numbered 127,000 for a decline of 1,000 head (one percent) from the previous year. The number of agricultural operations with cattle continued to trend down. All cattle and calves in the United States as of January 1 totaled 101.7 million head, one percent above the revised 100.6 million on January 1, 1993 and two percent above the 99.6 million two years ago. The number of beef animals continued to increase and the dairy animals continued down. The 1993 calf crop in the United States was estimated at 39.6 million, up one percent from 1992 and two percent from 1991.

Maryland Honey Production Up 37 Percent

Maryland honey production during 1993 from producers with five or more colonies totaled 189,000 pounds; up 37 percent from the previous year. The number of colonies, at 7,000, increased by 1,000 and the yield per colony, at 27 pounds was four pounds higher than the 1992 numbers. The average price of a pound of honey in Maryland reached $1.42. Much of the honey produced in Maryland is marketed retail. The value of the 1993 production was $268,000; a 96 percent increase from 1992 because of the higher production and price.

A Special Thank You

We would like to give a very special thank you to the entire staff at Garrett Co. Memorial Hospital. Through the years, Goldie Phillips became one of your well known patients. We thank you for your love and consideration to her. From the admitting desk to the third floor, each and everyone of you, a very special thank you.

Also, to all the doctors who gave hope, and added years to Goldie's life. To each and everyone of you, we thank you.

On many occasions, she arrived to the hospital by the Garrett Co. Rescue Squad. We thank you for the many trips and rescues.

To the individual clergymen who took time to visit and lift prayers with Goldie. She appreciated this so much as well as her family.

To the Health Department for their outstanding services, which were many, for becoming personal friends with Goldie, a special bond always felt in her home, we thank you so much.

To each and everyone at the Fairview Church of the Brethren, thank you for the wonderful meal you prepared for the family and friends. It was to us a reminder of the last supper. Again thanks.

To the community for the many years of friendship, thank you for all you have done and for the many dishes of food brought to our home as well as the many beautiful flowers that were sent in her memory.

We, the family of Goldie, are yet forever indebted to God. He blessed us with so many wonderful memories. Glory be to God.

We hope we didn't forget to mention anyone for the things done for Goldie.

Thanks

In Loving Memory of Goldie Pearl Phillips

I would like to tell you what a wonderful person my Grandma was.

She was a plain, old-fashioned, soft-spoken, country woman. She stood for virtue and righteousness. She was a friend to all she met. She was the greatest historian that I had ever known.

She was a philosopher and so full of wisdom. Love and compassion filled her every move. If you never knew her, then you lost so much more than I did when she went on to be in heaven.

She taught so many about the value of living. Her endurance and strength came from her heart. Her expression could tell a story. Her abilities were never limited. She was a therapist of comfort. When you were with her you became blessed. But the greatest thing I knew of her was her faith. She placed every day in the hands of God. Everyday was a daily walk with Him. She never lost her faith in the times of trials and tribulations that life presented her.

In all the stories of great people, none could compare to her. She brought such great honor to our whole family. She relied on her memory to tell stories of years gone by and always captivate your attention. Dates and times were always exact, even at her age of 97. She had such a unique way of putting things in perspective. She could tell stories and actually make you feel you were there, even if it was before your time. She was witty and charming. Often a shelter where you felt protected just being in her presence. You may think that I'm putting her on "cloud nine," but she is much further up than that today. How I wish I could have been with her when she finished life's marathon. I don't mean when she drew her last breath. I mean to have seen her face when God welcomed her home. She was so worthy of Heaven and all the preparations God has made for her.

I knew her since birth and for 35 years I knew her as Grandma. When Pappy passed away, she came to live with my mom and dad. She shared my bedroom with me. It was for the next 20 years I became acquainted with Goldie Pearl. With all the respect a grandma has, was added the respect of an honest friend. Greater still was added a love that was uncompared to any I've ever experienced. I have read from the Bible of such great love. Being with Nan was like a solitude, sometimes a selfish love that you didn't want to share with anyone. The reward just seemed so much greater. But she was never selfish with her love. I wasn't the only one who felt so touched by her love. My five brothers, their wives and my husband experienced this same compassion.

She did her daily living in the home of Mom & Dad, a part of daily routine and activities. Our children, her great-grandchildren, as well loved her so dearly. She not only rocked us to sleep and sang to us, but she did our children, too. It is such an empty feeling to walk m and not see her. There is no one there to place a kiss on her cheek. We shed our tears because of her absence in body, but her spirit that is in our hearts warms us and brings a smile to our faces.

We have never suffered so, as we did in the last days when she was ill. We prayed that she wouldn't suffer, if it be His will to take her home. And that is where she is today. While we were at the cemetery, one of Nan's great-great-grandchildren was standing close to the casket. She said, "Mommy, are we gonna bury the 'treasure' now?" Little did she know of the great, great truth she had spoken. If you knew our grandma, then you share in our loss. And if you knew Goldie Pearl Phillips, you know how blessed we were to have shared our lives with her.

Senators Clash Over Ethanol's RFG Role

A group of 47 U.S. senators expressed their concern about ethanol's prominent role in the reformulated gasoline (RFG) program, triggering a strong reaction from midwestern ethanol supporters in the Senate. Farm Bureau supports the use of ethanol in the RFG program.

In a letter, the 47 senators, led by Sens . Bill Bradley (D-N.J.) and Malcolm Wallop (R-Wyo.) told Environmental Protection Agency Chief Carol Browner that the RFG program, which was finalized in December 1993, should be withdrawn. The senators said EPA's choice of ethanol as the primary fuel oxygenate in the RFG program was "troubling and inappropriate."

Bradley, Wallop and other senators cited market upheaval, product delivery problems and ethanol industry subsidies as the primary reasons for their objections to the proposed rule. The senators are concerned that the choice of ethanol for the primary fuel additive in the RFG will cause other gasoline additive industries to suffer.

"We are extremely concerned that, if adopted, this rule would create serious disruptions in the supply, distribution and marketing system for RFG in the United States," the Bradley-Wallop group said. "Significant plans and investments have been made in reliance on a fuel-neutral RFG rule. This last minute attempt to promote a particular additive will wreak havoc on preparation for the orderly introduction of RFG into the marketplace and increase the cost to consumers."

Sens. Tom Daschle (D-S.D.), Tom Harkin (D-Iowa) and Paul Wellstone (D-Minn.) refuted the claims made by the Bradley-Wallop group. The midwestern senators support ethanol's use in the RFG because of its benefits to the farm economy and the environment. It also would decrease dependence on foreign oil.

"This is a fight between renewable energy and our age-old dependence on imported fossil fuels. There are differences of opinion, but there should be no difference on the facts," Daschle, Harkin and Wellstone said in a joint statement. "Without the requirement (EPA's choice of ethanol), the market will choose a different winner--meaning continued reliance on imported fossil fuels."

Harkin said the Bradley-Wallop letter was off target in its criticisms of ethanol and EPA's decision to include it in the RFG program.

U.S. Sheep Herd Reduced In '94

Lamb prices in 1994 could average close to $70 per hundredweight in the second quarter because of a nearly 10 percent decline in the number of breeding ewes. With the phaseout of the wool and mohair program, more sheep producers may leave the business. According to USDA's inventory, the number of ewes one year and older dropped to 5.8 million, down from 6.4 million a year earlier. The Livestock Marketing Information Center said lamb prices this spring could be $8 to $10 above a year ago.

Take Advantage Of Natures Nitrogen

There is a lot of nitrogen in the soil that many times we forget about. Maybe we don't forget about it, but we just don't feel comfortable on relying on the natural occurring nitrogen being available. As we accumulate more research information, I personally believe that we can trust some of the things we hear and read about nitrogen. When rotating your corn into a field that previously had legume crops, use the following information as a guideline for estimating nitrogen availability: Alfalfa (75 percent stand), 100 lb/acre; Alfalfa (50 percent stand), 75 lb/acre; Alfalfa (25 percent stand), 50 lb/acre; Ladino Clover, 60 lb/acre; Red Clover, 40 lb/acre; Birdsfoot Trefoil, 40 lb/acre; Lespedeza, 20 lb/acre. During the past three years by using the Nitrogen Quick Test we have found that even old grass sod residue will supply some nitrogen.

When Spring Arrives!

When spring does finally arrive I would expect "mother nature" to move in fast gear. Why? Snow cover had been abundant this winter serving as a good insulator. In fact, Bill Knepp has been pulling soil samples all winter. With the ground relatively free of frost plant dormancy will break faster. This means you are going to have to keep close track on the alfalfa fields if you anticipate a winter annual weed problem. Some of the common herbicides used on winter annuals such as Gramoxone, Buctril, Butyrac, Kerb, Karmex, Lexone and Sinbar must be applied before the alfalfa breaks dormancy.

Do You Know The Truth?

In any given situation we sometimes purposely circumvent the truth for any number of reasons. Well, perhaps we should all work toward a better character and, frankly, honesty that is so often missing.

When looking at a long-range project, any person with slight perception will view all aspects of the project, especially the experience of prior projects similar to the one being undertaken.

How about your long-range future? Do you really want to know the truth? Do you really, or do you look at life and say "there is no purpose?" Be truthful now. Don't you sometimes think it?

Well, there is a purpose and meaning and very specific plan for each of us and it is missed by many, and rejected by others.

The question is, why is it rejected once found?

Likely, because we don't want to believe it? May I propose a method, to be viewed by you, at no cost, but which offers a future that is better than any retirement plan you could dream up given a lifetime.

It is simple, but you have to read a little. Where? The best history book ever written: the Bible. really, just look at a few verses (I promise it won't hurt you).

To start with, read verse 6 of Chapter 14 of the book of John.

Now most of you have gone to church at one time or another and heard this verse, but has the minister or priest ever really explained the verse?

It savs (Jesus is speaking), "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

Now, that doesn't need much explaining, if you really read it with an open mind.

Stop. Now do you still want to know the truth, or are you ready to evade it again? For the answer you can read more in The Book. Before you decide to accept or reject The Book, you must, if you are going to be honest with yourself, seek the truth. It will set you free. (see John 8.32)

You cannot escape it if you really seek it, if you truly read The Book with the desire to know the truth. I did over five years ago and I found Jesus. Those who know me also know that my life totally changed. Yours can too IF you read it!

State Unveils Effort To Fight Youth Smoking

Nelson J. Sabatini, secretary of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH), has introduced the state Cancer Control Plan's animated television commercial entitled "Don't Smoke, It'll Drag You Down" which warns students in fourth through seventh grades about the dangers of smoking and discourages early trials of tobacco.

"Maryland barely ranks second in the nation of cancer-related deaths, with a lot of those deaths attributed to smoking," said Sabatini. "Smoking-related deaths are preventable. Therefore, it is essential that we educate our young people so that they can enjoy a long, healthy future."

The commercial premiered before nearly 150 members of the Magothy River Middle School's Students Against Starting Smoking (SASS) chapter. SASS was founded in 1993 by the Governor's Citizens Cabinet, a citizens advisory group appointed by Governor William Donald Schaefer, to provide peer reinforcement of the "don't start" message throughout area middle schools. Eleven middle schools have been selected by the Governor to participate in this program.

In Maryland, where selling cigarettes to minors had been illegal for more than 100 years, 40 percent of the state's 12th grade student reported smoking cigarettes in the last year, well above the national average of 28 percent according to the 1992 Maryland Adolescent Drug Survey.

The survey, conducted by the Maryland State Department of Education, also show that children typically begin smoking around 10-13 years of age because of peer pressure, rebellion or as a means of weight loss. The importance of this campaign is to stop the behavior before it has started. The research also indicates that Americans who have not tried cigarettes by age 19 are less likely to begin smoking at all.

"In addition to the statewide media campaign, we are working on several initiatives designed to keep cigarettes from reaching and harming Maryland children, including giving a grant to the Department of Education to develop a tobacco control program in all Maryland middle schools, sponsoring a poster contest for 5th grade students across the state, and introducing a legislative package which limits children's access to cigarettes," said Governor Schaefer.

The Maryland Cancer Control Plan, which is entering its final year of a three-year contract, is committed to reducing the cancer mortality rate by focusing on preventable cancers such as breast, cervical, and tobacco-related lung cancers. Last year, the State introduced a cancer hot-line to educate Maryland on those issues as well as provide information on tobacco cessation breast cancer screening programs. To reach the toll-free hotline, persons may call 1-800-477-9774, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Don't Smoke It'll Drag You Down television and radio commercials, developed for the Maryland Cancer Control plan by Richardson, Myers & Donofrio, began airing March 9.

Centers Planned For Gifted And Talented Students

Twelve centers throughout the state will be offering special opportunities this summer tor gitted and talented students entering grades 7, 8, or 9 in September in accordance with a partnership of the Maryland State Department of Education and a network of education institutions, business groups, environmental groups and government agencies, according to Nancy S. Grasmick, state superintendent of schools.

The network of centers will feature advanced level curricula in international studies, environmental science, mathematics, technology, social studies, and the arts. One of the 12 centers of this network will be the Western Maryland Math and Science Center, an educational partnership of the Appalachian Environmental Laboratory, Board of Education of Allegany County, Board of Education of Garrett County, Garrett Community College, GMI Engineering and Management Institute and Frostburg State University. The Center received funding in the amount of $82,952 to provide one-week intensive educational programs for students entering grades 7, 8, or 9 and teachers at any grade level in environmental science and algebra.

The algebra component, to be located at Garrett Community College, will serve 40 students and 15 teachers, and will introduce students and teachers to the latest in mathematics technology, including distance learning, computers, graphing calculators, models and big screen projection. The emphasis will not be on paper and pencil tests, but rather on cooperative group experimentation, enrichment experiences with data analysis and exploring mathematical conjectures under the facilitation of experienced "master" teachers. Students will create better ways to learn mathematical concepts so that they can return to their home schools in the fall with a better understanding of what it will take to achieve mathematical excellence as they move into the 21st century.

Anyone having questions regarding the Algebra component or desiring further information about this component, should contact Nancy Priselac at (301) 387-3045.

The environmental science component will enable students to study one of four main topics: Soil Conservation and Horizons, Watershed and Stream Technology, Wetlands,, and Forestry. Working with experts in each of these fields, students and teachers will conduct an investigation of the various habitats that exist within the ecosystem. At the conclusion of the field studies, students will prepare a written evaluation of their area of concentration. A specific problem that has been discovered as a result of the investigation of the various habitats and recommended solutions will be communicated to the appropriate state and local agencies through a written report. The Environmental Science component located at Frostburg State University has been funded to serve 40 students and 20 teachers.

Anyone desiring further information about this components, may contact John Festerman at (301) 759-2014.

The summer centers for the gifted and talented have traditionally been showcases for outstanding teaching methods, with techniques learned in these centers often finding their way into more traditional education settings. Dr. Grasmick praised the Maryland State Legislature and the member of the partnership network for their support of the summer centers. "These centers provide a rich educational experience for both young students and teachers. I am so pleased that our partners have joined again this year to offer fun and challenging summer programs for Maryland students," she said.

Cases Of Arson Decline Again Throughout State

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele has announced a reduction in arson offenses for a third consecutive year in the State of Maryland.

According to data collected through the Uniform Crime Reporting Program, arson offenses decreased by approximately five percent in 1993 from 1992. There were 2,396 recorded arson offenses last year in Maryland, as compared to 2,510 such incidents during 1992.

The most significant reduction in arson offenses occurred in the Eastern Shore region, which consists of Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, Caroline, Talbot, Dorchester, Wicomico, Somerset and Worcester counties. Arson dropped by approximately 15.6% in this region during 1993 as compared with 1992. There were 186 reported arsons in the region during 1992, as compared with 157 such cases last year.

The Western Maryland region, consisting of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Carroll counties, recorded an 11.2% reduction in arsons last year. There were 187 arsons recorded throughout Western Maryland during 1992, but only 166 such incidents were recorded in the region last year.

The Baltimore Metropolitan region consisting of Baltimore City, Baltimore, Anne Arundel, Harford and Howard counties, had an overall five percent reduction in arson offenses last year. During 1992, there were 1,220 arsons recorded in the region, however, only 1,159 such offenses were documented in 1993.

The Southern Maryland region, which includes Charles, St. Mary's and Calvert counties, showed no change in the arson rate from 1992 to 1993. During the past two years, 91 arsons were investigated in Southern Maryland.

The Washington Metropolitan region, which includes the counties of Montgomery and Prince George's, record a slight increase in arson offenses during 1993. There were 680 arson incidents recorded in the region last year, as compared to 663 such documented cases in 1992, which represents an increase of approximately 2.6%.

Additionally, 10 people were killed in arson related fire incidents during the past year. This was a 50% decrease from the 20 documented arson fire deaths recorded during 1992. The State Fire Marshal is urging anyone with information regarding any arson fire in Maryland to contact the state-wide Arson Hotline at 1-800-492-7529 to provide tips or information to investigators about these incidents. An arson tip reward of up to $5,000 may be provided to anyone supplying information on an arson crime that leads to an arrest or indictment of the person or persons responsible for committing the crime.

Commenting on the reduction in arsons, Gabriele stated, "I am extremely pleased at the continued decline of this horrendous crime in our state. However, we still have a very significant arson problem in Maryland, especially with juvenile arsonists, and should continue to fight this crime with all the resources available to us."

Julie Cooper, Greg Iden Are Wed in July, Double-Ring Ceremony

Julie Michelle Cooper and Gregory Lynn Iden were married July 10, 1993, at the Fairview Church of the Brethren. The Rev. David Moon performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Gary and June Cooper, Oakland. The groom is the son of Gary and Sandy Iden, McHenry.

Prior to the ceremony, Gary Cooper Jr., brother of the bride, and Duane Gordon, uncle of the bride, wearing western-style shirts and blue jeans, ushered guests to their seats.

Given in marriage by her parents, and escorted by her father, the bride wore a Mori Lee original gown of white satin. The bodice featured a V-neckline and a dropped waist with an inlay of Alencon lace and iridescent sequins. The keyhole lace sleeves were accented with candy box bows. A full satin skirt was trimmed with Alencon lace and appliques, which continued its flow into a cathedral-length train adorned with keyhole V-openings and a matching candy box bow.

The bride carried a bouquet of fresh, predominantly purple wildflowers.

Annette Duncan, cousin of the bride, and Heather Lipscomb, future sister-in-law of the bride, served as bridesmaids. They wore black and white dress suits and carried bouquets of wildflowers.

Stephanie Gordon, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a white satin dress with appliques matching those on the bride's gown. She carried a pale purple basket accented with purple silk flowers and baby's breath, and tossed multi-colored petals for the bride.

The groom was attired in a short black tuxedo jacket with a white shirt and black bow tie. He wore Levis blue jeans and black cowboy boots.

Gary Iden served his son as best man. Brent Yoder, friend of the groom, was the groomsman. Both were attired to match the groom, and all three wore belt buckles custom made by the groom.

The pianist was Nelda McNeil, great-aunt of the groom. Peggy Rohrbaugh sang, I Cross My Heart, before the couple exchanged their wedding vows. Shonna DeWitt, cousin of the groom, registered the guests.

Following the ceremony, a country-western reception was held at Island Creek Lodge. The tables were decorated with white linen tablecloths and mason jars filled with hand-picked wildflowers. The dance floor was decorated with hay bales and crocks and kettles filled with purple petunias.

Renee Gordon and Adam Duncan, cousins of the bride, greeted the guests as they arrived at the reception. Dinner was prepared and served by volunteers from the Gorman Volunteer Fire Department. The wedding party was served by Crystal Duncan, Jennifer Gordon, and Jaclyn Broyles, all cousins of the bride.

A five-layered cake, baked and decorated by Leota Martin, was decorated with lace icing and icing flowers of daisies, purple violets, and pale purple carnations. It was topped with a dancing bride and groom music box.

Music for the reception was provided by Gary Cooper Jr., and country line dances were led by the groom's father.

The couple spent two nights at Canaan Valley Resort before traveling to Williamsburg, Va., to visit Busch Gardens and Water Country U.S.A. Following their honeymoon, the couple established residence in McHenry.

NOTICE OF DETERMINATION OF NO SIGNIFICANT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT
CHESTNUT RIDGE SEWER PROJECT

Notification is hereby given that the Farmers Home Administration has made a determination of no significant environmental impact for the Chestnut Ridge Sewer Project. The Garrett County Sanitary District Inc., has applied for federal and state grant funding to design and construct a community sewer system for Chestnut Ridge in Garrett County Maryland. A sewage collection system will be installed to provide sewer service for the Route 40-Chestnut Ridge area east of Grantsville. The sewage will be conveyed to the Grantsville Sewage Treatment Plant by means of a pump station and pressure interceptor line. The Grantsville Sewage Treatment Plant will be upgraded to accommodate the additional sewage loading.

The project will have a minimal temporary impact on land resources. Most of the system will be installed underground and within existing street and road right of ways. The sewer line will be installed under the Casselman River. The temporary disturbance will not adversely impact the river or water quality.

The District's application for federal grant assistance and the Farmers Home Administration Environmental Assessment are available for review at the Farmers Home Administration District and State office located at 151 Dixon Drive, Suite 2, Chestertown, Maryland 21620, telephone 410-778-1411. Any person interested in commenting on the application or the feasibility of the proposed action may do so in writing to the above listed location within fifteen (15) days following the date of this publication.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting Wendell R. Betzel, Administrator of the Garrett County Sanitary District, Inc., 313 East Alder Street, Old Courthouse Room 200, Oakland, Maryland 21550, telephone 301-334-1980.

IMPORTANT GYPSY MOTH NOTIFICATION TO LANDOWNERS

The Intent Of The Following Information Is To Clarify The Recent Written Information Received By Landowners Within A Designated Spray Block And The Landowners Who Are "Near" A Spray Block.

Map Information

- in most instances, the map received by the landowner indicating spray "block" would have multiple landowners.
- All landowners within the same block have received identical written information and map.
- Important change in "block" size. Landowners located in designated blocks with many other landowners are having difficulties in making contacts to arrange for total payment of block, therefore, the Maryland Department of Agriculture has made the decision that spray blocks may be subdivided into smaller blocks not less than 25 continuous acres. The 25 acres is the minimum standard block size requirement for State application contracts. Also, it is important to note that blocks of multi-ownership must be paid for as a group. Payment can be one check or multi-checks grouped together to cover the total cost. Checks mailed in individually will be returned. The $3.50 per acre is a very inexpensive price, therefore it is imperative that landowners assume some responsibilities other than writing out a check. The 25 acre minimum will be strictly enforced.
- If the original spray block is subdivided it will be necessary that the landowner or a representative meets with an MDA official to correctly identify the boundaries of the subdivided block on one of the dates listed at right.
- The cost indicated on the map sheet is the total cost for the block. Individual landowners must determine acreage and their share of the total block cost calculated at $3.50 per acre. An additional 12% should be added to acres to guarantee the block has good spray coverage.
- Read carefully. Landowners bordering designated spray block will receive identical information that landowners in the spray block receives. The purpose is just to let the landowner know that spraying will be near their property. The information failed to tell the landowner that on the address on the envelope there would be hand written the word "in" or "near". If you have a "near" just ignore the information unless you have an objection.

Students Invited To Enter Stamp Design Contest

Local students have an opportunity to design one of the official U.S. postage stamps that will show ways everyone can help the environment.

The contest, sponsored by the U.S. Postal Service and McDonald's Restaurants, invites 8- to 13-year-old students to submit a design or illustration that shows an activity or practice that helps protect, preserve, or restore the environment.

"Concern for the environment is integrated into everything we do," said Rick Fisher, Cumberland postmaster. "We think it is fitting to have young people design these stamps, in particular, since they are the world's future caretakers."

"Sponsoring this contest is a terrific way for us to let youth know we care about them and the world they will inherit," said Al Boxley, owner of several local McDonald's Restaurants. "Like the Postal Service, McDonald's is in nearly every community across the country and reaches hundreds of thousands of kids each day."

In addition to the contest, McDonald's and the U.S. Postal Service have sent environmental posters and teaching lessons to schools with students in this age group. The poster includes the contest rules and enjoyable ways young people can help the environment.

Students, who are legal U.S. residents and are 8 to 13 years old as of April 30, are eligible. For complete rules and entry information, Persons may visit a participating McDonald's or local post office. The winning design will be issued as a first-class stamp during the first half of 1995.

Hire The Older Worker Week Is Proclaimed

Governor William Donald Schaefer has proclaimed March 13-19, as "Hire the Older Worker Week" in Maryland.

This observance marks the 35th anniversary of the national effort to recognize older persons as qualified employees, and to encourage employers in the public and private sector to "hire the older worker." Employment records of most older workers demonstrate positive job-related characteristics that many employers value, such as stability, punctuality, dependability and productivity.

"There are many persons in Maryland, age 55 and over, who wish to join or rejoin the workforce," said Governor Schaefer. "Some older people seek employment to prevent financial need or social isolation, while others are motivated by their desire to remain the mainstream of community life through part-time or full-time employment."

To promote the observance of "Hire the Older Worker Week," the Maryland Office on Aging is working with Area Agencies on Aging, senior centers, and the private industries throughout the State to host activities that extol the virtues of Maryland's senior employees.

In recognition of "Hire the Older Worker Week," the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging is hosting a Recognition Luncheon for all Community Action employees who are 55 years of age and older. Each employee will receive a certificate of appreciation for their dedicated service. Certificates will be presented by each employee's supervisor. The luncheon is scheduled for Friday, March 18.

"We encourage all Maryland employers in the public and private sector, including all departments of status, county and local governments, as well, to remember that hiring the older worker is a good business decision," said Rosalie S. Abrams, director of the Maryland Office on Aging.

Employers interested in knowing more about hiring older workers in Maryland may call the Maryland Office on Aging, (410) 225-1095, or contact their local Area Agency on Aging.

USDA Program To Aid Development In Western Md.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) this week approved a new Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Program for the five westernmost counties of Maryland, including Garrett.

USDA's Soil Conservation Service is the lead agency in this program that helps local people and communities care for and protect their natural resources in a way that will improve their economy, environment, and living standards, according to a spokesperson.

"The most important factors to RC&D are the people who live in the RC&D area," said Paul W. Johnson, chief of the Soil Conservation Service. "We're looking forward to assisting them."

The RC&D Program establishes a council made up of people from the private sector and local units of government. The council defines its own goals and objectives to meet local needs. The RC&D commitment emphasizes one or more of the following areas: land conservation, community development, water management, and environmental concerns.

The program offers technical and financial assistance in natural resource conservation and water management. It also expands economic, cultural, and recreational opportunities.

The citizens of the newly established RC&D in Western Maryland will be invited to make a difference by volunteering to help the RC&D Council.

"People from all walks of life who want to protect and sustain the natural resources of the area and who want to help in the economic standards of the area will be welcome to work with the council in the projects they have identified that need to be tackled," said a spokesperson.

More information may be obtained by calling Lillian Woods at (301) 777-1494 or RC&D Council President Eric Seifarth, at (301) 791-[illegible].

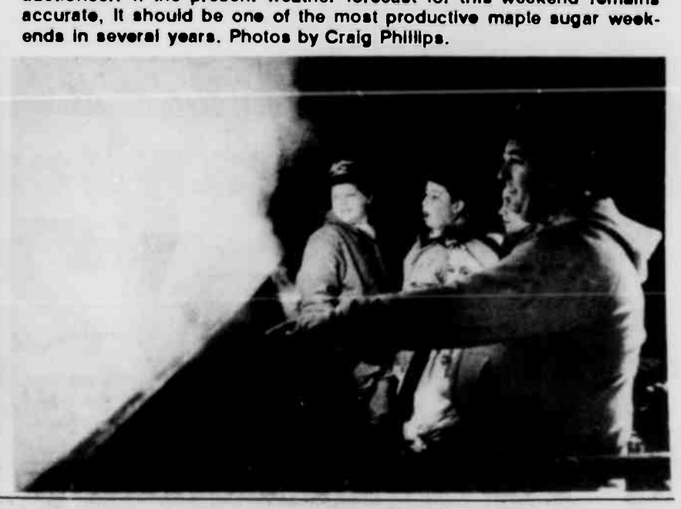
THE REPUBLICAN

VOL. NO. 117 OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1994 PER COPY 35¢



Printed on RECYCLED NEWSPRINT

THE MAPLE SYRUP/SUGAR INDUSTRY in Garrett County is booming this year after several years of poor productivity because of weather conditions. With the continued cold nights, coupled with occasional warm days, the water from the sugar maples is flowing with great gusto at all of the local camps. These photos were taken at the Steyer camp along Rt. 560 near Gorman, a site that was visited yesterday by members of the Ryans Glade 4-H Club. The youngsters learned that it takes an average of 70 gallons of water to produce just one gallon of some of the nation's finest maple syrup, as 98 percent of the water must be boiled away. New technology has greatly reduced the amount of boiling, as an intermediate step decreases the number of gallons of water before it must be boiled. Below left, the viscosity of the syrup is being checked the old-fashioned way. Explaining the boiling procedure in the photo below right is Bob Custer, who works at the Steyer camp when he is not selling real estate or serving as an auctioneer. If the present weather forecast for this weekend remains accurate, it should be one of the most productive maple sugar weekends in several years. Photos by Craig Phillips.

Skier Dies In Mishap At Wisp Friday Evening

A West Virginia man became the second fatality this season at the Wisp Ski Area in McHenry after falling on the slope known as the Face and striking his head on a tree off the side of the slope.

Larry W. Mitchell, 51, Washington, W.Va., was pronounced dead at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following the 6:25 p.m. accident. Mitchell reportedly sustained fractures of the cervical vertebrae; however the findings of an autopsy have not yet been released.

Mitchell, a member of the Ohio Valley Ski Club, was skiing down the Face with his son when he fell and slid into a row of trees, apparently striking the trunk of one of the trees head first. The younger Mitchell noticed that his father was not breathing and he performed rescue breathing on his father until the arrival of Wisp Ski Patrol personnel, who began full cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) when the patient went into cardiac arrest.

Mitchell was rapidly evacuated from the mountain by the ski patrol and transferred directly into an awaiting ambulance of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, which had been summoned immediately after the accident was reported to the ski patrol. CPR was continued by

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival Announces 1994 Season Offerings

The 1994 season of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival has been finahzed by the GLAF Board of Directors, and is the organization's most expansive season yet, beginning in mid-June and continuing through October. The offerings will be diverse, with "something for everyone," including shows especially for children, two military musical groups, two Neil Simon plays, a Shakespeare On Wheels production of Hamlet, and the return of the popular Dear Friends music group and the yearly classical music festival. Three of this year's events will be free of charge.

"We are aiming to reach out to the local population more this year," said Fred Stemple, GLAF executive director. "We hope to see more and more familiar faces in our audiences this season."

Most of the performances will take place in the air-conditioned auditorium of Garrett Community College, McHenry. Others will be performed on the lawn of GCC, and one military group - United States Marine Band "The President's Own" - will present an admission-free October program at Southern High School. All performances will accessible to persons with disabilities. Except where noted, tickets are $7 for adults and $2 for children aged 12 and under.

"We have been expanding our program each year, and are pleased to be able to offer such a varied season," Stemple said. "Everyone should be able to find something to enjoy this summer and fall."

The season will open on Sunday, June 12, with an outdoor performance of "Commodores," the United States Navy jazz ensemble. The group will present "big band" sounds in an admission-free performance.

"Audience members are invited to bring a packed meal for the 4 p.m. outdoor performance and enjoy the music in a relaxed atmosphere," Stemple said.

The second presentation of GLAF will be a performance of Peter and the Wolf by Applause Unlimited's Puppeteer Christopher Hudert. Hudert will manipulate marionettes in full view of the audience as he presents the popular children's story. This program is set for June 17 at 7 p.m., and June 18 at 11 a.m.

The third event of the GLAF season is the yearly gala benefit, set for Saturday, June 25, at the McHenry House, Wisp Resort. The theme for this year's party will be "Totally Tropic," and will be an evening of music, fine food, and the opportunity to obtain various artworks and other items in the annual auction. The event supports the program schedule of GLAF, and those providing such funds are given in return a memorable evening and perhaps a new work of art. The event will begin at 6 p.m. with happy hour, fol-

MLP Man Charged With Assault After Alleged Attack

A Mountain Lake Park man was charged by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office with assault charges and other violations after he allegedly attacked a Deer Park man in his truck while he was driving. Carl H. Friend, 18, was officially charged with three counts of reckless endangerment, two counts of assault, two counts of malicious destruction of property, and battery.

The incident took place on March 5 at about 1 a.m. when John E. King, Deer Park, was driving along Bethlehem Road. King told police that a vehicle was trailing his, so he stopped to investigate the situation. According to the victim's statement, Friend then leapt into the back of his truck and broke out the back window.

Shattered glass cut King's face and neck, and showered down over two passengers, Stephanie McCloud, 17, and Alisha P. King, 1 1/2 years. Neither passenger was cut, according to the

Accident Pair Charged With Theft, Forgery

Two persons from Accident were charged this week by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office following an investigation into an apparent attempted banking scam. Carla R. Bowers, 25, and David Boylan, 44, were arrested on March 14, both charged with forgery and Bowers additionally charged with theft.

According to the sheriff's office report, Bowers had found an $800 check at the Accident Post Office, made out to Charles E. Ringer, Accident. The check had been placed in her mailbox by mistake. Bowers allegedly asked Boylan to endorse the check and pose as Ringer at the American Trust Bank.

The two apparently attempted the scam, but the American Trust teller knew that Boylan was not Ringer, and contacted the police immediately. Officers were able to locate the two in a vehicle several miles from the bank, and the suspects

County Acreage Approved For Ag Preservation

Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer this week announced Board of Public Works approval of 17 option contracts for the purchase of agricultural preservation easements of 3,090 acres in six counties, including 280 acres in Garrett County owned by Gilbert Wilhelm of Avilton.

The state will pay a reported $3,802,712 for the easements located in Garrett, Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, Harford, and Wicomico counties.

"I am proud to say that Maryland continues to lead the nation in the number of acres in our agricultural land preservation program," said Schaefer. "In addition, we have a strong group of dedicated farm families who are committed to agriculture. Over the last seven years, 397 agricultural easements totaling 54,544 acres have been acquired."

Variety Of Topics Discussed By GCC's Board Of Trustees

Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met Tuesday evening for its regular monthly meeting. Chairman Charles Bender noted a vacancy still exists on the board and an appointment by Governor William Donald Schaefer is expected in the next 60 days.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dean of Academic Affairs Dr. Lillian Mitchell introduced Betsy Fowler, coordinator of "College & Me," a program offered to all Garrett County fifth grade students to introduce them to the college's facilities. Fowler told the board she is encouraged by the enthusiasm generated by the students who participate in the program and hopes for additional funding to allow "College & Me" to expand.

Previously funded by a RESA grant, the "College & Me" program is currently supported by GCC and the Garrett County Board of Education. Because of the lost funding, GCC President Stephen Herman asked the board of trustees to allow the college's grant writers to look into the possibility of another grant for the project.

Dr. Nancy Priselac, coordinator of mathematics at the college, talked to the board about a grant-funded Western Maryland Math Center program set for July 11-15 at GCC. The program is limited to 40 students entering the seventh, eighth and ninth grades who "have high potential, to be energized by an exciting one-week summer mathematics program." Students will be introduced to the latest in mathematics, technology (including distance learning), computers, graphing calculators, models and big screen projection, according to Priselac.

She announced a distance learning session is planned Friday evening to introduce sixth through ninth grade students and other interested persons to the program. Priselac and Ted Gardella from GMI Engineering and Management Institute, Flint, Mich., will conduct an interactive video class with the college's new audio/visual network, titled "Analyzing Data and Understanding Matricies," from 5-7 p.m. in Room 163 at the college. GCC will be linked with Allegany Community College so that county can also introduce its students to the GUESTS OF HONOR at a special dinner Monday evening at Garrett Community College were the members of the GCC men's basketball team who will be playing this afternoon in the Division II Junior College National Championship in Danville, Ill. The Lakers, who captured both the Maryland JUCO title and Region XX championship and are currently ranked seventh in the nation in Division II standings, will be one of eight teams participating in the national event. They will face Joliet Community College, the Region IV champion, this afternoon at 4 p.m. local time, and then play two more games in the round-robin tourney. Joliet is 25-8 this season and is in the national tournament for the third straight year. The team has four 6-9 players, two of whom have already signed to play for Division I universities next season. "I just can't say enough for these guys sitting here at this table," stated GCC Coach Dennis Gibson, pictured above at the podium. "The major key to our success this year is the depth of this team. Every one of these players has stepped up and contributed at different times throughout the season. I just hope our long layoff (three weeks) won't hurt us." The Lakers' games will be broadcast locally on WKMM Radio, Kingwood, 96.7 FM.

One of four segments premiering Saturday, March 26, at 9 p.m., the fly-fishing segment features local resident Ken Pavol, Western Maryland Regional Fisheries Biologist for the Department of Natural Resources, who instructs Sherrie Hawkin in the fine art of this most "gentile form of angling," according to an MPT spokesperson. USDA Program To Aid Deveiopment In Western Md.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) this week approved a new Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Program for the five westernmost counties of Maryland, including Garrett.

USDA's Soil Conservation Service is the lead agency in this program that helps local people and communities care for and protect their natural resources in a way that will improve their economy, environment, and living standards, according to a spokesperson.

"The most important factors to RC&D are the people who live in the RC&D area," said Paul W. Johnson, chief of the Soil Conservation Service. "We're looking forward to assisting them."

The RC&D Program establishes a council made up of people from the private sector and local units of government. The council defines its own goals and objectives to meet local needs. The RC&D commitment emphasizes one or more of the following areas: land conservation, community development, water management, and environmental concerns.

The program offers technical and financial assistance in natural resource conservation and water management. It also expands economic, cultural, and recreational opportunities.

The citizens of the newly established RC&D in Western Maryland will be invited to make a difference by volunteering to help the RC&D Council.

"People from all walks of life who want to protect and sustain the natural resources of the area and who want to help in the economic standards of the area will be welcome to work with the council in the projects they have identified that need to be tackled," said a spokesperson.

More information may be obtained by calling Lillian Woods at (301) 777-1494 or RC&D Council President Eric Seifarth, at (301) 791-3065.

Skier Dies In Mishap At Wisp Friday Evening

A West Virginia man became the second fatality this season at the Wisp Ski Area in McHenry after falling on the slope known as the Face and striking his head on a tree off the side of the slope.

Larry W. Mitchell, 51, Washington, W.Va., was pronounced dead at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following the 6:25 p.m. accident. Mitchell reportedly sustained fractures of the cervical vertebrae; however the findings of an autopsy have not yet been released.

Mitchell, a member of the Ohio Valley Ski Club, was skiing down the Face with his son when he fell and slid into a row of trees, apparently striking the trunk of one of the trees head first. The younger Mitchell noticed that his father was not breathing and he performed rescue breathing on his father until the arrival of Wisp Ski Patrol personnel, who began full cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) when the patient went into cardiac arrest.

Mitchell was rapidly evacuated from the mountain by the ski patrol and transferred directly into an awaiting ambulance of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, which had been summoned immediately after the accident was reported to the ski patrol. CPR was continued by

MLP Man Charged With Assault After Alleged Attack

A Mountain Lake Park man was charged by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office with assault charges and other violations after he allegedly attacked a Deer Park man in his truck while he was driving. Carl H. Friend, 18, was officially charged with three counts of reckless endangerment, two counts of assault, two counts of malicious destruction of property, and battery.

The incident took place on March 5 at about 1 a.m. when John E. King, Deer Park, was driving along Bethlehem Road. King told police that a vehicle was trailing him, so he stopped to investigate the situation. According to the victim's statement, Friend then leapt into the back of his truck and broke out the back window.

Shattered glass cut King's face and neck, and showered down over two passengers, Stephanie McCloud, 17, and Alisha P. King, 1 1/2 years. Neither passenger was cut, according to the

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival Announces 1994 Season Offerings

The 1994 season of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival has been finalized by the GLAF Board of Directors, and is the organization's most expansive season yet, beginning in mid-June and continuing through October. The offerings will be diverse, with "something for everyone," including shows especially for children, two military musical groups, two Neil Simon plays, a Shakespeare On Wheels production of Hamlet, and the return of the popular Dear Friends music group and the yearly classical music festival. Three of this year's events will be free of charge.

"We are aiming to reach out to the local population more this year," said Fred Stemple, GLAF executive director. "We hope to see more and more familiar faces in our audiences this season."

Most of the performances will take place in the air-conditioned auditorium of Garrett Community College, McHenry. Others will be performed on the lawn of GCC, and one military group - United States Marine Band "The President's Own" - will present an admission-free October program at Southern High School. All performances will accessible to persons with disabilities. Except where noted, tickets are $7 for adults and $2 for children aged 12 and under.

"We have been expanding our program each year, and are pleased to be able to offer such a varied season," Stemple said. "Everyone should be able to find something to enjoy this summer and fall."

The season will open on Sunday, June 12, with an outdoor performance of "Commedores," the United States Navy jazz ensemble. The group will present "big band" sounds in an admission-free performance.

"Audience members are invited to bring a packed meal for the 4 p.m. outdoor performance and enjoy the music in a relaxed atmosphere," Stemple said.

The second presentation of GLAF will be a performance of Peter and the Wolf by Applause Unlimited's Puppeteer Christopher Hudert. Hudert will manipulate marionettes in full view of the audience as he presents the popular children's story. This program is set for June 17 at 7 p.m., and June 18 at 11 a.m.

The third event of the GLAF season is the yearly gala benefit, set for Saturday, June 25, at the McHenry House, Wisp Resort. The theme for this year's party will be "Totally Tropic," and will be an evening of music, fine food, and the opportunity to obtain various artworks and other items in the annual auction. The event supports the program schedule of GLAF, and those providing such funds are given in return a memorable evening and perhaps a new work of art. The event will begin at 6 p.m. with happy hour, fol-

A Mtn. Lake Park youth was listed in "satisfactory" condition Wednesday at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, according to a hospital spokesperson, following a pedestrian/vehicle accident that occurred on Monday afternoon.

Michael A. Dawson, 13, and an another unidentified pedestrian were reportedly walking along Rt. 135, near I Street in Mtn. Lake Park, when he was struck by a 1992 Mercury Sable driven by Daniel R. Seib II, 17, also of Mtn. Lake Park.

Variety Of Topics Discussed By GCC's Board Of Trustees

Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met Tuesday evening for its regular monthly meeting. Chairman Charles Bender noted a vacancy still exists on the board and an appointment by Governor William Donald Schaefer is expected in the next 60 days.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dean of Academic Affairs Dr. Lillian Mitchell introduced Betsy Fowler, coordinator of "College & Me," a program offered to all Garrett County fifth grade students to introduce them to the college's facilities. Fowler told the board she is encouraged by the enthusiasm generated by the students who participate in the program and hopes for additional funding to allow "College & Me" to expand.

Previously funded by a RESA grant, the "College & Me" program is currently supported by GCC and the Garrett County Board of Education. Because of the lost funding, GCC President Stephen Herman asked the board of trustees to allow the college's grant writers to look into the possibility of another grant for the project.

Dr. Nancy Priselac, coordinator of mathematics at the college, talked to the board about a grant-funded Western Maryland Math Center program set for July 11-15 at GCC. The program is limited to 40 students entering the seventh, eighth and ninth grades who "have high potential, to be energized by an exciting one-week summer mathematics program." Students will be introduced to the latest in mathematics, technology (including distance learning), computers, graphing calculators, models and big screen projection, according to Priselac.

She announced a distance learning session is planned Friday evening to introduce sixth through ninth grade students and other interested persons to the program. Priselac and Ted Gardella from GMI Engineering and Management Institute, Flint, Mich., will conduct an interactive video class with the college's new audio/visual network, titled "Analyzing Data and Understanding Matricies," from 5-7 p.m. in Room 163 at the college. GCC will be linked with Allegany Community College so that county can also introduce its students to the GUESTS OF HONOR at a special dinner Monday evening at Garrett Community College were the members of the GCC men's basketball team who will be playing this afternoon in the Division II Junior College National Championship in Danville, Ill. The Lakers, who captured both the Maryland JUCO title and Region XX championship and are currently ranked seventh in the nation in Division II standings, will be one of eight teams participating in the national event. They will face Joliet Community College, the Region IV champion, this afternoon at 4 p.m. local time, and then play two more games in the round-robin tourney. Joliet is 25-8 this season and is in the national tournament for the third straight year. The team has four 6-9 players, two of whom have already signed to play for Division I universities next season. "I just can't say enough for these guys sitting here at this table," stated GCC Coach Dennis Gibson, pictured above at the podium. "The major key to our success this year is the depth of this team. Every one of these players has stepped up and contributed at different times throughout the season. I just hope our long layoff (three weeks) won't hurt us." The Lakers' games will be broadcast locally on WKMM Radio, Kingwood, 96.7 FM.

FLY FISHING IN GARRETT COUNTY is the subject of an upcoming segment of Maryland Public Television's (MPT) OUTDOORS MARYLAND, titled, "A Maryland River Runs Through It." One of four segments premiering Saturday, March 26, at 9 p.m., the fly-fishing segment features local resident Ken Pavol, Western Maryland Regional Fisheries Biologist for the Department of Natural Resources, who instructs Sherrie Hawkin in the fine art of this most "gentile form of angling," according to an MPT spokesperson. Pavol and Hawkin are shown above during the shooting of the segment, which was directed/produced by Glenn Tolbert. The three other segments to be aired on March 26 include wildlife management areas, an archeological find on the Eastern shore, and the plight of the horseshoe crab.

USDA Program To Aid Development In Western Md.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) this week approved a new Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Program for the five westernmost counties of Maryland, including Garrett.

USDA's Soil Conservation Service is the lead agency in this program that helps local people and communities care for and protect their natural resources in a way that will improve their economy, environment, and living standards, according to a spokesperson.

"The most important factors to RC&D are the people who live in the RC&D area," said Paul W. Johnson, chief of the Soil Conservation Service. "We're looking forward to assisting them."

The RC&D Program establishes a council made up of people from the private sector and local units of government. The council defines its own goals and objectives to meet local needs. The RC&D commitment emphasizes one or more of the following areas: land conservation, community development, water management, and environmental concerns.

The program offers technical and financial assistance in natural resource conservation and water management. It also expands economic, cultural, and recreational opportunities.

The citizens of the newly established RC&D in Western Maryland will be invited to make a difference by volunteering to help the RC&D Council.

"People from all walks of life who want to protect and sustain the natural resources of the area and who want to help in the economic standards of the area will be welcome to work with the council in the projects they have identified that need to be tackled," said a spokesperson.

More information may be obtained by calling Lillian Woods at (301) 777-1494 or RC&D Council President Eric Seifarth, at (301) 791-3065.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

THE REPUBLICAN

VOL. NO. 117 OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1994 PER COPY 35¢ Printed on RECYCLED NEWSPRINT

THE MAPLE SYRUP/SUGAR INDUSTRY in Garrett County is booming this year after several years of poor productivity because of weather conditions. With the continued cold nights, coupled with occasional warm days, the water from the sugar maples is flowing with great gusto at all of the local camps. These photos were taken at the Steyer camp along Rt. 560 near Gorman, a site that was visited yesterday by members of the Ryans Glade 4-H Club. The youngsters learned that it takes an average of 70 gallons of water to produce just one gallon of some of the nation's finest maple syrup, as 98 percent of the water must be boiled away. New technology has greatly reduced the amount of boiling, as an intermediate step decreases the number of gallons of water before it must be boiled. Below left, the viscosity of the syrup is being checked the old-fashioned way. Explaining the boiling procedure in the photo below right is Bob Custer, who works at the Steyer camp when he is not selling real estate or serving as an auctioneer. If the present weather forecast for this weekend remains accurate, it should be one of the most productive maple sugar weekends in several years. Photos by Craig Phillips.

Skier Dies In Mishap At Wisp Friday Evening

A West Virginia man became the second fatality this season at the Wisp Ski Area in McHenry after falling on the slope known as the Face and striking his head on a tree off the side of the slope.

Larry W. Mitchell, 51, Washington, W.Va., was pronounced dead at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following the 6:25 p.m. accident. Mitchell reportedly sustained fractures of the cervical vertebrae; however the findings of an autopsy have not yet been released.

Mitchell, a member of the Ohio Valley Ski Club, was skiing down the Face with his son when he fell and slid into a row of trees, apparently striking the trunk of one of the trees head first. The younger Mitchell noticed that his father was not breathing and he performed rescue breathing on his father until the arrival of Wisp Ski Patrol personnel, who began full cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) when the patient went into cardiac arrest.

Mitchell was rapidly evacuated from the mountain by the ski patrol and transferred directly into an awaiting ambulance of the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, which had been summoned immediately after the accident was reported to the ski patrol. CPR was continued by

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival Announces 1994 Season Offerings

The 1994 season of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival has been finalized by the GLAF Board of Directors, and is the organization's most expansive season yet, beginning in mid-June and continuing through October. The offerings will be diverse, with "something for everyone," including shows especially for children, two military musical groups, two Neil Simon plays, a Shakespeare On Wheels production of Hamlet, and the return of the popular Dear Friends music group and the yearly classical music festival. Three of this year's events will be free of charge.

"We are aiming to reach out to the local population more this year," said Fred Stemple, GLAF executive director. "We hope to see more and more familiar faces in our audiences this season."

Most of the performances will take place in the air-conditioned auditorium of Garrett Community College, McHenry. Others will be performed on the lawn of GCC, and one military group - United States Marine Band "The President's Own" - will present an admission-free October program at Southern High School. All performances will accessible to persons with disabilities. Except where noted, tickets are $7 for adults and $2 for children aged 12 and under.

"We have been expanding our program each year, and are pleased to be able to offer such a varied season," Stemple said. "Everyone should be able to find something to enjoy this summer and fall."

The season will open on Sunday, June 12, with an outdoor performance of "Commodores," the United States Navy jazz ensemble. The group will present "big band" sounds in an admission-free performance.

"Audience members are invited to bring a packed meal for the 4 p.m. outdoor performance and enjoy the music in a relaxed atmosphere," Stemple said.

The second presentation of GLAF will be a performance of Peter and the Wolf by Applause Unlimited's Puppeteer Christopher Hudert. Hudert will manipulate marionettes in full view of the audience as he presents the popular children's story. His program is set for June 17 at 7 p.m., and June 18 at 11 a.m.

The third event of the GLAF season is the yearly gala benefit, set for Saturday, June 25, at the McHenry House, Wisp Resort. The theme for this year's party will be "Totally Tropic," and will be an evening of music, fine food, and the opportunity to obtain various artworks and other items in the annual auction. The event supports the program schedule of GLAF, and those providing such funds are given in return a memorable evening and perhaps a new work of art. The event will begin at 6 p.m. with happy hour, fol-

MLP Man Charged With Assault After Alleged Attack

A Mountain Lake Park man was charged by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office with assault charges and other violations after he allegedly attacked a Deer Park man in his truck while he was driving. Carl H. Friend, 18, was officially charged with three counts of reckless endangerment, two counts of assault, two counts of malicious destruction of property, and battery.

The incident took place on March 5 at about 1 a.m. when John E. King, Deer Park, was driving along Bethlehem Road. King told police that a vehicle was trailing his, so he stopped to investigate the situation. According to the victim's statement, Friend then leapt into the back of his truck and broke out the back window.

Shattered glass cut King's face and neck, and showered down over two passengers, Stephanie McCloud, 17, and Alisha P. King, 1 1/2 years. Neither passenger was cut, according to the

Accident Pair Charged With Theft, Forgery

Two persons from Accident were charged this week by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office following an investigation into an apparent attempted banking scam. Carla R. Bowers, 25, and David Boylan, 44, were arrested on March 14, both charged with forgery and Bowers additionally charged with theft.

According to the sheriff's office report, Bowers had found an $800 check at the Accident Post Office, made out to Charles E. Ringer, Accident. The check had been placed in her mailbox by mistake. Bowers allegedly asked Boylan to endorse the check and pose as Ringer at the American Trust Bank.

The two apparently attempted the scam, but the American Trust teller knew that Boylan was not Ringer, and contacted the police immediately. Officers were able to locate the two in a vehicle several miles from the bank, and the suspects

Variety Of Topics Discussed By GCC's Board Of Trustees

Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met Tuesday evening for its regular monthly meeting. Chairman Charles Bender noted a vacancy still exists on the board and an appointment by Governor William Donald Schaefer is expected in the next 60 days.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dean of Academic Affairs Dr. Lillian Mitchell introduced Betsy Fowler, coordinator of "College & Me," a program offered to all Garrett County fifth grade students to introduce them to the college's facilities. Fowler told the board she is encouraged by the enthusiasm generated by the students who participate in the program and hopes for additional funding to allow "College & Me" to expand.

Previously funded by a RESA grant, the "College & Me" program is currently supported by GCC and the Garrett County Board of Education. Because of the lost funding, GCC President Stephen Herman asked the board of trustees to allow the college's grant writers to look into the possibility of another grant for the project.

Dr. Nancy Priselac, coordinator of mathematics at the college, talked to the board about a grant-funded Western Maryland Math Center program set for July 11-15 at GCC. The program is limited to 40 students entering the seventh, eighth and ninth grades who "have high potential, to be energized by an exciting one-week summer mathematics program." Students will be introduced to the latest in mathematics, technology (including distance learning), computers, graphing calculators, models and big screen projection, according to Priselac.

She announced a distance learning session is planned Friday evening to introduce sixth through ninth grade students and other interested persons to the program. Priselac and Ted Gardella from GMI Engineering and Management Institute, Flint, Mich., will conduct an interactive video class with the college's new audio/visual network, titled "Analyzing Data and Understanding Matricies," from 5-7 p.m. in Room 163 at the college. GCC will be linked with Allegany Community College so that county can also introduce its students to the

According to MSP reports, William McDonough, 29, Smithfield, Pa., faces charges in both Pennsylvania and Maryland in connection with the 1 a.m. incident. McDonough allegedly abducted his wife, Brenda McDonough, 28, at gunpoint and took her to Smithfield.

MSP alerted the Pennsylvania State Police, who carried out the arrest. McDonough was charged with two counts of kidnapping, and one count each of reckless endangerment and battery.

GUESTS OF HONOR at a special dinner Monday evening at Garrett Community College were the members of the GCC men's basketball team who will be playing this afternoon in the Division II Junior College National Championship in Danville, Ill. The Lakers, who captured both the Maryland JUCO title and Region XX championship and are currently ranked seventh in the nation in Division II standings, will be one of eight teams participating in the national event. They will face Joliet Community College, the Region IV champion, this afternoon at 4 p.m. local time, and then play two more games in the round-robin tourney. Joliet is 25-6 this season and is in the national tournament for the third straight year. The team has four 6-9 players, two of whom have already signed to play for Division I universities next season. "I just can't say enough for these guys sitting here at this table," stated GCC Coach Dennis Gibson, pictured above at the podium. "The major key to our success this year is the depth of this team. Every one of these players has stepped up and contributed at different times throughout the season. I just hope our long layoff (three weeks) won't hurt us." The Lakers' games will be broadcast locally on WKMM Radio, Kingwood, 96.7 FM.

DAFFODIL DAYS UNDERWAY - Once again local volunteers are traveling to area businesses and residences to deliver fresh cut daffodils as part of National Daffodil Days, a yearly fundraiser for the American Cancer Society. Because the daffodil is one of the first flowers of spring, it is known as the "flower of hope," and for the Society it represents hope for cures and wellness for all cancer patients and their families. Every March and April, Society volunteers around the nation disperse the millions of fresh cut flowers that have arrived from fields on the West Coast during the last gray days of winter. They are sold in bunches of 10 for $5, and the proceeds from this endeavor aid in the local fight against cancer. Last year, the local branch of the Society assisted 30 cancer patients and provided education about the disease to over 15,000 people, according to Connie Margison, project chairperson. Some of the volunteers ready to deliver the "flowers of hope" are pictured above. Shown left to right are Shari Harris, Nancy Pagenhardt, Glenda Tichnell, Margison, Carmen Rosenthal, Donna Aspinall, Dothe Meadows, Connie Young, and Pam Snyder. Several other area residents will also be involved in daffodil delivery. Flowers can still be ordered at Jan Florists, The Flower Loft, Accident Floral and Gifts, or by calling Marvin's Men's Wear at 334-9211.

Feist also pleaded not guilty, and was found not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct on private property.

According to court records, Bittinger claimed Feist pulled a knife on him and threatened to cut his heart out. Feist also threatened to cut Bittinger's dog's throat. Bittinger had been accused of threatening to send his dog to "tear Feist up," and then threatened to hit him with a club.

DNR CASES

Three cases were heard last week involving charges filed by the Department of Natural Resources Police.

Christopher A. Williams, 25, and Edward L. Ross, 35, both of Friendsville, were found guilty of casting rays of light in a field while in possession of a loaded weapon. The judge placed them each on six months of unsupervised probation and imposed $270 fines. Ross was also sentenced to 30 days in jail, with all being suspended except seven days. The men had been charged by DNR police off Rt. 42 near Friendsville on Dec. 22, 1993.

ICY AND SNOW-COVERED ROADS, combined with white-out conditions, were the cause of a two-vehicle accident yesterday afternoon on Rt. 219, south of the Ben DeWitt Road, according to a report filed with Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry. Wendy Golliday, 23, Oakland, driving a Dodge Ram pickup, tried to avoid a collision with a tow truck that was attempting to pull a vehicle out of a ditch, when she lost control of her vehicle, skidded on into the southbound lane, and collided head-on with a Garrett County Roeds pickup driven by Harold Smith, 47, Deer Park. Golliday and two passengers were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, where they were treated and released following the 1:20 p.m. mishap.

Robert H. Speicher, 18, Accident, had his charge of casting rays of light in a field while in possession of a loaded weapon, placed on the stet docket, because of a plea agreement with the state's attorney's office. He had been cited by DNR police on Nov. 22, 1993.

DWI CASES

A number of DWI and/or DUI cases were heard in district court in the past few weeks.

Clyde Elmer Hetrick, 45, Md., had his DWI charge amended to a DUI charge. The judge continued sentencing until the defendant received an assessment by an addictions treatment center. He had been arrested for DWI on Oct. 2, 1993 by the Maryland State Police.

Blaine Franklin Yutzy, 28, Md., had a DWI charge amended to DUI. He was fined $350, given a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on one year of supervised probation for the offense. He had initially been arrested on Sept. 4, 1993 by state police.

Matthew Anthony Martz, 30, Md., was found guilty of DWI and handed a six-month suspended sentence, fined $550 and placed on 12 months of supervised probation. He had been charged with that offense on Dec. 27, 1993 by MSP.

Franklin Cornelius Davis, 38, Md., had his DWI charge amended to DUI. The judge imposed a $145 fine and ordered Davis to complete assessment by an addictions counseling center. He had been arrested by MSP on Dec. 24, 1993.

Delmas Duane Harris, 32, Md., was found guilty of DWI and handed a one-year suspended sentence. He was also fined $550 and placed on one year of su-

Grantsville Man Convicted Of DWI, Handgun Violations

Among the numerous cases heard in Garrett County District Court last week by Judge Ralph Burnett was one involving Russell C. Uphold, 37, Grantsville, who was found guilty of a handgun violation. He was sentenced to 60 days in jail, fined $450, and placed on 12 months of supervised probation for the offense.

An additional charge of DWI (driving while intoxicated) was amended to a DUI (driving under the influence of alcohol). For this conviction, Uphold was handed a 90-day suspended sentence for the DUI conviction, fined $250 and placed on one year of supervised probation.

He had been stopped for DWI by Maryland State Police on Oct. 3, 1993 and a subsequent search of the vehicle revealed a canvas bag containing a .22 magnum handgun and 103 bullets, resulting in his arrest.

In other district court news, Everette W. Morgan, 35, Accident, was found to be in violation of probation, stemming from an August 1992 arrest for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS). An 11-month, six-day sentence was reimposed by Judge Burnett, and Morgan's probation was revoked.

Douglas D. Hinebaugh, 28, Oakland, was found guilty of felony theft in last week's court proceedings. He was handed an 18-month jail sentence, with all being suspended except 90 days, fined $350, and placed on two years of supervised probation upon his release.

Garrett County sheriff's deputies had arrested Hinebaugh after he sold a stolen Yamaha four-wheeler, valued at approximately $1,250, to Robert Porter for $10.

Richard Mann, no age given, Germania, W.Va., was not prosecuted on an assault charge because the complainant, Junior R. Lewis, Oakland, declined to testify.

A harassment charge against Jean Jones, no age given, Terra Alta, W.Va., was not prosecuted at the request of the complainant, Clarissa Karcher, Oakland.

Cecil E. Stein, 38, Grantsville, had his battery case placed on the stet docket at the request of the complainant. He had been charged with the offense on Nov. 18, 1993 by Lucy E. Stein.

Also placed on the stet docket were charges against Rodney C. Swiger, 27, Oakland, for intoxication endangerment and malicious destruction of property. He had been charged with those offenses on Oct. 10, 1993.

David H. Upole Sr., 39, Oakland, was found guilty of battery. He was handed a 30-day jail sentence, fined $150 and placed on six months of unsupervised probation for the offense.

Upole had been arrested on Dec. 27, 1993 by sheriff's deputies after they had escorted Debra Upole to his residence to recover her personal belongings. The defendant reportedly approached a child who had accompanied Debra Upole and struck her on the back with his shoulder, resulting in his arrest.

In a related case, Debra Upole, 40, was not prosecuted for violating a protection order, because of insufficient evidence and on the request of the complainant, David H. Upole.

Probation before justice was granted to Nick Aponte, 22, Morgantown, W.Va., on a charge of possession of CDS paraphernalia. He was also fined $350 and placed on one year of unsupervised probation. A CDS possession charge was not prosecuted because of a plea agreement with the state's attorney's office.

A passenger in the vehicle, John W. Pearson, 23, also of Morgantown, was not prosecuted on either count because of the guilty plea of the other defendant.

The two men had been arrested as the result of "Operation Intersect," a drug interdiction program set up on Interstate 68 by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, in cooperation with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Maryland State Police.

According to court documents, after stopping Aponte's vehicle, officers observed Pearson place something in a clothes basket in the back seat. A subsequent search revealed a cassette tape cover containing suspected marijuana. Two marijuana cigarette butts, a trace of marijuana in the ashtray, and rolling papers were also found, resulting in their arrest.

Two Grantsville area men were convicted of assault, stemming from an Aug. 28, 1993 altercation on the property of Glenn G. and Dolores Sisler, near Grantsville.

Roy W. Bittinger, 65, and James H. Feist Sr., 41, were each given a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $350 and placed on 12 months of unsupervised probation by Judge Burnett.

Third Rabies Case For 1994 Is Reported

The Garrett County Health Department has announced the year's third laboratory confirmed case of rabies. The affected animal was a raccoon that was observed last Friday morning wandering around the outbuildings of a farm located on the Blue Ribbon Road. When the animal did not leave during the daylight hours, it was shot and submitted for testing.

A positive confirmation for the rabies virus was made by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Rabies Laboratory on March 12.

One individual has been advised to seek medical advice concerning post-exposure treatment, as he apparently handled a dog with his bare hands after the pet was possibly exposed to the disease. The dog was not vaccinated and will be destroyed.

All persons are reminded to take precautions when handling a pet after it comes into contact with a wild animal. The rabies virus, which is spread through the saliva of the infected animal, can survive for up to two hours on the fur of an exposed animal. Persons should always wear gloves when handling a possibly exposed pet, and should wash their hands thoroughly.

Local Holy Week activities for the ministerial group will include a traditional three-hour Good Friday service beginning at noon, April 1, at St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, and an Easter sunrise service at 6:30 a.m., April 3, at Garrett Memorial Gardens, Oakland.

THE BADGE OR THE BOW -- Acting in self-defense after decades of rampant rape of its resources costing tens of thousands of dollars, and as government funds for new acquisitions plummet, the Ruth Enlow Library has announced a crackdown on the few patrons who do not return materials, for the good of those who do. Library property, no matter how long overdue, can be returned with no penalty and no questions asked during "Amnesty Week," March 21-26, symbolized above by a yellow ribbon on the Grantsville branch sign. Violators spurning the one-time-only offer of clemency risk penalties ranging from library fines and suspension of borrowing privileges, to criminal and civil subpoenas served by such law officers as sheriff's deputy Jeff Green, pictured. On the other hand, Grantsville Librarian Kim Leshia, also pictured, is all smiles at the thought of wiping slates clean. And although materials damaged or permanently lost must still be paid for, the attendant fines will be waived. Library Director Emily Ferren invites patrons with special problems to meet her or any of the branch librarians personally. The most bashful can even use the book drops (for books and magazines only). "We only want our materials back," said Ms. Ferren, who added that modern computer systems now being phased in at the libraries will link overdue materials to specific violators and identify repeat offenders within seconds, in contrast to the conventional tedious "manual system." In last week's issue of The Republican, a story appeared about the Garrett County Board of Education. In it was stated that Lowell Leitzel, French teacher at Southern High School, supported the newly-adopted four-period day at that school. However, Leitzel actually voted against the idea and does not support it. The misunderstanding is regretted.

Also in the education board story, it was written that Hannah Sincell made the motion to set graduation day for June 12. In fact, the motion was made by Charlotte Sebold.

Friend then got out of the truck, and King drove to a relative's house to contact the police. The defendant was arrested several days after the alleged attack, and was later released after posting $1,000 bond, according to a sheriff's office spokesperson.

In another case involving battery charges, two Oakland men were arrested after an altercation at Highview Apartments.

Joseph W. Ashby, 19, and Dewayne E. Ashby, 39, were charged with battery after an March 8 altercation with Philip R. Coddington, 27. The two defendants apparently struck Coddington in the face with their fists while he sat in his vehicle.

All Must Participate...

After months of meetings, research, and discussion, the Garrett Countians for a Healthier Year 2000 Committee has reduced a list of over 300 national health concerns to six local priorities which will be addressed in the coming months and years.

The six priorities are as follows: alcohol and drug abuse, heart disease and stroke; HIV, sexually transmitted diseases, and family planning, maternal and infant health, the use of tobacco products, and unintentional injury. Certainly there are many other concerns and problems, but data shows that these are among the most serious, most critical health problems in Garrett County.

In a meeting of the committee Monday evening of this week, it was decided that the focus of intervention would be, in five of the six areas, directed at Garrett County's youth, the only exception being maternal and infant health. The committee members agreed that the level of success will be much greater if the intervention involves our young people who indeed represent the future of our society. If one learns and adopts a proper diet and exercise program at a young age, for example, he is far less likely to acquire heart disease or have a stroke as an adult. If one can be persuaded to avoid tobacco products as a youth, chances are much better that he will not become a smoker as an adult. If the level of sexual activity among our children can be reduced, the chances of acquiring HIV, a sexually transmitted disease, or an unwanted pregnancy will likewise be reduced.

The committee now has the rather awesome task of devising a means of intervention that will be successful. While education about the dangers of these various substances and activities remains a key component of this effort, education alone is simply not enough. The data has proven this. Simply knowing that tobacco and excessive use of alcohol is dangerous and harmful to one's body has done little or nothing to decrease the number of users. Unfortunately, in some categories the numbers are rising.

While we can't put our finger on the exact formula for success, we are convinced that this effort is going to have to be multi-faceted and involve literally every segment of society. Our schools cannot do it all. We need more participation by other agencies, civic organizations, hospitals, churches, youth organizations, and businesses. Most importantly, we need involvement and a far better effort by the parents of our youth, because substance abuse, poor diets, a lack of exercise, and the apparent absence of morals are all merely symptoms of problems characteristic of dysfunctional families and ineffective or destructive parenting.

It is hoped that, when the committee completes its task and attempts to begin really making a positive difference in our community, everyone will be willing to participate. Unless this happens, there will be little or no success, regardless of the merits of the plan.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Ever since the disastrous fire we've received tremendous care and help from the entire community. We don't know how to express our gratefulness. Yes, we've lost our home and business, but we've earned the most valuable thing in our life: not only the warm friendship but also the sincere acceptance by the community.

The fire was an accident and a bad surprise. However, all the help offered by all of you was another but good surprise for us. Too many thanks to express. Especially to Ralph and Lucy Burnett. We thank you so much. You offered the immediate accommodations which kept us from being homeless and we experienced a warm homey feeling and Jerry and Vicki Thaver we couldn't express enough thanks for help all these years, thank you! Vicki, Jerry and Janna and Madonna who helped furnish our new home and gave us clothes and jewelry. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder took us to Pittsburgh China town to shop for our personal needs. Mr. Jim Harvey took us to Cumberland and bought us new shoes. Bob and Amy Rudy and Ray Romano and Dee Ann bought us new clothes. Connie Margison offered free rent for our new home for awhile. Mr. and Mrs. Proudfoot and Mr. and Mrs. Hauser, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and Pine Grove Church of the Brethren offered monetary help. Thanks also to Barbara Pence, Adele Naylor, Clint Englander, and Jean, Phil, Bill and many, many, more friends. We don't even know their names offered clothes, household goods, TV, everything. John McEwen brought us a letter translated into Chinese already.

All this care and help makes us cry. We didn't cry when we lost our restaurant and home. But we couldn't help our tears when we received all this warm help. We can't speak English, but we experienced the sincere friendship and true love. We love Oakland and the whole community. Thank you! Thank you all! That is all we can say, our dear friends!

"Children Act Fast...So Do Poisons" is the theme of National Poison Prevention Week, which will be observed March 20-26 this year. Children between the ages of one and five are at greatest risk for unintentional poisoning.

Keeping this in mind, along with the fact that children learn by exploring and experimenting with the environment that surrounds them, we offer some tips for poison proofing homes and areas where children play. This information is based on suggestions from the staff of the Maryland Poison Center, which serves as a resource center for the Maryland Emergency Medical Services System.

To poison proof:

- Keep all products and medications in their original containers with labels.
- Keep all medications and potentially harmful products out of reach and locked in cabinets. Always use child restraint containers (safety lock caps).
- Keep Syrup of Ipecac in your home and the Maryland Poison Center phone number next to the bottle and next to all phones. Always call the Maryland Poison Center's 24-hour emergency number (410) 528-7701 or (800) 492-2414 before using Syrup of Ipecac.
- Kneel down and walk or crawl through your home looking for potential poisons. (Walking or crawling on your knees will give you a child's perspective.) Also look for small objects that infants and toddlers could choke on.
- Keep a list of potential and known poisonous products and plants and survey each room of the house for them. Many popular house and garden plants are considered poisonous and can produce symptoms ranging from minor to severe.
- Know which products to place Mr. Yuk stickers on and teach preschoolers and older children that Mr. Yuk means "No - do not touch."

Mr. Yuk stickers and informational brochures can be obtained by calling the Maryland Poison Center's non-emergency number (410) 706-8122 or by writing to and sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Poison, 20 N. Pine Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201.

To the Editor:

As a resident of Garrett County, I would like to salute John E. Hinebaugh's valiant effort to force a semblance of sanity into the fief-like governance of this clique-ridden county. It's truly amazing to me that after his Herculean effort on behalf of the failed Charter Home Rule initiative and subsequent vote - that would have brought "Open Government" to this county for the first time in living memory - that he would, at his stage of life, spend his precious time, effort and even his personal treasure on behalf of a populace that displays little more than indifference and apathy when it's time for them to show their mettle at the ballot box.

Let's hope his quixotic tilting at the county commissioner windbags will do some good.

Speaking of windbags: Was anyone who knows him surprised at Commissioner Groves' disingenuous statement to the Times News: "...it's somewhat of a mystery why he (Mr. Hinebaugh) filed the suit." Well, maybe we shouldn't be too hard on Elwood. Most things are a "mystery" to him. Such things as the appropriateness of an elected official using taxpayer dollars to further his own education, and why the voters of this county, and country, are fed up with "career politicians"!

Getting back to Mr. Hinebaugh's law suit - who, by the way, just happens to be one of the most honorable and reasonable men I have ever met - may I say his arguments and positions in his suit are absolutely correct and appropriate.

As a purchasing agent for a major corporation throughout my working career, I can say, without equivocation, that in the "real world" there is NO justification for Mr. Tousek's actions in the matter instigating the suit. In this age, anyone who writes a specification so tight it eliminates the competition of other highly qualified manufacturers is doing a disservice to the people who pay his salary. His motives must be called into question. He may, in fact, have his own agenda that does not embrace the best interests of the taxpayers of this county.

Voter indifference and apathy; career politicians and ineptitude, rampant greed, and special and vested interests are the enablers of acts such as this...mainly because too many of the "People" are just as big a failure at their "job" in our representative form of democracy as the people they allow, or maybe selected to represent them are at theirs.

Perhaps we do deserve one another!

Respectfully yours,
Ronald R. Rowan

The XVII Winter Olympics torch is extinguished. Now Lillehammer is just in the memories of the Olympians.

For the United States team, we congratulate them. They have won more medals than ever before. A result of hard work, sacrifice, and dedication. As the silver medalist, Nancy Kerrigan says, "This is hard work. Dreams won't get you here." I suggest the U.S. Department of Education should give memos to all our kids in school on how competition works.

For those who wonder how much money Kerrigan will make, that's not any of their business. We are living in a free-market society. I hope she'll make more than she ever wanted.

For CBS, which is looking forward to another night of high ratings, they should produce a movie named "The Club," starring (-----).

And for Tonya Harding, she can blame it on equipment, coach, the judges, the ice, or even the weather.

To the Editor:

The recent article regarding the teen health survey on the high risk behaviors that our teenagers are involved in should be a wake up call for the whole community. To see 25 percent of our high school students involved in smoking, 33 percent involved in the use of alcohol, and 60 percent in sexual intercourse is cause for concern.

Our typical response with these problems is, as the article indicated, to seek grants for more government money and more government programs. Unfortunately, this traditional approach fails to recognize the root cause for these problems.

The incidence of these activities is directly related to the absence of a moral foundation that children rely upon to make decisions about right and wrong. Essentially, these statistics are a reflection of a larger problem within our community that involves the breakdown in basic moral values. Conservative Garrett County is no different then the rest of the nation in this regard.

Since 1963, our educational community has removed the teaching of right and wrong from the curricula in our public schools. Spearheaded by a misguided notion that to do so conforms to the separation of church and state, traditional Christian morality and virtue have been replaced with "situational ethics." To those who are not familiar with this term, the following quote from the 7th grade health curriculum exemplifies its meaning.

"What is right for one person...is not necessarily right for another person," and "You're the only one who can figure out what is right and wrong for you." Is there any wonder that our teens grow up confused about what behavior is appropriate and what is not? Our traditional approach to health and sex education in the past 20 years has been an abysmal failure, and we are reaping the consequences. Values clarification has turned into values confusion.

The blame does not lie solely with our county's educators. Out of trust we as parents have sat back and allowed these changes to occur in the educational system. Certainly we can play a part in reversing them, whether we become personally involved in the education of our children, or through involvement in the local school board and its development of health curricula.

Business owners can become more aware of their impact on the community, both in the area of tobacco sales and the sale of alcohol, and respond by altering their marketing, advertising, and sales procedures. The time to be a responsible businessman has come. The Christian community can join together and support more abstinence and values based programs targeted at our local teens, both in the schools and through our churches. Perhaps the Christian community has let these kids down more than we think. We should all be out there actively promoting alternatives to what our children are learning outside of the home...

We don't need a government program to do this for us. The teaching of morality and values begins in the family. As families, we can and should be turning this problem around ourselves.

SCHOOL ENRICHMENT PROGRAM

by Brenda McCartney, Cherie Rettel, Sheila Russell, and Maureen Sharps

The school enrichment program is an instructional service provided to all elementary and combination schools in Garrett County. The program is modeled after Joseph Renzulli's research-based Enrichment Triad Model. Joseph Renzulli is a nationally recognized educator who has been instrumental in developing appropriate enrichment programs for students.

The triad model is based on three different types of activities. Type I enrichment activities are introductory activities which provide a springboard for further research in a particular area of interest. These Type I activities are primarily provided by the classroom teacher. Type II enrichment focuses on the development of higher level thinking processes which include critical thinking, problem solving, inquiry training, divergent thinking, and creative or productive thinking. Type II activities are designed to introduce students to more advanced kinds of studies. These activities are provided by both the classroom teacher and the school enrichment teacher. Type III enrichment consists of activities in which the student becomes an actual investigator of a real problem or topic by using methods or inquiry. Any student who displays high levels of interest, motivation, task commitment, or creativity may be referred to work with the school enrichment teacher on Type III activities.

Three school enrichment teachers serve 12 schools by providing resources to students in kindergarten through grade 5 or through grade 8 at the combination schools (Bloomington and Swan Meadow). At grades kindergarten through second, the school enrichment teacher serves as an advisor to the regular classroom teacher by sharing ideas and resources. At third grade, the school enrichment teacher provides direct instruction to all students on a weekly basis. Emphasis in third grade is focused on the development of thinking skills and research techniques through a variety of activities. At grades 4 and 5, and grades 6-8 at Bloomington and Swan Meadow, in addition to providing direct instruction in classrooms, school enrichment teachers work with students formally identified as talent pool participants.

An added component of the enrichment program being phased in is enrichment clusters. Enrichment clusters are high interest instructional activities provided by teachers, staff, administrators, and community members to fourth and/or fifth grade students. The students select an area of interest to be studied in-depth for five days for up to an hour and a half each day. There is a strong emphasis on hands-on-activities and the development of a polished finished product.

Any readers who would like additional information regarding the School Enrichment Program may contact their local school and request a copy of the School Enrichment Program of Study which gives a complete outline of the program.

FRIENDS OF THE RUTH ENLOW LIBRARY

by Sull McCartney
(Part 2 of 2)

In the United States, detective stories were popularized by writers like Earl Derr Biggers whose popular detective Charlie Chan first appeared in The House Without A Key in 1925 and Willard Huntington Wright who wrote under the pen name S.S. Van Dine. Philo Vance, the detective created by Wright in The Benson Murder Case (1926), was the most popular fictional detective of his era and is still mentioned in modern mysteries. These authors, like their English counterparts, adhered to the established rules of mystery writing. Wright actually codified these rules into a list of 20.

Dashiell Hammett was different. Hammett's books created what came to be known as the "hard boiled school" of crime fiction. Before Hammett, detectives asked questions and relied on their powers of observation and deduction to solve crimes. Hammett's detectives were just as apt to beat the truth out of a suspect. In The Maltese Falcon when Sam Spade drawled, "When I slap you, you'll take it and like it," Hammett set the tone for a truly American form of detective story. He took crime out of the drawing room and put it into the streets, which certainly fits the character of this country where there are more casualties from bar fights on a hot Saturday night than were suffered during all 116 years of the Hundred Years War. In novels like Red Harvest (1929), The Maltese Falcon (1930) and The Thin Man (1934) Hammett set a standard that has been widely imitated ever since. The most successful of following writers was probably Raymond Chandler, whose creation Philip Marlowe appeared in novels like The Big Sleep (1939).

The tensions of the Cold War following World War II had a marked affect on mystery novels. Spy novels became popular and stayed popular for 40 years. There has also been a definite trend toward novels of character with a crime or detection background. Current authors Elmore Leonard, James Lee Burke and Dick Francis are examples of this trend. Another recent development, since the 1970s, has been the introduction of female private detectives. Marcia Muller's Sharon McCone may have been the first.

Mysteries are so popular that detectives and locales defy listing. There are Indian detectives, American Indian detectives, Eskimo detectives and Australian Aborigine detectives. They come from everywhere.

Some of my current favorite authors are: Tony Hillerman, whose novels set on an Indian Reservation in the southwest have become very popular; Michael Pearce, who has written a detective series featuring a Welshman who is a British official in Cairo whose title is the Mamur Zapt; William Tapply, whose Brady Coyne novels always include flyfishing; Loren Estleman is the best of the current "hard boiled" writers in my estimation; Stuart Kaminsky, whose detective Toby Peters is a parody of a "hard boiled" detective; and maybe best of all, William McIlvanney, who has written three books set in Glasgow, Laidlaw, Strange Loyalties, and The Papers of Tony Veitch.

Delegate's Bill Would Aid Mine Reclamation Fund

District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards, along with Allegany County Delegate Betty Workman, recently sponsored a bill that would benefit land and water reclamation efforts made eligible for funding through the Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

Edwards explained that certain reclamation efforts would be allowed to use more federal coal fund monies coming into the state to replace water supplies.

Specifically, House Bill 1522 states, "Land and water eligible for reclamation expenditures under this title are those which were mined for coal, or which were affected by such mining, wastebanks, coal processing, or other coal mining processes and abandoned or left in an inadequate reclamation status prior to August 3, 1977, and lands and water made eligible through amendments to the Federal Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977."

The bill has been assigned to the House Environmental Matters Committee.

Two other coal mining related bills have also been co-sponsored by Edwards, one of which provides that the Maryland Department of Natural Resources would be the sole enforcement authority for sediment and erosion control of certain mining operations and abandoned mine reclamation projects.

Edwards stated that House Bill 1670 is simply an effort to "bring the authority under one roof." He noted that, currently, that authority lies within the Maryland Department of the Environment.

Finally, House Bill 1521 is an effort to include limited liability companies in the provisions of law relating to the licensure and regulation of open-pit mining operation. In other words, said Edwards, any officer of a corporation where a mine default occurs would not be able to obtain a coal mining permit anywhere else in the country.

In other news from the delegate's office, a bill (House Bill 1665) concerning Deep Creek Lake user fees has been introduced by Edwards that would alter the authority of the Department of Natural Resources to allow fees to be collected at Deep Creek Lake State Park for boat launching. Currently, the law specifies that such fees amy be collected at all Maryland parks except Deep Creek Lake State Park.

The fees collected would go into the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Maintenance and management Fund, according to Edwards.

Another bill with Edwards as the sole sponsor is one that would authorize the Garrett County Commissioners to establish a Garrett County Women's Commission either by ordinance or by resolution.

House Bill 1543 would also allow the county commissioners to take any additional action concerning the administration and operation of the women's commission they deem appropriate.

Maryland Could Be First To Ban Public Smoking

With an unprecedented number of tobacco bills (a total of 40) now circulating through the Maryland General Assembly, Maryland is poised to become the first state to ban smoking in the workplace, including bars and restaurants, by using occupational health and safety laws.

House Bill 120 would specifically prohibit smoking in the workplace and any enclosed public space, except when being used for private events.

Also on the board for review are bills that would ban most cigarette vending machines, raise the tax on tobacco, and place restrictions on retail businesses selling cigarettes to children.

House Bill 213 would prohibit the possession and use of tobacco by minors; HB 484 would raise the state cigarette tax by 25 cents a pack, to 61 cents; HB 625 would ban smoking at football stadiums, except in designated areas; Senate Bill 307 would regulate the sale or distribution of tobacco, by allowing the local jurisdictions to adopt tougher laws; SB 308 would ban cigarette vending machines in most places, except bars and tobacco shops; and SB 309 would increase fines on persons selling cigarettes to minors, make it illegal for children to buy or possess cigarettes, forbid the distribution of free cigarettes and coupons in public places, and provide for random inspections.

Proponents of the bills cite the fact that Maryland has the second highest cancer death rate in the country, as well as recent findings about the dangers of second-hand smoke.

State Sick Leave Bill Approved

A bill that would grant state employees who are new parents up to 30 days of sick leave to be with their newborn children has moved through the House of Delegates this week and is now headed for the Senate.

Up to 10 days would be granted to fathers who want to stay home to assist in the care of a newborn and, if the father was the primary caretaker of the child, up to 30 days could be granted.

Helmet Law Approved By Senate Comm.

In a 6-5 vote, the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee defeated a proposal that would have repealed the state's current law that requires motorcyclists to wear helmets.

The two-year-old law requires adult motorcycle riders be protected against head injuries by wearing a helmet. Motorcycle groups recently lobbied the legislature to repeal that law, saying it is too restrictive and takes away their freedom.

However, opponents argued that riders not wearing helmets are twice as likely to suffer head injuries, and medical costs are three times higher for them than for those who wear helmets.

House Rejects Under-Age Bill

The House Judiciary Committee, for the second year in a row, has defeated a bill that would have punished under-age drinkers by revoking their driving privileges.

The measure was proposed by Governor Schaefer and was supported by parents and groups against drunk driving. Reports indicate, however, that committee members said they were not comfortable linking driving privileges with offenses not involving motor vehicles.

Specifically, the bill would have provided for minors to have had their licenses suspended for 30 days or longer for being in possession -- whether they were driving or not -- of an alcoholic beverage.

Reportedly, officials of the Maryland Department of Juvenile Services stated that, had the law been in effect, at least 866 minors would have temporarily lost their driving privileges.

House Approves Execution Method

The House of Delegates last week overwhelmingly approved a bill that will change Maryland's method of execution from gas to lethal injection, despite the objections of some legislators that capital punishment has been made too easy to approve.

The Senate approved a similar bill with only minor differences that are expected to be reconciled, according to reports.

Maryland is the last state to use a gas chamber for executions. A total of 24 other states have changed their execution method to lethal injection.

Comm. Rejects Adoption Bill

The House Judicial Proceedings Committee this week killed a measure introduced by the Schaefer Administration that would have made it easier for parents to adopt children. Specifically, the bill would allow a child to be adopted with the consent of a single biological parent if the second parent has had no contact with the child for at least a year.

Under current state law, both parents are required to give their consent.

Supporters of the bill reportedly stated that situations occur where parents who have been granted temporary guardianship of a child quickly form a bond with that child, only to then be told that the second biological parent has been found and does not consent to the adoption.

Opponents feel the measure subverts the rights of the father.

Oakland Mayor, Council Members Are Re-Elected

The Oakland town election was held Monday, with the current mayor, town council members, and treasurer all being re-elected to their posts.

Asa McCain, who received 60 votes, will serve another term as mayor, and three council persons - Harold Cannon, Peggy Jamison, and Mary Lou Stemple - were re-elected by 60, 66, and 64 votes respectively.

Blair Glass will serve a second term as treasurer, having received 65 votes.

There were a few write-in candidates for mayor, according to a town hall spokesperson, but each received no more than one vote.

Kasemeyer Enters Gubernatorial Race

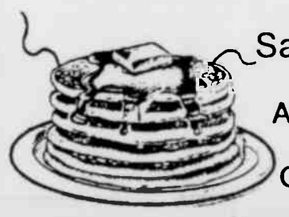
Ed Kasemeyer, a Democrat who served eight years in the General Assembly as a state senator and delegate, announced his candidacy for governor last week, stating that he is promoting a "new agenda" for Maryland that will bring state government into partnership with communities.

"I enter this campaign to challenge the old politics and go beyond regional divisiveness to develop a consensus form of governance," said Kasemeyer. "I intend to offer a candidacy that puts Maryland, its citizens, our basic institutions, and communities first. I am going to ask voters to think anew about issues in setting a new agenda for the state."

The new approach starts with the financing of his campaign, he said. "For the political process to work, we must earn the public's trust. Nothing is more damaging to improving the quality of our lives than mistrust of those in power. If the public believes a politician sold himself or herself to get there, the authority of the office is diminished," he observed.

"I want my campaign to build trust in communities all over Maryland, and I want to follow up on that trust by making a commitment that I will not take any PAC (political action committee) money," Kasemeyer said.

"It is also Kasemeyer's intention to participate in the state public financing program which will limit campaign expenditures to under $1 million.



Kasemeyer has a diverse background in business, government, and community service. The Howard County resident has owned a small real estate firm and worked for a large financial institution. He served as president of the Howard County Chamber of Commerce for two years. For 15 years, he played an active role in the Howard County Youth Program, coaching youngsters in baseball leagues.

In terms of public service, he served as chairman of the Democratic Central Committee in Howard County, and eight years in the General Assembly as a senator and state delegate.

His legislative iniatives included passage of a bill aimed at lowering the cost of home buying by exempting part of the sale price from the state transfer tax. He also took a lead in the passage of legislation that increased insurance benefits for mental health coverage. He served on the House Economic Matters and Senate Finance Committees.

Number Of Fire Deaths Declines To Record Low

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele reports that fire deaths in Maryland dropped to a record low during 1993.

According to the fire marshal, 80 people died in fires throughout the state during the past year, which was the lowest number of fire deaths ever recorded and the fewest deaths recorded since 1989. The 80 fire deaths represents a 14.9% decrease from the 94 fire deaths recorded in 1992.

During the past year, the highest percentage of fire deaths, 20.0%, were the result of fires that were heating related. There were 16 heating-related fire deaths in 1993, which was a 60% increase over the 10 such fire deaths reported during 1992.

The number of fire deaths resulting from fires caused by careless smoking continues to decrease. There were 14 smoking related fire deaths in 1993, which was a 17.6% decrease from the 17 smoking related fire deaths reported in 1992, and less than half the number reported in 1990. Last year marked the second year in a row that careless smoking was not the most frequent cause of fatal fires.

Baltimore City recorded 34 fire deaths last year, or 42.5% of all fire deaths in the state. The 34 fire deaths represents a 24.4% decrease from the 45 fire deaths recorded in 1992.

More than one-third or 28 of the fire deaths were the result of fires which originated in the living room area, while 10 or 12.5%, of the fire deaths resulted from fires which started in the bedroom.

Children who were 15 years old or younger accounted for 33.8% of all fatal fire victims in 1993. Once again, the very young accounted for a disproportionate number of the fire death victims in the state. The number of victims who were less than 7 years of age totalled 22 and represented approximately 27.5% of all fire death victims for the year.

Consistent with previous years, the majority of fire deaths resulted from residential structure fires; 67 or 83.8% in 1993, 77 or 81.9% of all fire deaths in 1992, and 86 or 86.9% in 1991.

While the total number of fire fatalities declined in 1993, there was an increase of 38% in the number of fire deaths occurring in residences where there were no smoke detectors present. Causing great concern to Gabriele is the fact that 29 victims, or 39.7% of all fatal structure fire victims, died in structures without smoke detectors.

Most of the fire deaths last year resulted from fires that occurred during the late night and early morning hours. In 1993, more than one-half of the fire deaths resulted from fires that started between midnight and 6 a.m.

More fire deaths occurred during January, April, and November than in other months during 1993. There were 13 fire deaths reported in April, 12 in January, and nine in November.

Janet Tasker Is Bausch And Lomb Employee Of Year

Janet Tasker, Final Sample Inspection Group leader, was chosen as Bausch and Lomb Employee of the Year for 1993. Butch Sumpter, vice president of manufacturing and former plant manager, announced the award at a recent general employee meeting.

Mrs. Tasker has been with Bausch and Lomb for over 19 years and has held various inspection jobs with the Quality Department. She is currently a final inspection supervisor.

Employees are nominated and selected for this honor by their peers through a formal recognition process. Mrs. Tasker was nominated as Employee of the Month eight times during 1993 and was chosen Employee of the Quarter during the third quarter of 1993. She was nominated for her contributions to the assurance of quality and for her wide knowledge of the process. She assisted engineering on the Machine Vision Inspection Project with specifications and software development. She also devoted many extra hours in audit preparation to ensure the plant's successful ISO certification.

"Janet shows good leadership qualities, promotes team work, has a very pleasant disposition, and is always willing to assist others," stated a B&L spokesman.

As employee of the year, Mrs. Tasker will receive an extra week of vacation and a trip for two to any destination in the continental United States.

Tree Planting Funds Available

Cost-sharing funds are currently available under the Agriculture Conservation Program (ACP), the Forestry Incentive Program (FIP), and the Stewardship Incentive Program (SIP) to assist landowners in planting trees, according to Michael Kozier of the Garrett County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Kozier said that cost sharing under these programs is generally necessary because landowners often cannot afford to make the long-term investment needed to establish and maintain timber crops. Tree planting and timber stand improvement are the two practices that are offered in this county, he said.

"These programs help increase the nation's supply of forest products by encouraging private, non-industrial forest landowners to plant trees on suitable open lands or cut-over areas, and to perform timber stand improvement work for production of timber and other related forest resources," Kozier said.

Technical assistance for these programs is provided by the Maryland DNR Forestry Division. To sign up or request additional information, landowners should contact the Garrett County ASCS Office at 334-1901 or the Md DNR forester at 334-3296.

GIVING THANKS at a special dinner Monday evening for all of the support of the Garrett Community College men's basketball team were George Hilton, right, and Wes Tubbs, co-captains of the team. The Lakers are now in Danville, Ill., and will participate in the Division II Junior College National Championships for the next three days. Hilton and Tubbs expressed their appreciation to their coaches, fans, college officials, and the local businesses who have supported the team this season. Among the business persons at the dinner was former Laker Rob Michael, of Rob Michael State Farm Insurance, who presented a $500 donation to the team to help defray the cost of their trip to the national tourney. The Lakers, who are 27-5, won both the Maryland JUCO and Region XX titles, the first ever in any sport at GCC. They will play Joliet CC at 4 p.m. local time today and then meet two of the other top eight teams in the nation in games Friday and Saturday. Tubbs, an All-JUCO and All-Region XX selection, is leading the Lakers in scoring with over 19 points per game, while Hilton is averaging over 10 points per outing. Other top scorers for Garrett and their averages are: Oliver Jones, 16.1, Shane Scott, 15.4, and Jermaine Jones, 11.4. The other six teams in the national tournament are: Mercer (N.J.), Brown-Mackie (Kan.), Iowa Lakes (Iowa), Parkland (Ill.), SUNY-Alfred State, and two-time defending champion Owens Tech (Ohio). Also in the above photo are Dennis Gibson, head coach, left, and Dave Martin, assistant coach.

Lakers Hand Wildesen Double Win In This Debut As Coach

The debut of Ed Wildesen as head coach of the Garrett Community College baseball team was a successful one, as the Lakers swept a doubleheader from Prince George's Community College Tuesday afternoon, 5-1 and 5-2, at Largo.

The Lakers, who have had almost no outside practice because of wintery weather, recorded a total of 24 hits, only two fielding errors, and three Garrett pitchers yielded a total of just four walks.

Neil Bailey allowed no PG hits in the first four innings of the opener and then gave way to Derek Griffith, who gave up just four hits and struck out three batters.

The Lakers took a 1-0 lead in the first inning, added two runs in the second, and two more in the sixth. Todd Blackburn led the way with a pair of doubles, while Derek Namack and Hakim Edwards each went two-for-three and scored twice.

Chris Divine recorded two of the Owls' four hits and also scored their only run.

The Lakers put the second game away early by scoring four runs in the top of the first inning and adding an insurance run in the second.

Aaron Cook led off Garrett's first with a walk, Darren Godby followed with a single, and Blackburn loaded the bases with a single. Mike Crosby followed with a two-run double and Sam Alvaro capped the inning with a two-run single.

Bill Wilcox went the distance on the mound, as he yielded four hits, struck out five, and allowed just one walk.

Namack accounted for all but one of the Owls' hits, as he went three-for-three.

"Needless to say, I am very pleased with our opener," stated Wildesen, who left as assistant coach at Southern High School and head coach of the Garrett County American Legion team to replace Lawrence Nesselrodt at GCC. "We have only been outside a couple of times, and that was just to hit some grounders and flies in the parking lot. To have only two errors, allow just four walks, and hit the ball as well as we did was pretty amazing."

Because of weather conditions the schedule for the Lakers this coming week is tentative. They are slated to play their home opener next Wednesday against Potomac State College.

Big Brothers, Sisters Annual Bowl-A-Thon Set

The Garrett County Branch of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of the Alleghenies will hold its fifth annual Bow For Kids' Sake at the Par-Matt Lanes on April 16. The time for individual/team bowling is from 1 to 4:30 p.m. and the Corporate Tournament will begin at 5 p.m.

Bowl For Kids' Sake is a bowl-a-thon that raises funds to support Big Brothers/Big Sisters services in the community. Last year the event raised over $12,000, according to Dan Seib, coordinator of the local agency, who added that this year's goal is $14,000. All funds raised stay in Garrett County, he said, and are used to further the services of Big Brothers/Big Sisters. League and non-bowlers can help by signing up sponsors, and then taking part in the festivities.

Little bowling skill is required, because everyone is guaranteed to score at least 100 pins. Pledge sheets are located at Par-Matt Lanes or persons may call the local office at 334-3591 or 1-800-400-0735 for information.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters is a youth-serving organization that matches adults with children from primarily single-parent homes. Sixteen percent of Garrett County homes are single-parent homes. The agency provides assistance to these parents by matching a child with a special friend or Big

Title Shot For SHS Girls Taken Away By Joppatowne

The third trip to the state championships for one of Don Stemple's varsity girls' basketball teams did not prove to be a charm, as the Rams were edged, 53-50, in a Maryland Class 1A semifinal contest Friday evening against Joppatowne.

With the recent return of last year's area Player of the Year Carrie Newcomb after several weeks of being sidelined with injuries, the outstanding play of sophomore Emily Friend, and steady, consistent performances by the rest of the starting line-up, it appeared that this just might be the year for the Rams, who took a 17-3 record and a 14-game winning streak into the tournament, played at the University of Maryland, Baltimore Campus.

And it appeared during Friday's game that the Rams would indeed reach Saturday's title game, as they jumped out to a 10-0 lead, were ahead by as many as 14 points in the second quarter, and led by eight points midway through the fourth quarter.

However, some missed free throws, turnovers, and critical last-minute shots from the floor that just would not fall allowed the Mariners to get back into the game and take the final lead in the last 20 seconds.

Southern held a 21-12 lead at halftime, but the Mariners seized the momentum in the third quarter, as they scored 12 of the first 14 points of that period and moved into the lead for the first time, 24-23, at the 4:55 mark.

The Rams regained the lead by the end of the quarter and went into the final stanza with a 37-34 advantage. They built the lead to eight points, 47-49 and 48-40, with less then four minutes remaining.

Then Joppatowne, led by the hot shooting of Santae Boyd and Takesha Holly, recorded the next 10 points. A three-pointer by Boyd with about one minute remaining put the Mariners on top, 50-48.

Newcomb knotted the score at 50 with a pair of free throws, but Holly sealed the win for Joppatowne with three foul shots in the final 20 seconds.

The Rams had several opportunities during that last 20 seconds to score, both from the floor and at the foul line, but they missed the mark and were then forced to foul.

Leading the Rams' scoring were Newcomb and Friend, who each finished with 18 points. Angela Shafer added seven points.

Boyd pumped in 27 points to lead the Mariners' offense, while Erica Adams contributed 10 points.

The Rams were outrebounded by the taller, stronger Mariners, 45-23, with 6-1 Brandi Barnes grabbing 14 rebounds to go with her six blocked shots. Holly was credited with 13 rebounds while Newcomb led the Rams with nine.

The Rams, who led the area in foul shooting with a 70 percent effectiveness rate, did not have a particularly good evening at the line, from which they converted 16 of 28 shots. The Mariners made good on 12 of 18 attempts.

It was the 18th win in 21 games for the Mariners, who advanced to the championship game on Saturday, which they lost to Easton, 66-50.

Brother or Big Sister. The staff supervise the "matches" which provide guidance and support for the children. "The friendships developed through this one-to-one relationship can make a big difference in the lives of these children," Seib said. "The agency has a real need for adult volunteers or "Bigs" who could share some laughs, some smiles and some time with a child."

The Bowl For Kids's Sake is the major fund-raising event of the agency for the year. It is an event that is held by Big Brother/Big Sister programs all over the U.S. and Canada. It is endorsed by the Professional Bowlers Association and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

"This event is the lifeblood of Big Brothers/Big Sisters," Seib said. "We raised 85 percent of our funds for 1993 from the Bowl For Kids Sake."

Big Brothers/Big Sisters also offers a corporate sponsorship for companies or organizations that wish to contribute as a group. Persons may call the local office for more information.

The Picture Of Health

Becoming A New Mother Was Really Frightening.

But Today My Picture Speaks For Itself

There are very few things in life that can compare with the joy and excitement of giving birth. At least that's the way Cathy Clocker feels. Cathy gave birth to her first child, Anna at Garrett County Memorial Hospital last July.

Like many new mothers, Cathy was frightened about caring for her newborn and herself after she returned home. That is exactly why the hospital created the Parent Helpline- a telephone line that is available to the parents of newborns 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The Parent Helpline is answered by the obstetric nurses who either respond or refer the caller to their doctor. Cathy has grown very fond of the obstetric nurses.

Now that Anna is almost eight months old, she doesn't call as much. As she looks back on her childbirth experience, she offers nothing but praise for the staff at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Because of them, both Cathy and Anna Clocker are a picture of health....

If you have any questions about newborn care, call (301) 334-2155, ext. 320.

"We're out to change the attitude that math isn't fun," Dr. Priselac said. For more information about the math program, persons may contact her at 387-3045.

Another topic discussed by Dr. Priselac involved a Heritage Tourism Conference, set for 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 22, at the Holiday Inn of Historic Cumberland, located on South George Street, Cumberland. The conference, provided cooperatively by Garrett Community College, ACC, Appalachian Tourism Research and Development Center, Mon-Valley Tri-State Leadership Academy and West Virginia University's Division of Forestry, is designed to open areas of knowledge and take tourism across state lines, she said. It would be of special interest to small business-types who want to know more about tourism in the tri-state area. The cost of the conference is $55, and interested persons may call ACC's Center of Continuing Education Registration Office at (301) 724-7700, ext. 341.

Also during Tuesday evening's meeting, Dr. Herman announced this year's speaker for GCC's commencement, set for May 21, will be Garrett County District Court Judge Ralph M. Burnett.

ACADEMIC REPORT

Dr. Mitchell reported the college's new curriculum for 1994. GCC's Human Resources Program will include two new courses: Law Enforcement and Social Services Assistant. Both courses will be 30-credit certificate programs. Mitchell expressed hope that these two new programs will aid in additional recruitment for the college.

She also discussed a faculty-endorsed "Academic Honesty Plan" that will focus on removing opportunities and situations that contribute to cheating, plagiarism, and other forms of academic dishonesty.

Dr. Herman noted there is a "growing national problem with students not always being honest." He commended the faculty for "taking a stand' against academic dishonesty.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Ted Along, dean of administration at GCC, announced the college's cash flow has remained consistent with what had been projected for Fiscal Year 1993. A short-term borrowing agreement had been satisfied and no more were anticipated for the remainder of the fiscal year.

He also discussed the monthly expenditure statement for February and reported it is "on-line percentage-wise."

Along had been asked by the board to look into a deficit incurred by the college's bookstore and cafeteria. He noted that over the past several years both operations accumulated deficits that were difficult to pinpoint. After much study, he recommended the board forgive the debts. The board members voted to take action on the matter at the next meeting.

POLICY ON CHILDREN

Dean Herman spoke to the board about a new administrative policy at the college involving children on campus. He noted parents, whether employees or students, sometimes confront unforseen child care emergencies and the college, within limitations, wants to be understanding when such emergencies arise. However, the policy states, "...college employees and students cannot be permitted to make a regular practice of bringing their children to the campus site so they can manage their routine work or school responsibilities."

Herman explained parents will be made aware of the policy, and disruptive children will be asked to leave. There are times, he noted, children may visit the campus on an exceptional basis, especially when overriding extenuating circumstances interfere with normal child care. The presence of children will be subject to the following conditions:

-- At all times, children must be under appropriate adult supervision.

-- Children may not disrupt the learning, business, or professional environment of the college.

-- Unless as part of a recognized GCC activity under the supervision of a designated college official, children may not use GCC's parking areas, roadways, or gymnasium as play areas for riding bicycles, for skating, or for other recreational purposes, and they may not occupy or use areas of the college such as the technical center, the computer classrooms or systems, or any other such areas which may pose a health or safety risk or which contain expensive, fragile, or sensitive equipment.

CREDIT TUITION

Also during Tuesday evening's meeting, Dr. Herman noted the need to raise GCC's tuition costs for 1995. Based on findings from an analysis of the current funding situation, Herman said conservative estimates indicate tuition should be increased by $4 per credit hour, across the board, for in-county, out-of-county, and out-of-state students. The board of trustees voted to accept this increase.

A change in the policy on refunds of the registration fee was another topic discussed by the board. In the past, if a student dropped a course, the tuition fee was refundable, but college fees were not. It was suggested to the board to change the policy to refund student fees on a per credit basis (if a student pays $4 per credit hour, he or she will get $4 per credit hour back if a course is dropped) within an allowable refund period. An increase in the standard registration fee, however, was raised from $10 to $15 for the 1995 school year.

Dr. Herman expressed his reluctance to the increased costs, but stated the institution does not make recommendations like this lightly, and said he wished GCC was in an environment where state funding and support was greater. He also believes most students accept the increases and are willing to pay more rather than have the quality of education decline.

REVISED HIRING PROCEDURES

The final item discussed at the board of trustees' meeting was a proposed amendment of GCC's hiring procedures. An Organization and Salary Committee recommended a policy to grant credit for experience and credentials when hiring new people, to attempt to balance fairness to employees.

According to Dr. Herman, the college's financial situation has improved over the past several years, and salaries have increased. GCC is now in a better position to be more competitive for personnel, and, according to the president, the existing hiring system is too confining and results in too much inequity.

The new hiring policy states that GCC will "...permit placement on the salary scale based on credentials and experience..." Current employees also will be permitted to apply to the O&S for consideration of prior experience and credentials.

The next board meeting is April 19.

forms to be filled out describing the animal(s). They will then, upon receiving the information, send inspectors to the Class B Dealers Kennels and laboratories to check.

We are also contacting the Humane Societies in those areas to check. Anyone losing a pet this past year can, if interested, receive a form by calling 746-5725.

Unless we have people making a big effort to catch these people we, the Humane Society, cannot do it alone.

We need people who are retired or unemployed to watch for persons - even children, picking up animals. They may be driving slowly where animals are in pens, tied to dog houses, or in front yards unattended.

Many of these people make a pretense to knock on doors and if no one answers on the way back to their vehicle, mostly a pick-up, van, or panel truck, they pick up the pet and leave.

Also dogs running on the streets or along roadsides are easy prey.

These pets can be sold for pets, but according to the Humane Society of the United States, most times they are sold for experimental purposes in laboratories.

Take down license tags numbers. This is the best way to catch these people. We also need color and make of vehicle.

Even if these people act like they are checking tires, or something about the vehicle, get the above and immediately call the State Police or Sheriff's Department. Please help us and the animals and the people taking them.

It can be as heartbreaking for the animals taken from their home and fanuly and it is for the family losing their pet.

Thank you,
Sherry Friend, President

One Million State Returns In; Standard Deduction Error Noted

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said his office has received one million state income tax returns so far out of the 2.2 million expected with the April 15th filing deadline one month away. This includes the nearly 60,000 state returns that have been filed electronically by commercial tax preparers - about twice the number of electronic filings received at this time last year.

"The filing pace is picking up, and one of the most frequent errors occurring right now involves the standard deduction," Goldstein said. Maryland's standard deduction is 15% of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income with minimum and maximum amounts, depending on the taxpayer's single or joint filing status.

The comptroller urged taxpayers to be careful when completing the standard deduction worksheets in the Maryland tax booklet instructions. "We've tried to reduce the math involved with worksheets to help taxpayers determine their standard deduction easily," Goldstein said.

About 61% of Maryland income tax returns claim the standard deduction.

The comptroller said taxpayers are committing another frequent error by neglecting to round numbers on their state forms.

"Remember to round all dollar figures you enter on the form and write as neatly as possible in blue or black ink. Rounding and using blue or black ink will cut down on math errors and help make sure our data imaging equipment will process your return accurately and speed up your refund check," Goldstein said.

Figures from W-2's and other documents which end with 50 cents or higher should be rounded up to the next higher dollar when entering them on the Maryland income tax form. Figures of 49 cents or less should be rounded down to the next lower dollar. Taxpayers should enter only whole dollar amounts, not using dollar signs, commas or decimal points with double zeros.

"Remember: any mistake will only slow down the processing of your refund check. So please be careful," Goldstein said.

The comptroller said that taxpayers can also speed the processing of their tax returns by using only one staple to attach the W-2 and other papers to the tax return and by using the envelope provided in the tax instruction booklet.

He noted that state income tax refunds are currently averaging $387. About 70% of Maryland taxpayers receive refunds.

All 19 Maryland taxpayer service offices offer free state taxpayer assistance Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Extra hours of tax help to be offered between now and the April 15th filing deadline are listed on the back of the state tax booklet.

The offices will be open on Good Friday, April 1, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. for full taxpayer assistance. The offices will also remain open on Saturday, April 2, and Saturday, April 9, from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. In addition, the offices will offer telephone assistance from 5 p.m. - 7 p.m. on Monday, April 4, and Monday, April 11. On deadline day, Friday, April 15, all Maryland taxpayer service offices will be open from 8 a.m. - 7 p.m.

"We'll even complete your Maryland income tax return free of charge if you bring a completed federal return and all W-2 statements to one of our offices," Goldstein said.

The addresses and telephone numbers of all Maryland taxpayer service offices are hsted on the back of the state tax booklet and in most local telephone directories. The statewide toll-free number for free state income tax assistance is 1-800-MD TAXES. The statewide toll-free number for refund inquiries is 1-800-218-8160.

Kimberly Rosenberry, Stephen Friend Exchange Vows In May Ceremony

Kimberly Ann Rosenberry and Stephen Douglas Friend were united in marriage May 29, 1993. The double-ring ceremony took place at St. Peter the Apostle Catholic Church, Oakland, with the Rev. Father Martin Feild and the Rev. Hal Rotruck officiating. The organist was Mercella Kerins and the vocalist was Jane Nolan. The unity candle was lit by Kimberly and Stephen, and their mothers lit the side candles.

The bride is the daughter of Charles and Verla Rosenberry, Oakland. Mr. Friend is the son of Audrey and Brenda Friend, Swanton.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and was given in marriage by her parents. The bride was attired in a long white satin Sweetheart designer gown with an off the shoulder neckline trimmed with cutout Alencon lace trimmed with pearls, tapered satin sleeves with a basque waistline. The back was trimmed with pearl buttons in a candy box bow with a full train trimmed with Alencon cutout lace. She wore a headpiece and veil of pleated charmoose and aurora borealis crystals which were designed and created by Karen Donahue, the bride's aunt and godmother. Along with her bouquet, she carried an antique lace white linen handkerchief given to her by a family friend, Helen Wagner, of Oakland.

Zuckerman's Works Featured At GCC In Art Exhibit

by Ron Skidmore

An exhibition by famous Maryland artist Michael Zuckerman titled, "Forty Years in the Studio," will be featured in the Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery at Garrett Community College through March 25.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday - Thursday and weekends during special events. A reception for the artist was held Mar. 12.

The exhibit presents a Garrett County artist's around-the-world discourse from the 1950's into the 1990's: wood, stone, bronze, steel and terra-cotta; acrylic, oil, ink, pencil and crayon; photograph, print and the written word. This retrospective of Mr. Zuckerman's artwork also celebrates the career of the artist and art instructor: GCC's first instructor of art, from 1971 to 1979.

Born in Englewood, N.J. in 1932, Mr. Zuckerman had an early interest in art and won the arts prize in his graduating class in 1950 at the Holderness School in New Hampshire. He attended Bard College and Columbia University from 1950 to 1952 and then went to Korea in 1953, where he studied through an art correspondence course from the University of California.

After some travel in Japan, he returned to the United States in 1955 to study with renowned artist George Grosz at the Arts Students League in New York City. In 1956, he attended the University of Mexico where he studied painting with Diego Rivera, famous Mexican revolutionary artist.

In 1957, he travelled to Baltimore and was appointed to the Reinhart Graduate School of Sculpture and also studied at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D. C. In 1962, he won the Peabody Foundation Sculpture Award and received a BFA degree at the Maryland Institute of Art.

He continued his career with exhibitions in New York and Miami and worked in Florence, Italy, with notable sculptors from 1963-1967. After settling in Garrett County, the artist continued to be prolific with exhibitions in many major galleries, including the Reinhart School of Sculpture 75th Anniversary Exhibition in 1971, and the Baltimore Museum of Art Traveling Exhibition-"Five Maryland Artists" in 1974-75.

With an expansive artistic track record, Mr. Zuckerman's work has appeared on television and exists in numerous public and private collections from Cumberland to Baltimore, New York and abroad. His work has been praised by artists and critics: "Artist commands his material in full . . . with dynamic perception," noted Umberto Baldinni of The Uffizzi Gallery of Art in Florence, Italy.

Italian journalist Scrivianni called him "a living artist, who sees the reality of every day. . . not fantasy, nor symbols of terror. He has overcome the years of uncertainty."

The Bausch & Lomb Gallery has also extended a special thanks to Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Giaritta, the Honorable and Mrs. Fred A. Thayer and Michael Logsdon for loaning Zuckerman artwork to the exhibition.

PENN ALPS PRESENTS ITS STORY - Approximately 80 members of the Friends of Penn Alps attended a dinner March 5, hosted by the Penn Alps Restaurant, Grantsville. Following the meal, a slide program was presented by Jack Dueck, Penn Alps administrator. The program told of the 35-year history of Penn Alps, as well as projects and plans for the future. Five of the original board members were present. Pictures from the past as well as articles from the New York Times and Baltimore Sun were also on display. Rev. Alan Birkby provided musical entertainment.

Both defendants were released from police custody after each posted a $500 bond.

In other sheriff's office news, a Columbia woman was arrested on several charges following an investigation into a breaking and entering at the Youghiogheny Mountain Resort. Patricia A. Frank, 37, was charged with storehouse breaking and entering, misdemeanor theft, and shop breaking and stealing.

Frank is accused of breaking into the summer residence of Melvin E. Santmyer, according to the report.

A Cumberland woman was arrested for DWI (driving while intoxicated) on March 12. Margaret B. McWhirter, 59, was stopped at 10 p.m. on Rt. 135 near the Loch Lynn intersection after an anonymous caller told police that she was operating her vehicle in an erratic manner.

A record check of McWhirter revealed that her license had been suspended in Maryland as well. Officer C. Nolan made the arrest and charged her accordingly.

Four bench warrants were issued for the arrest of Scott E. Kahl, Oakland. He is accused of failing to pay fines of $20, $25, $50, and $375 into Garrett County District Court, according to the report.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Dominick J. Pisano, 50, McHenry. Pisano apparently failed to appear in district court to face a traffic charge of driving with a suspended license.

Shirley V. Johnson, 45, Tunnelton, W.Va., was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant for failure to appear in district court. She was to have been in court on March 9, according to the report.

Arts Festival

lowed by a dinner prepared by Martin Heise.

Tickets for the gala event are $30 per person, and party-goers will be encouraged to wear "tropical" garb in celebration of the end of a long winter, organizers said.

An ever-popular offering will take the stage July 6-9 as local actors undertake a Neil Simon play. Lost in Yonkers, directed by Frances Acton, is scheduled to be performed each night beginning at 8 p.m. Local talent has traditionally attracted large audiences, and GLAF organizers expressed their hope to see packed houses for this year's comical presentation.

The Mini-Stars of Broadway will be next on the season schedule, as children aged 8 to 18 years from the Civic Light Opera of Pittsburgh will perform famous songs and dances from popular Broadway shows. The Mini-Stars are set to perform on the GCC lawn on July 15 at 8 p.m.

Shakespeare On Wheels will roll into the county on July 22 and 23 for an outdoor performance of Hamlet. The lawn performance of the famous play will be admission-free, and audience members will be able to relax in the outdoors atmosphere, Stemple said.

The renowned percussion ensemble of West Virginia University will bring its steel band corps to the GCC stage on July 30. The show will offer the unique sounds and tones produced on molded steel drums as the accomplished group performs several well-known works. The show will begin at 8 p.m.

Because GLAF audiences have asked for more theatre, a third theatrical event will take place on August 3-6 as the Maryland Traveling Repertory Theatre will present Broadway Bound. The play, written by Neil Simon, is suitable for the whole family. Each performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the GCC auditorium.

A return of a favorite musical group will take place on August 13. Dear Friends, a resident ensemble of the University of Pittsburgh's Stephen Foster Memorial, will present music from America at the turn-of-the-century with "Come to the Fair." The music will begin at 8 p.m. on the GCC stage.

The yearly classical music series of GLAF will this year take place over two weekends, scheduled for August 18 and 19, and August 25 and 26.

"These concerts will afford local audiences some of the finest music in the world," said Jim Harvey, GLAF president. "The unmatched expertise of these musicians is truly evident with every note. And no where can audiences be treated to such wonderful music for a ticket price of $7."

Erick Friedman, renowned violinist and music professor at Yale University, will again serve as musical director, with Garrett County native Kathryn Sincell serving as executive director. This season will feature the talents of Friedman and his duet partner, Jesse Levine, a world-celebrated violist. The two will perform Mozart's Symphonie Concertante on Thursday, Aug. 25. Other composers' works to be interpreted will be those by Brahms, Chausson, Dvorak, and Beethoven.

An original composition by Neal Corwell, commissioned composer, will be presented on Friday, Aug. 19, and Bach's well-known Brandenburg Concerto #4 will be played on Friday, Aug. 26, with a full orchestra of New York City musicians. Handel's Concerto Grosso and Barber's Serenade for Strings and Orchestra will also be presented on August 26.

"This year may be our best ever," said Kathryn Sincell. "It's a very exciting program."

The next offering of GLAF will also be musical, as a Reggae musical group is scheduled to perform traditional Jamaican music. This concert will take place on the shore at Deep Creek Lake State Park on Sept. 3, beginning at 6 p.m. Concert-goers are again invited to pack a meal and enjoy the outdoor entertainment.

The season will end on an impressive note as the United States Marine Corps's "The President's Own" band will perform an admission-free concert in the gymnasium of Southern High School. This engagement will be the band's first of a national tour, and promises to be a rousing, lively performance for the whole family.

"We were extremely fortunate to schedule this group," Stemple said. "They are fantastic."

For more information about the 1994 Garrett Lakes Arts Festival season, persons may contact the GLAF office at 387-3082. Tickets for the events will be available at area pharmacies as each performance approaches, and the tickets will not be picked up from the outlets until 6 p.m. on each night of performance. Each show will be announced in The Republican as it approaches, and the names of outlet pharmacies will also be published.

"If you've never gone to a GLAF performance before, this will be the year to start," Stemple said. "We welcome back our many familiar supporters, and encourage those who have yet to take advantage of our programs to give us a try."

rescue squad members and then by hospital personnel, but the resuscitation efforts were unsuccessful.

While Mitchell's neck injuries were reportedly fatal, the autopsy could reveal that he had a heart attack or some other medical incident prior to his fall. According to Jerry Geisler, hill manager at the Wisp, Mitchell's son reported that his father was not traveling very fast when the accident occurred.

The Face, which is the steepest slope at the Wisp, is for expert skiers only and is so designated with the black diamond symbol. Intermediate trails are marked with blue squares and beginner slopes are designated by a green circle. Geisler did not know the skiing ability of Mitchell.

This was the second fatality at the Wisp this season, as a 13-year-old Baltimore area youth died earlier this year after attempting an aerial maneuver, which is prohibited at the Wisp. Never before in its 40-year history had there been a fatal accident at the local ski area.

"Accidents happen at all ski resorts," Geisler said, "and fortunately the great majority are not life-threatening. We were so fortunate for nearly 40 years that no one was fatally injured. Obviously, these were devastating accidents for the families and for us as well."

Food For Thought

by Chef Francesco Pisano
McClives Restaurant

Garlic lovers, unite! Cook together about 3 pounds of peeled and quartered potatoes with a small head of garlic--each clove peeled--in salted water to cover. When tender, mash potatoes and garlic together with a stick of butter and ½ cup heavy cream; season to taste.

Everyone's talking about bruschetta, little appetizer toasts of Italian bread. A favorite topping: process garlic, capers and parsley with lemon juice and oil until finely chopped, then add roasted red peppers and chop coarsely. Mangia!

When the packages of frozen dinners say "not for toaster ovens," it's usually because the package might catch fire so near a heating element. But it's safe if you transfer the food to an aluminum baking dish and then follow directions for cooking in a conventional oven.

Food history: when President George Washington wanted to make a splash at a fancy dinner at his New York City home--the capitol at that time--he served that new-fangled dish, ice cream, about $200 worth.

The family's sure to remember a special dinner out at

Zuckerman's Works Featured At GCC In Art Exhibit

by Ron Skidmore

An exhibition by famous Maryland artist Michael Zuckerman titled, "Forty Years in the Studio," will be featured in the Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery at Garrett Community College through March 25.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday - Thursday and weekends during special events. A reception for the artist was held Mar. 12.

The exhibit presents a Garrett County artist's around-the-world discourse from the 1950's into the 1990's: wood, stone, bronze, steel and terra-cotta; acrylic, oil, ink, pencil and crayon; photograph, print and the written word. This retrospective of Mr. Zuckerman's artwork also celebrates the career of the artist and art instructor: GCC's first instructor of art, from 1971 to 1979.

Born in Englewood, N.J. in 1932, Mr. Zuckerman had an early interest in art and won the arts prize in his graduating class in 1950 at the Holderness School in New Hampshire. He attended Bard College and Columbia University from 1950 to 1952 and then went to Korea in 1953, where he studied through an art correspondence course from the University of California.

After some travel in Japan, he returned to the United States in 1955 to study with renowned artist George Grosz at the Arts Students League in New York City. In 1956, he attended the University of Mexico where he studied painting with Diego Rivera, famous Mexican revolutionary artist.

In 1957, he travelled to Baltimore and was appointed to the Reinhart Graduate School of Sculpture and also studied at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D. C. In 1962, he won the Peabody Foundation Sculpture Award and received a BFA degree at the Maryland Institute of Art.

He continued his career with exhibitions in New York and Miami and worked in Florence, Italy, with notable sculptors from 1963-1967. After settling in Garrett County, the artist continued to be prolific with exhibitions in many major galleries, including the Reinhart School of Sculpture 75th Anniversary Exhibition in 1971, and the Baltimore Museum of Art Traveling Exhibition-"Five Maryland Artists" in 1974-75.

With an expansive artistic track record, Mr. Zuckerman's work has appeared on television and exists in numerous public and private collections from Cumberland to Baltimore, New York and abroad. His work has been praised by artists and critics: "Artist commands his material in full . . . with dynamic perception," noted Umberto Baldinni of The Uffizzi Gallery of Art in Florence, Italy.

Italian journalist Scrivianni called him "a living artist, who sees the reality of every day. . . not fantasy, nor symbols of terror. He has overcome the years of uncertainty."

The Bausch & Lomb Gallery has also extended a special thanks to Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Giaritta, the Honorable and Mrs. Fred A. Thayer and Michael Logsdon for loaning Zuckerman artwork to the exhibition.

PENN ALPS PRESENTS ITS STORY - Approximately 80 members of the Friends of Penn Alps attended a dinner March 5, hosted by the Penn Alps Restaurant, Grantsville. Following the meal, a slide program was presented by Jack Dueck, Penn Alps administrator. The program told of the 35-year history of Penn Alps, as well as projects and plans for the future. Five of the original board members were present. Pictures from the past as well as articles from the New York Times and Baltimore Sun were also on display. Rev. Alan Birkby provided musical entertainment.

Both defendants were released from police custody after each posted a $500 bond.

In other sheriff's office news, a Columbia woman was arrested on several charges following an investigation into a breaking and entering at the Youghiogheny Mountain Resort. Patricia A. Frank, 37, was charged with storehouse breaking and entering, misdemeanor theft, and shop breaking and stealing.

Frank is accused of breaking into the summer residence of Melvin E. Santmyer, according to the report.

A Cumberland woman was arrested for DWI (driving while intoxicated) on March 12. Margaret B. McWhirter, 39, was stopped at 10 p.m. on Rt. 135 near the Loch Lynn intersection after an anonymous caller told police that she was operating her vehicle in an erratic manner.

A record check of McWhirter revealed that her license had been suspended in Maryland as well. Officer C. Nolan made the arrest and charged her accordingly.

Four bench warrants were issued for the arrest of Scott E. Kahl, Oakland. He is accused of failing to pay fines of $20, $25, $50, and $375 into Garrett County District Court, according to the report.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Dominick J. Pisano, 50, McHenry. Pisano apparently failed to appear in district court to face a traffic charge of driving with a suspended license.

Shirley V. Johnson, 45, Tunnelton, W.Va., was arrested on the strength of a bench warrant for failure to appear in district court. She was to have been in court on March 9, according to the report.

Arts Festival

lowed by a dinner prepared by Martin Heise.

Tickets for the gala event are $30 per person, and party-goers will be encouraged to wear "tropical" garb in celebration of the end of a long winter, organizers said.

An ever-popular offering will take the stage July 6-9 as local actors undertake a Neil Simon play. Lost in Yonkers, directed by Frances Acton, is scheduled to be performed each night beginning at 8 p.m. Local talent has traditionally attracted large audiences, and GLAF organizers expressed their hope to see packed houses for this year's comical presentation.

The Mini-Stars of Broadway will be next on the season schedule, as children aged 8 to 18 years from the Civic Light Opera of Pittsburgh will perform famous songs and dances from popular Broadway shows. The Mini-Stars are "set" to perform on the GCC lawn on July 15 at 8 p.m.

Shakespeare On Wheels will roll into the county on July 22 and 23 for an outdoor performance of Hamlet. The lawn performance of the famous play will be admission-free, and audience members will be able to relax in the outdoors atmosphere, Stemple said.

The renowned percussion ensemble of West Virginia University will bring its steel band corps to the GCC stage on July 30. The show will offer the unique sounds and tones produced on molded steel drums as the accomplished group performs several well-known works. The show will begin at 8 p.m.

Because GLAF audiences have asked for more theatre, a third theatrical event will take place on August 5-6 as the Maryland Traveling Repertory Theatre will present Broadway Bound. The play, written by Neil Simon, is suitable for the whole family. Each performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the GCC auditorium.

A return of a favorite musical group will take place on August 13. Dear Friends, a resident ensemble of the University of Pittsburgh's Stephen Foster Memorial, will present music from America at the turn-of-the-century with "Come to the Fair." The music will begin at 8 p.m. on the GCC stage.

The yearly classical music series of GLAF will this year take place over two weekends, scheduled for August 18 and 19, and August 25 and 26.

"These concerts will afford local audiences some of the finest music in the world," said Jim Harvey, GLAF president. "The unmatched expertise of these musicians is truly evident with every note. And no where can audiences be treated to such wonderful music for a ticket price of $7."

Erick Friedman, renowned violinist and music professor at Yale University, will again serve as musical director, with Garrett County native Kathryn Sincell serving as executive director. This season will feature the talents of Friedman and his duet partner, Jesse Levine, a world-celebrated violist. The two will perform Mozart's Symphonie Concertante on Thursday, Aug. 25. Other composers' works to be interpreted will be those by Brahms, Chausson, Dvorak, and Beethoven.

An original composition by Neal Corwell, commissioned composer, will be presented on Friday, Aug. 19, and Bach's well-known Brandenburg Concerto #4 will be played on Friday, Aug. 26, with a full orchestra of New York City musicians. Handel's Concerto Grosso and Barber's Serenade for Strings and Orchestra will also be presented on August 26.

"This year may be our best ever," said Kathryn Sincell. "It's a very exciting program."

The next offering of GLAF will also be musical, as a Reggae musical group is scheduled to perform traditional Jamaican music. This concert will take place on the shore at Deep Creek Lake State Park on Sept. 3, beginning at 6 p.m. Concert-goers are again invited to pack a meal and enjoy the outdoor entertainment.

The season will end on an impressive note as the United States Marine Corps's "The President's Own" band will perform an admission-free concert in the gymnasium of Southern High School. This engagement will be the band's first of a national tour, and promises to be a rousing, lively performance for the whole family.

"We were extremely fortunate to schedule this group," Stemple said. "They are fantastic."

For more information about the 1994 Garrett Lakes Arts Festival season, persons may contact the GLAF office at 387-3082. Tickets for the events will be available at area pharmacies as each performance approaches, and the tickets will not be picked up from the outlets until 6 p.m. on each night of performance. Each show will be announced in The Republican as it approaches, and the names of outlet pharmacies will also be published.

"If you've never gone to a GLAF performance before, this will be the year to start," Stemple said. "We welcome back our many familiar supporters, and encourage those who have yet to take advantage of our programs to give us a try."

The Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation was created in 1977 to implement the Agricultural Land Preservation Program. The program's intent is to preserve productive agricultural land and woodland in Maryland, provide for continued production of food and fiber, curb the extent of urban sprawl, and protect agricultural land and woodland as open space.

Chaired by the governor, the Board of Public Works is also comprised of Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Treasurer Lucille Maurer. The board is empowered by the General Assembly to approve major construction and consultant contracts, equipment purchases, property transactions, and other procurement actions.

rescue squad members and then by hospital personnel, but the resuscitation efforts were unsuccessful.

While Mitchell's neck injuries were reportedly fatal, the autopsy could reveal that he had a heart attack or some other medical incident prior to his fall. According to Jerry Geisler, hill manager at the Wisp, Mitchell's son reported that his father was not traveling very fast when the accident occurred.

The Face, which is the steepest slope at the Wisp, is for expert skiers only and is so designated with the black diamond symbol. Intermediate trails are marked with blue squares and beginner slopes are designated by a green circle. Geisler did not know the skiing ability of Mitchell.

This was the second fatality at the Wisp this season, as a 13-year-old Baltimore area youth died earlier this year after attempting an aerial maneuver, which is prohibited at the Wisp. Never before in its 40-year history had there been a fatal accident at the local ski area.

"Accidents happen at all ski resorts," Geisler said, "and fortunately the great majority are not life-threatening. We were so fortunate for nearly 40 years that no one was fatally injured. Obviously, these were devastating accidents for the families and for us as well."

Food For Thought

by Chef Francesco Pisano
McClives Restaurant

Garlic lovers, unite! Cook together about 3 pounds of peeled and quartered potatoes with a small head of garlic--each clove peeled--in salted water to cover. When tender, mash potatoes and garlic together with a stick of butter and ½ cup heavy cream; season to taste.

Everyone's talking about bruschetta, little appetizer toasts of Italian bread. A favorite topping: process garlic, capers and parsley with lemon juice and oil until finely chopped, then add roasted red peppers and chop coarsely. Mangia!

When the packages of frozen dinners say "not for toaster ovens," it's usually because the package might catch fire so near a heating element. But it's safe if you transfer the food to an aluminum baking dish and then follow directions for cooking in a conventional oven.

Food history: when President George Washington wanted to make a splash at a fancy dinner at his New York City home--the capitol at that time--he served that new-fangled dish, ice cream, about $200 worth.

The family's sure to remember a special dinner out at

Red House Students Celebrate National School Breakfast Week

Students at Red House Elementary School celebrated National School Breakfast Week, March 7-11, with several activities and a visit from Dr. Jerry Ryscavage, superintendent of Garrett County schools. The students all took part in writing activities related to eating breakfast and to good eating habits in general.

Dr. Ryscavage spoke to the children from a personal standpoint, sharing with them his philosophy on good eating habits. He explained that he had suffered a heart attack seven years ago, and since then has eaten regularly. Before that time he often skipped breakfast and sometimes lunch.

The superintendent also told the students that he is more aware of the types of foods he eats, trying to include more fruits and vegetables and fewer fast foods and high-fat items. He finally advised students that exercise is very important, and that he works out regularly, either biking, swimming, or walking three or four times a week.

Each class in the school, pre-kindergarten through the fifth grade, worked on writing assignments to express their ideas on the importance of eating a good breakfast and maintaining good nutrition habits.

Students in pre-kindergarten had these things to say about breakfast. Breakfast helps you grow - Natalie. It makes you healthy (Sean). It makes you big and strong - Jennifer. Breakfast makes me feel good - Nicholas. Breakfast is important. Everyone should eat it - Amber.

The kindergarten class put together the following poem:

When pigs go out to breakfast,
Corn is what they eat.
When lions have their breakfast,
They want lots of meat.
When bees wake up,
They want honey every day.
When cows eat breakfast,
Be sure there's lots of hay.
But when we eat breakfast,
Oh, what a choice to make!
Eggs, toast, cereal, bacon, juice,
pancakes, waffles, milk,
What will you take?

A list of breakfast riddles was compiled by the first grade. What two things can't you have for breakfast? Lunch and dinner.

What smells good, looks tasty, sounds delicious, and makes my mouth water when I first wake up? Breakfast.

In the second grade, Matthew Rohrbaugh wrote the following: Bread and toast, Rice too. Eggs are hot on my plate, Apples cut for me, Keep eating breakfast Forever, A bowl of cereal, So good for you, Think of how delicious!

With the same theme, Carissa wrote: Buttered toast with my cereal, Raisins are my chewy treat, Eggs over easy please, Apple juice with my eggs, Kindly pass the milk, Fast breakfast at McDonald's, Apple butter is great on bagels, So eat your breakfast everyday, Tea for two and two for tea.

Fourth-grader Jason Thomas wrote "B is for beans - lima, brown, and white. F is for fish - I eat every bite. W is for water - I drink day and night. L is for low-fat and lean - these foods are just right."

Kody Morfoot and Lee Hall wrote jokes for their assignment: What's a fish's favorite treat? Watermelon. What did the oat say to the oatmeal? Someday I'll be like you.

Fifth-grader Amanda Beckman wrote the following poem:

When you put nutritious breakfasts to the test,
We know this meal will beat the rest.
And when you're done,
you'll always say,
"Nutritious breakfasts are the way to start your day."

Stacy Scripp, W.I. Harless, Coy Miller, and Malisha Whitacre also wrote a poem:

Fifth grade breakfast, it is so cool,
Those who don't eat breakfast are just fools.
So eat cereal, toast, fruit, and juice,
It will give you a morning boost.
It will help you stay on track, and that is a cool breakfast fact.
So eat your breakfast at home or at school.
Stay in shape,
Keep the cool breakfast rule!

"Breakfast is to make you feel full until lunch," wrote James Preston and Adam Sanders. "You can have a bagel, toast, eggs, or a bowl of cereal and milk. Breakfast is the most important meal of the day because it breaks the fast since dinner last night."

Beth Clemons, Jeanine Cummings, Becky Rinehart, and Brian Reckart combined their efforts to write the following:

Biscuits with butter,
Candy is fat.
School meals are nutritious,
So how about that?
Apples and oranges,
scrambled eggs, too,
Waffles and muffins are good for you.
The food tastes good,
The food tastes great,
so eat all the food that's put on your plate.

SUPERINTENDENT TALKS GOOD NUTRITION - Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of Garrett County schools, visited Red House Elementary School last week to join the students there in the celebration of National School Breakfast Week. The students took part in writing activities, several of which are printed in the accompanying story. In the photo below, Cafeteria Manager Janet Judy is shown as she presents Dr. Ryscavage with a "thank you" poster, card, and breakfast pencil.

way, in front of the vehicle. Seib reportedly steered toward the shoulder of the road, but was unable to avoid hitting Dawson.

Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad responded to the 4:45 p.m. mishap.

TREATED, RELEASED

A McHenry youth was treated and released from Garrett Memorial on Monday afternoon, following a one-vehicle accident on Rt. 219, near the Bear Creek Road.

Brian L. King, 16, driving a 1991 Dodge Caravan owned by Gary L. King, reportedly attempted to avoid hitting a deer in the roadway and lost control of the vehicle, striking a guardrail.

Ptc. J.T. Bentlejewski investigated the 7:40 p.m. accident. King was transported to the hospital by Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

MORE ACCIDENTS

Poor weather played a role in at least two accidents involving injuries in Garrett County Wednesday, according to state police.

Wednesday morning, two people were taken to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, following an accident involving an empty school bus on Rt. 495 south of I-68 in Grantsville.

Patty Klein was driving north on Rt. 495 when the car she was driving slid on the icy roadway and ran into the bus, driven by Robert Leeger.

Klein and her daughter were taken to the hospital by Northern Rescue Squad where they were treated and released following the 8:40 a.m. accident.

No citations were issued following a two-vehicle accident at approximately 2:30 p.m. yesterday near the Pysell Crosscut Road. Johnathan A. Sines, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, driving a 1993 Chevrolet Silverado pickup, attempted to slow his vehicle during white-out conditions on the icy road and struck the rear of a 1983 Mercury station wagon, driven by William B. Bray, 49, Oakland.

A passenger in the Bray vehicle, Rose C. Bray, 45, was injured in the mishap and transported to Garrett Memorial, where she was treated and released, according to a hospital spokesperson.

Two passengers in the Sines vehicle, Adrian Spiker, 18, and Craig Forbes, 18, both of Oakland, were apparently not injured.

CAR DESTROYED

A 1993 Buick Century, owned by Pamela J. Bell, Mill Creek, W.Va., was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday, March 8.

Bell was reportedly traveling south on Rt. 219, near the Cove Overlook, when she noticed fire in the car's ashtray. She stopped the vehicle and got out, but was unable to extinguish the flames.

Ptc. Randy Tarburton investigated the 5:40 p.m. incident.

THEFT REPORTED

State police are currently investigating an alleged theft that occurred at approximately 11 a.m. Monday afternoon at the Keyser's Ridge Truck Stop.

According to the report, a black male in his early 20s, who was wearing a purple jacket, attempted to pay for gas with a stolen Citibank credit card. The suspect fled the scene in a two-door, white, 1985 Honda, with Pennsylvania registration NHG-576, which was reported stolen to Pennsylvania State Police on March 7.

Is It True That Taking Aspirin Every Day Can Prevent Cancer?

It has been known for many years that people who take aspirin and other medicines that fight inflammation (such as naproxen and ibuprofen) have less gastrointestinal tract cancer. According to a report in Cancer Research, there are fewer cancers of the esophagus, stomach, colon, and rectum. Aspirin blocks the formation of prostaglandins, hormones which have tumor promoting ability. Aspirin also inhibits metastasis of cancer cells and enhances one's immune response.

Household Help
by John Amantea

Q. I own a home in the northern part of the country so I had a lot of ice and snow on my roof this season. It seems the roof above my crawl-space attic has the potential to leak. I noticed droplets appearing on the underside of the roof sheathing after a thaw. I also would like to repair some damage to the "valley flashing" above an upstairs bedroom window. Can you give me some good advice on how to pursue these repairs?

A. First, you must wait for a sunny, dry day in which to work. If you are a relatively new owner, you might want to search the attic and basement for any shingles and roofing materials left behind by previous owners. It is also advisable to have a steady ladder and a dependable helper around.

The most practical way to pinpoint any leaks in your roof is by having access to the space below it. One example of finding a leak is to use a flashlight and an ordinary, thin coat hanger. Most often, water will travel a good distance from a hole before it actually drips into the attic.

Turn off any lights and shine the flashlight along the plywood underside and rafters. Look for any indications of dry rot, such as soft wood and water stains. If you're successful in locating a hole, push one end of your coat hanger through the sheathing and roof shingle. This will confirm what damage you will need to repair.

In response to mending what you explained about the "valley flashing," there are also a few steps you need to implement. While I can't exactly assess what type of repair you have to do, I'm sure the existing flashing is made up of thin metal.

If the flashing is torn, you can place a piece of thin gauged aluminum on top of the cut. Be sure that the piece is large enough to slip under the adjoining sections of shingles on both sides of the flashing. You should not have to face-nail your repair patch to the roof. Instead, use an adequate amount of roofing cement on the tear and the aluminum patch itself. Press firmly in place, and if at all possible, secure a heavy weight on top to assure its contact.

Keep in mind that the repairs outlined here are temporary and will buy you time. However, as your roof ages, you will need a professional to install a whole new roof.

EASY FIND — You will always remember to get your credit card back after each use if you hold your card case or billfold open to the place it belongs until you get it back. Rita G., White Plains, N.Y.

CLEAN UP THE MESS — I often threw small items such as pencils, notes and papers on my car seat. My car always looked messy until I purchased a small plastic basket that I keep on the passenger-side front-seat floor. I now know immediately where those coupons and things are and my car looks a lot neater. Judith N., Santa Fe, N.M.

WITHIN REACH — Put all the ingredients for a recipe on the counter. This assures that you have everything you need on hand. As you use each item, put it away in the cupboard. This way, you clean up the kitchen as you go along, and you always know what you have added to your mixture, in case of interruption by a child or telephone. Mandy T., Salem, Ore.

ASPARAGUS EATERS AND MARROW SCOOPS

The Victorian dinner table was a showplace, filled with myriad dishes, glasses, pieces of silver, and lavish flower and fruit decorations. It seems strange to look at a dinner set from earlier times that included nine different pieces of silver for each guest plus an assortment of serving pieces.

A set of flatware made in London in 1895 in Elizabethan pattern was recently offered for sale. The set, service for 72, had 1,150 pieces, 190 of them serving pieces. The set contained carving tools, carver rests, fish slicers, melon serving forks, marrow scoops, tea strainers, bread forks, pickle spoons, gateaux slicers, Stilton scoops, grape shears, asparagus servers, skewers, shellfish servers, sorbet servers, ice-cream servers and some more familiar pieces like ladles, salt spoons and nut crackers. How many of us could identify each type of serving piece?

Collectors often buy odd-shaped silverware, not knowing its original use. Imagine going to a dinner party and having more than 20 different pieces of silver next to your plate. Which was the proper one? Only a well-educated diner could tell which knife to use when offered an assortment that included the usual table knife plus others for butter, dessert, fish, hors d'oeuvre, melon or pate. Very few of us would recognize an "asparagus eater."

Q. My mother bought a Mickey Mouse movie projector for me in the early 1930s. The green projector has a decoration on the side showing Mickey and his name. Can you tell me more about it?

A. The projector was made about 1935 by the Keystone Manufacturing Co. of Boston. It was listed in their advertising as having a green case with Mickey Mouse decorations on each side. It had a 50-foot capacity and rewind for standard length 16mm film. The threading was simple, with ventilation through slits at the top. It was operated by a hand crank and used an ordinary light bulb to project a picture as large as 18 by 22 inches from a distance of eight feet. More than 48 Mickey films were made to be shown on the projector. Today a projector in good condition sells for about $300 to $400.

Dollars & Sense
by Bryon Elson

Owning a home can be costly but home ownership also is replete with tax-saving opportunities. Your tax savings begin with the points you pay to the mortgage lender to secure a mortgage. Points paid to acquire your principal residence are generally fully deductible in the year you pay them. Points paid for refinancing or purchasing a second home normally must be deducted over the life of the loan.

In a recent reversal, the IRS ruled that points paid from mortgage proceeds are deductible up front as long as the fees you pay at closing, such as those for attorneys, appraisals and abstracts, are at least equal to the amount of points withheld. Prior to this ruling, deductions for points paid out of the loan proceeds were spread over the life of the mortgage.

Deductions for mortgage interest and real estate taxes can also help to offset some of the high costs of home ownership. You may deduct interest paid on up to $1 million in acquisition debt as long as you use the loan proceeds to buy, construct or improve your principal or second residence.

Real estate taxes you pay on your property are generally tax deductible. If you buy or sell property during the year, the real estate tax deduction is allocated between the buyer and seller based on the part of the year you each owned the property. This tax deduction, and certain other itemized deductions, however, are phased out for some high-income taxpayers.

The money you spend for home improvements provides another opportunity for tax savings. For tax purposes, an improvement is anything that adds value to your house, prolongs its life, or adapts it to new uses. Permanent improvement costs such as adding a bathroom, installing a new roof, or building a deck, add to your home's "basis" or total cost. When selling your home, the higher your basis, the lower your gain and the lower your taxes. Be sure to save bills, canceled checks, and other documents that support improvement costs incurred.

Taxpayers Give $95,000 To Bay And Species Fund

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says that 8,253 taxpayers had contributed $94,900 to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund by March 7.

"Our figures show that 3.5% of the Maryland income tax returns processed so far this year include donations to the checkoff, demonstrating a commitment that has helped make Maryland's natural resources checkoff one of the most successful in the nation," the comptroller said.

Baltimore County leads the subdivisions in both dollars donated as well as number of taxpayers contributing, with 1,302 taxpayers contributing $16,948 to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund. Anne Arundel County's 1,065 contributors have given the second highest amount - $13,027 - while the second greatest number of contributions are coming from Prince George's County, where 1,174 taxpayers have donated $12,647.

Howard County has the highest percentage of participation, with 6.3% of its taxpayers whose returns have already been processed making contributions to the fund. Montgomery County's 5.5% participation rate is currently the second highest.

The highest average contribution - $31.64 - is coming from Kent County, with taxpayers from Charles County donating the second highest average amount, $19.69.

One hundred and fifty-seven taxpayers have donated more than $50, while there have been two donations of $1,000 each.

Goldstein reminded taxpayers that, while any contribution to the fund on line 63 of the short or long form will be subtracted from their refund or added to any additional tax they owe, it will be deductible on the federal and state returns filed next year if they itemize deductions.

"At the same time, taxpayers who donated to the fund on their 1992 Maryland income tax return should be sure to include that donation amount in the charitable contributions category of deductions on their 1993 federal and state returns, if they are itemizing deductions," the comptroller said.

Money donated to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund is evenly divided between the Chesapeake Bay Trust and the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. The Chesapeake Bay Trust uses its funds to provide grants to groups ranging from scientific organizations doing research to local community groups doing marsh grass plantings. The Department of Natural Resources uses the funds it receives for endangered species habitat work.

Taxpayers donated nearly one million dollars to the fund on 1992 income tax returns.

"Soul"Ar Power

In these days of modern technology, we again look to the heavens as we utilize our God-given source...the sun...as our natural supply of warmth, comfort, and power. Of course, the sun has been there all along. Humankind had only to discover methods by which to magnify its power in order to claim it.

Still looking heavenward, we find another source...one of spiritual warmth and comfort much more powerful than the sun. We could coin a new phrase..."soul"ar power. The Maker is God, but you must believe in His power to claim it and worship Him regularly to magnify its strength.

Remember, the difference between solar power and "soul"ar power is "U". Worship this week. The former will heat your home. The latter will warm your heart.

EAR WAX IS THE "SNEAK THIEF OF SOUND"

Many hearing problems can be due to excessive ear wax. One way that ear wax can impair your hearing is as the hairs lining the ear canals grow coarser and stronger they might eventually form a barrier and prevent the wax from getting out. This, of course, will also diminish sounds trying to get in.

If you do suspect a hearing problem of any kind, the first step is to consult your physician to find out the cause. Should it turn out to be a build up of ear wax there are products he can suggest to remove existing wax, prevent build up, and help you practice good ear hygiene.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

MORE THAN ACQUITTAL
March 20, 1994

Background Scripture:
Romans 5
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 1:9-14, 21-23

I used to think that Paul's Epistle to the Romans was essentially a treatise on justification. The concept of justification is essentially a legal one, as one commentator puts it, it is like "a judge acquitting an accused person in view of fresh factors brought before the court, or a new counsel for the defense" (Cyril E. Blackman in The Interpreter's One-Volume Commentary on the Bible.)

So, whenever you come across that term justify/justification--it occurs 17 times in Romans and 10 times in Paul's other letters--understand that he is saying you are acquitted before God because of Jesus Christ. He is the "new factor" or "new counsel" for your defense. Although you stand guilty before God, because of his death and resurrection, you are acquitted by God.

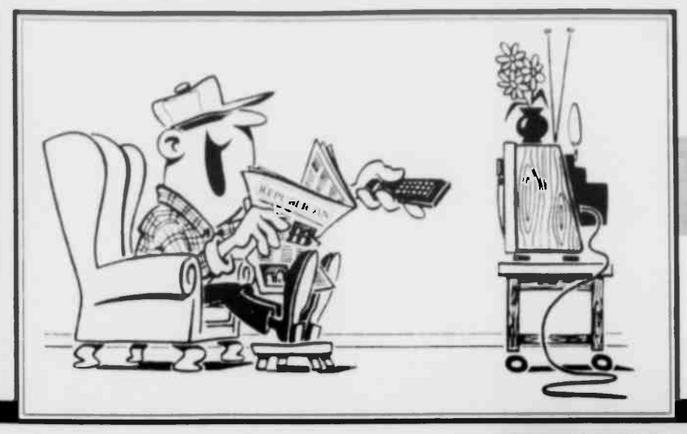
Justification--whether you use this term or something less legalistic, like forgiveness--is vitally important to us. If sin alienates us from our Maker, we need something to heal this rift and renew the relationship. Dealing with this reality of our broken relationship with God, a reality for all human beings, has been one of the great concerns of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

THE NEXT STEP

I have come to realize that, although justification is vital for all of us, it is not the end of either our greatest need nor the good news that Christ brings to that need. Furthermore, I have come to realize that Paul's message, particularly in Romans, goes beyond the question of justification. Being forgiven by God is not the end of the matter. There is something vital in the gospel that carries us beyond acquittal.

We do not stop with being forgiven. Paul says, "For if while we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, now that we are reconciled, shall we be saved by his life" (5:10). We are reconciled to God because of what Christ has done. But we are also saved, rescued, freed from bondage, delivered, by the continuing reality of Christ's life. Grace, thus, not only rescues us from our past but gives us power for the present.

THE POWER OF PEACE



Forgiveness is essential to a relationship, but so is what you do with that relationship when forgiveness has healed it. To "have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" gives us what we need to live in this world. That's why Paul could say, "...we rejoice in our sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope, and hope does not disappoint us because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit..." (5:3-5).

The quality of this new life is to be found in what Christ has done for us: "While we were yet helpless at the right time Christ died for the ungodly" (5:6). Who among us would give up our lives for even a righteous man, let alone someone we see as "ungodly"? "But God shows his love for us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us" (5:8). If forgiveness gives us a new life even as it was poured out for us. Not just on those in our families. Not just our circle of friends. But all those others who, like us, are dependent upon God's grace.

Yes, there is a lot of evil in our world. We are surrounded by it and our society is filled with it. But the good news of Jesus Christ reminds us that "where sin increased, grace abounded all the more" (5:20b). No matter how much evil you find in your world, you can always find grace in even greater quantities--grace, not only for forgiveness but for the new life that starts when we move beyond acquittal.

COVER STORY

'Schindler' favored in Monday's Oscar race

BY JOHN CROOK

Is it just coincidence that the principal character in Steven Spielberg's "Schindler's List" is named Oskar?

Perhaps, but the director is favored in industry gossip to win his first Oscar at the 66th annual "Academy Awards" on Monday, March 21. Whoopi Goldberg is host for the ABC telecast from Los Angeles.

However it turns out, this year's ceremony is noteworthy on several fronts. For the first time ever, two actresses (Holly Hunter and Emma Thompson) are nominated in both the actress and supporting actress categories. One of the best actor nominees, Tom Hanks, is up for his performance as a person living with AIDS. And for only the second time in history, a woman (Jane Campion) has been nominated for best director.

The only sure bet about the Oscars is that there is no such thing as a sure bet. Upsets and dark horse wins have occurred in the past with striking regularity. Still, based on reviews, word of mouth and industry reports, here's how the major categories are shaping up:

Best picture and director: While these two categories don't always go hand in hand, there's a better-than-even chance they will this year. The general consensus is that Spielberg's black-and-white, three-hours-plus concentration camp drama, "Schindler's List," is the movie to beat. Another strong contender is the small-scale "The Piano," directed by Campion. "The Fugitive," "The Remains of the Day" and "In the Name of the Father," and directors James Ivory, Robert Altman and Jim Sheridan, have to be considered long shots.

Likely to win: Spielberg and "Schindler's List."

Best actor: While reaction to "Philadelphia" has been mixed, Hanks' performance as an AIDS patient suing for job discrimination has been praised for its strength and dignity. Anthony Hopkins ("The Remains of the Day") gave an unforgettable performance as a sadly repressed butler, but he won just two years ago. Laurence Fishburne ("What's Love Got to Do With It"), previous winner Daniel Day-Lewis ("In the Name of the Father") and Liam Neeson ("Schindler's List") seem to have no momentum behind them.

Tom Hanks

Likely to win: Hanks.

Best actress: Last year's winner Thompson ("The Remains of the Day") and Debra Winger ("Shadowlands") will likely go home empty-handed. Stockard Channing gave the performance of her career in the sophisticated "Six Degrees of Separation," but the Academy traditionally shuns such "East Coast" movies. Angela Bassett drew raves as Tina Turner in "What's Love Got to Do With It" and could very well take the trophy. If media attention is any indication, however, look for the little golden man to go to Hunter for her fiery work as a Scots-woman who is mute by choice in "The Piano." Hunter was previously nominated in 1987 for "Broadcast News," but this year she couples her intellectual "Piano" role with her comedic, also-nominated cameo as a quasi-bimbo secretary in "The Firm."

Likely to win: Hunter.

Filmmaker Harrod Blank takes viewers on a cross-country journey in search of "Wild Wheels," airing Wednesday, March 23, on PBS (check local listings).

Blank and his Volkswagen Beetle seek out other "art cars" while learning the stories behind each of them.

PBS says 'The Heck With Hollywood!'

BY TED KUSIO

Believe it or not, not every movie requires a budget that dwarfs the gross national product of some countries. And not every great film gets a nod on Oscar night. It's partially because some filmmakers say "The Heck with Hollywood!"

The PBS special, named after this polite rebel call, airs Tuesday, March 22, as an alternative to the hype and glitz of the Academy Awards.

Doug Block, the director and producer of "Hollywood," followed three diverse, independent first-time filmmakers for four years. The resulting slightly tongue-in-cheek documentary captures their struggles to realize, and then distribute, their visions.

Each story in "Hollywood" takes a completely different route, covering the entire range from success to misfortune, including some territory that's not so easy to label.

For instance, the makers of "Only a Buck," director and producer Gerry Cook, Charlie Schmidt and Peter Hundrichs, skip the official distribution process and literally hit the road to sell their film. Jennifer Fox creates a critically acclaimed documentary, "Beruit: The Last Home Movie," but her distributor can't seem to generate audiences. And Ted Lichtenheld, director of "Personal Foul," seems to succumb to ugly facts about marketing when scripting his second, hopefully more successful film.

"Hollywood" does a great job of showing how movies can be made beyond the big studio.

But perhaps the most telling moment comes with the film's opening as a distributor says, "You young folks don't try this alone in your home! It's very dangerous... Your father wants you to be a dentist."

Members of the film industry will gather to see who brings home the coveted Oscar when the 66th annual "Academy Awards," airing on ABC Monday.

IN FOCUS

Kyle MacLachlan stars in the gripping, fact-based drama "Against the Wall," premiering Saturday, March 26, on HBO.

The year is 1971 and the so-called era of "peace, love and understanding" is collapsing under the increasing pressures of war, hatred and ignorance.

MacLachlan portrays Michael Smith, a novice guard at New York's Attica prison. Michael is taken hostage during the bloody, four-day inmate rebellion that left 39 dead.

Q: I would like to get in touch with Michael Richards ("Seinfeld"). My son was a friend of his back in 1970, and he spent two months at our home. We would like to congratulate him on his success. –Rosalie Andrews, King of Prussia, Pa.

Write to Emmy winner Richards C/O "Seinfeld," NBC Television Network, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: What was the title of the movie about a Hawaiian woman who married a Chinese man who later contracted leprosy? Is it available on video? –Patricia Mayfield, Oronogo, Mo.

A: It was "The Hawaiians," the 1970 sequel to "Hawaii." It's not available on video.

Q: Whatever happened to Blair Brown of my favorite show, "The Days and Nights of Molly Dodd"? Do you have an address for her? Also, is "Molly Dodd" still in syndication? –Steven Kelley, Tucson, Ariz.

A: Blair would be tickled to hear that she has achieved "whatever happened to" status. Since your letter arrived, she's starred in two TV movies – "The Day My Parents Ran Away" on Fox and "Moment of Truth: To Walk Again" on NBC. Blair and her 11-year-old son live in New York, where her latest pet project is trying to launch a new talk show on books for WNET (if successful, she hopes the show will go national in time). She says the best way for you to reach her by mail is via ICM (Attn: Brian Mann), 8942 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90211. "Molly" is indeed available to stations in syndication, so you might recommend it to one of your local stations.

SOAP TALK

Kelker-Kelly knows Bo on 'Days of Our Lives'

BY CANDACE HAVENS

"Days of Our Lives" swept last month's Soap Opera Digest Awards, winning all 11 categories in which it was nominated.

One popular "Days" star, Robert Kelker-Kelly (Bo Brady), won the award for outstanding lead actor.

Kelker-Kelly joined "Days" two years ago, replacing the popular Peter Reckell, who had portrayed the role off and on for several years. When Reckell decided to leave the role, he doubted it could be recast. But he was wrong.

Kelker-Kelly bears a strong resemblance to Reckell, so much so that many fans never realized Reckell had left. The new Bo, Kelker-Kelly, does have a different style. The character is more sensitive and intuitive.

"Robert is more vulnerable but with an edge," says executive producer Ken Corday. "He has a wonderful camera presence, and he came on playing Bo very strong."

Many fans know Kelker-Kelly from his three-year stint as Sam Fowler on "Another World." But the actor says working at the two soaps is like night and day.

"AW" is stuck in the middle of Brooklyn with no testaments or anything around it," says Kelker-Kelly. "There is a feeling of isolation, and it makes for a different kind of environment on the set.

"Days" is a much more positive and open type of environment. Here (Los Angeles) you can walk outside and see the mountains. It is a much better place for me."

Robert Kelker-Kelly

Kelker-Kelly has tremendous respect for the writers and producers of "Days," and to date he has no complaints. Unlike other actors, Kelker-Kelly doesn't believe he should make suggestions about his character to the writers and producers.

"Nowhere in my contract does it say I am a writer," Kelker-Kelly says. "I'm paid to come in and make the material work. That is my job."

"Think about it. You would not go up to William Shakespeare and say, 'Hey Will, this to be or not to be speech just doesn't work for me.'" Kelker-Kelly laughs. "We are here to act."

The actor enjoys working with his co-star, Lisa Rinna, who plays Billie. "Lisa and I don't take all this too seriously," Kelker-Kelly says.

CABLE OVERVIEW

Adieu to Donna; Oscar hype in cable envelope

BY SUZANNE GILL

Cable counts down to Oscar night with a variety of movies and specials on Sunday and Monday, March 20 and 21.

E! Entertainment Television turns up the pre-Awards buzz with repeats of "The Making of the Academy Awards" late night on Saturday, March 19, and "Invitation to the Oscars" Sunday. On Monday E! offers preshow and postshow specials, then on Tuesday, March 22, it's recap time with the "Academy Awards Highlights" special.

For Oscar nostalgia, check out the TNT movie marathon Sunday and Monday. Titles include "A Man for All Seasons," "Annie Hall" and "Lawrence of Arabia."

On Monday, American Movie Classics repeats its look at Tinseltown on film, "Hollywood on Hollywood." Cinemax comes right to the point with "The Oscar," starring Elke Sommer and Milton Berle, and The Movie Channel goes totally bogus with "Encino Man." The real Academy Awards ceremony airs on ABC.

Before "Schindler's List," the Oscar-nominated Steven Spielberg drama, there was "Schindler," a 1983 documentary on the life of Oskar Schindler, the enigmatic Nazi agent, industrialist and wartime savior of hundreds of Jews. Though Schindler died in 1974, the film offers interviews with his wife, Emilie, and several of those whom he saved from the Polish ghettoes and concentration camps. Airing in syndication nationality (airs [illegible] (check local listings), "Schindler" is available to many cable homes Sunday on Chicago superstation WGN.

Donna Reed

It's Mad Doctors Week on The Sci-Fi Channel. Beginning Monday, a different deranged doctor appears each weeknight. "Dr. Cook's Garden," featuring Bing Crosby in a genre busting role, airs Thursday, March 24.

Take out a hankie and wave goodbye to the Stone family (no, not Oliver) during the 10-hour "Donna Reed Show" Farewell Marathon, Friday, March 25, on Nick at Nite. After offering years of comfort and encouragement, TV's original perfect mom fades away from the Nickelodeon lineup at dawn.

Professional bull riding comes to The Nashville Network on Saturday, March 26. The monthly series, airing under the "Championship Rodeo" banner, begins with the Tuff Hedeman Championship Challenge, named for the three-time world champion.

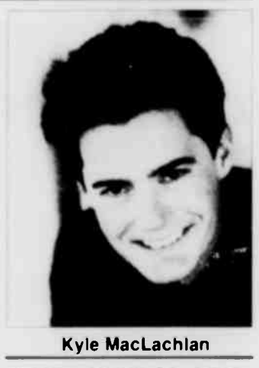
Rob Reiner reviews the social impact of comedy in "But... Seriously," debuting Saturday on Showtime.

MOVIE MARQUEE

Between a rock, a hard place and HBO's 'Wall'

BY TED KUSIO

Reality isn't as simple as right and wrong or black and white. Even when dealing with racial issues the real world is full of endless shades of gray. That's kind of what HBO's "Against the Wall" is like, and that's why it's worth watching. It premieres Saturday, March 26.



The film offers a gripping dramatization of the 1971 inmate uprising at New York's Attica prison. Many lives were lost, including guards who died due to friendly fire when government forces stormed the facility.

Based on the true story of rookie guard Michael Smith, played by Kyle MacLachlan, "Against the Wall" does not offer easy answers or clear heroes, but it does provide insight into this complex incident.

At first the prisoners attempt to follow proper channels to address legitimate grievances, but their brutal rebellion lacks civility. Members of the government forces who storm the prison have dangerous personal agendas. When these forces clash it's hard to support the law, or to feel sympathy for the lawless. The viewer must decide which shade of gray is right.

The film's graphic depiction of violence is disturbing, but also necessary. Sugar-coating the brutality would eliminate the authenticity and complexity of the film, making it unrealistic and worthless.

Other films on TV this week include Marlo Thomas and Mel Harris as sisters who charge their father with sexual abuse in CBS' "Ultimate Betrayal."

Kyle MacLachlan

Sunday, March 20. Dustin Hoffman plays an autistic person who loves "The People's Court" as he reunites with his brother (Tom Cruise) in "Rain Man" on ABC. Steven Seagal is unleashed in "Hard to Kill," Sunday on NBC, and in "Marked for Death," Tuesday, March 22, on CBS.

Monday, March 21, Fox presents Famke Janssen as a beautiful crime fighter who is a "Model by Day." CBS may "make your day" with Clint Eastwood as Dirty Harry in "Sudden Impact." And Captain Kirk (William Shatner) saves the universe, again, in "Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country" on HBO. But is it the last time?

Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers reprise the roles close to America's hearts with "Hart to Hart: Crimes of the Hart," Friday, March 25, on NBC. And oh boy, TBS features "Bad Boys" and "The Chairboys."

TNT glances into the future on Saturday with "Logan's Run" and 1960's "The Time Machine."

TIME OUT

Will Harding skate? The Worlds wait

BY SARA BENNETT

Everyone has become an expert on U.S. figure skater Tonya Harding during the last two months. Yet nobody can predict her next move.

Even NBC broadcaster Dick Enberg, host of figure skating's World Championships from Makuhari, Japan, is as uncertain as anyone. NBC televises seven hours of skating action Friday, March 25, and Saturday, March 26.

"My guess is that Harding won't be there," Enberg says. "If she continues to skate as she is now, with all the other emotional demands in her life at this point, it just doesn't figure. I would say 100 percent she wouldn't be there if it were any other person. She's such a spunky, gutsy personality."

"There's so much to her that she might be there just to show the world that she's not going to cave in," Enberg adds. "But she's hurt, she's got the asthma, she's not skating well, she's obviously distracted. I'd be surprised if she shows in Tokyo. But we'll see. It could be her way of making amends."

Harding has every right to compete in Worlds. After all, she qualified for the Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway (by winning the Nationals in January), which automatically qualified her for Worlds. And her name has been entered to compete. But, as Enberg says, "we'll see."

Another x-factor for Enberg is whether professionals will compete at Worlds. But if they don't, "it doesn't mean it won't be great skating, because basically it's the same cast (as the Olympics)."

Dick Enberg

"As a fan," Enberg says, "it was wonderful to have all the capable, best in the world in this sport brought together in these Olympics. That part was just fascinating. But it doesn't leave us with an empty plate by any means in Tokyo because the bulk of the top skaters, as the men's competition proved, are the amateurs. I'm guessing (Canada's) Kurt Browning will skate, and (Canada's) Elvis Stojko is right there. I find him very refreshing because there's no one quite like him in men's skating. He's so macho, so masculine, so athletic."

For the United States, Enberg says it's now or never for Olympian Scott Davis.

"Davis has to prove that he's the man in U.S. skating. He can't continue to miss as he has in last year's Worlds and in the Olympics. This is the time for him to show that he can make it to the podium. And if he doesn't, my guess is that the U.S. figure skating world will be looking over his shoulder to see who's coming next."

Poison Prevention Week Being Recognized By Garrett Memorial

by Dana Winters

Can you poison your child? Maybe.

You've gone into the bathroom to take some aspirin. After you remove the child-resistant cap, the phone rings. You run to answer it and upon returning to the bathroom minutes later, you discover your toddler with the bottle of aspirin in his hand.

An accidental poisoning in your home or workplace can happen quickly, but there is a cure that can help save a life: poison prevention.

The Maryland Poison Center at the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy reminds parents and children how to prevent needless accidents during National Poison Prevention Week, March 20-26, whose theme is "Children Act Fast...So Do Poisons!" For over 30 years, poison centers have provided telephone poison information. Although the incidence of child deaths from poisonings has decreased greatly in the last 30 years, the number of exposures is still high. There is a need to increase awareness of poison prevention since close to 70% of poisonings occur in children under five years old who are often too young to know better.

Heidi Lucking, director of pharmacy services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, said "Next week's national observance is the time to recognize the importance of poison prevention. Garrett Memorial will do this by offering an educational display that will be located in the hospital's main lobby. The display will contain helpful information about common harmful plants, safety tips for preventing accidental poisonings and emergency action to take in case of poisoning.

"Although Poison Prevention Week is very important, poison prevention should be practiced at all times," Lucking continued. "Because children are very effective at poisoning themselves, parents and other family members need to be more effective in preventing children from ingesting poisons by taking every measure to keep poisons out of the reach of children."

"The National Poison Prevention Week theme, 'Children Act Fast...So Do Poisons!' means that parents must always be watchful when household chemicals and drugs are being used. Many accidents happen when adults are using a product but are distracted for a few moments," said a Poison Prevention Week Council spokesperson. "Children act fast, and adults must make sure that household chemicals and drugs are stored away from children at all times. Every week is Poison Prevention Week."

The Maryland Poison Center offers the following tips to help you poison-proof your home and make every week Poison Prevention Week:

•Keep a bottle of syrup of ipecac, used to induce vomiting, readily available. (Always consult the Poison Center or your physician before using it.)

•Use child-resistant containers whenever possible. (Just remember, they may be child-resistant, but they're not childproof.)

•Keep emergency numbers and the number for the Maryland Poison Center on or near the phone. (Also, have your name, address and phone number available in case a babysitter or friend has to call.)

•Keep products in their original containers. (Some of the most serious ingestions occur when medicines or household products are stored in familiar food or drink containers.)

•Never call medicine candy. (And remember to avoid taking medicine in the presence of children.)

•Try to store cleaning supplies out of sight and out of reach of children. (Also, when using household cleaners or medicine, never let them out of your sight).

•Use Mr. Yuk stickers on all poisonous products.

In case of a poisoning, always call the Maryland Poison Center immediately. The emergency phone number is 1 (800) 492-2414.

For a free poison information packet and Mr. Yuk stickers call (410) 706-8122 or write to: POISON, 20 N. Pine Street, Baltimore, MD 21201. The first sheet of 12 stickers is free. Any additional sheets of stickers ordered are .25 per sheet.

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein accepted the IRS 1993 Quality Supplier Award on March 9, from Baltimore District Director Paul M. Harrington. Nationwide, only 15 organizations received the awards, which recognize those organizations supplying the Internal Revenue Service with large numbers of error-free information documents.

"In compliance with federal law, each year the comptroller provides nearly 1.1 million Form 1099 documents to taxpayers who itemize deductions and receive state income tax refunds and to vendors who receive payments from the state of Maryland. That same information is provided to the IRS," Goldstein said. "The IRS honors organizations that submit the error-free documents because the correct transmission of the data helps taxpayers file more accurate and timely returns and reduces the overall burden on them," said Harrington.

In announcing the 15 national awards, Margaret Milner Richardson, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, said, "Quality doesn't happen by accident. These organizations really care about accuracy, and the taxpayers get the benefit."

"Our advanced technology and the dedication of our experienced employees help sustain this record of error-free quality," Goldstein said.

Chevy Chase Savings Bank is the only other Maryland organization to win the Quality Supplier Award.

World War II Meeting Set

A meeting of the community group planning the World War II Commemoration has been scheduled for Friday, March 18 at 1:30 p.m., in Room 306 of Garrett Community College, according to Paul Shogren, coordinator. The public is invited to attend.

In addition to forming committees to work on the various projects being planned, Shogren plans to discuss ideas for a special D-Day commemorative event on June 6.

Anyone desiring further information may call Shogren at 387-3013.

ID Program For Alzheimer's Patients Offered

The Alzheimer's Association, Frederick County/Western Maryland Chapter, is offering a new program called "Safe Return," for residents of Frederick, Washington, Allegany and Garrett counties. Safe Return will be coordinated by the Alzheimer's Association in conjunction with the sheriff's office in each Western Maryland county. This program is designed to identify memory impaired adults who have wandered away from home and return them safely to their families.

The Safe Return Program involves the use of an I.D. bracelet or necklace that has been engraved with the patient's first name, a code number, and the words "Memory Impaired" plus an 800 number. The code number along with other patient information is registered in a national database, at the sheriff's office in the county where the patient resides, and in the Alzheimer's Association office. If the patient wanders away, the family then contacts both the local sheriff's office and the 800 number that is in operation 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Families and caregivers of adults who show signs of memory loss are encouraged to contact the Alzheimer's Association for information and a registration application.

In addition to the Safe Return Program, the Alzheimer's Association sponsor family/caregiver support groups, an office helpline, a telephone friend's network, and a library stocked with helpful written and audiovisual information about Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders.

For more information about Alzheimer's Disease, the Safe Return Program, or other services available, persons may call the Alzheimer's Association at (301) 696-0315 or 1-800-696-6830 (from Washington, Allegany or Garrett counties).

GARRETT COUNTY
SANITARY COMMISSION

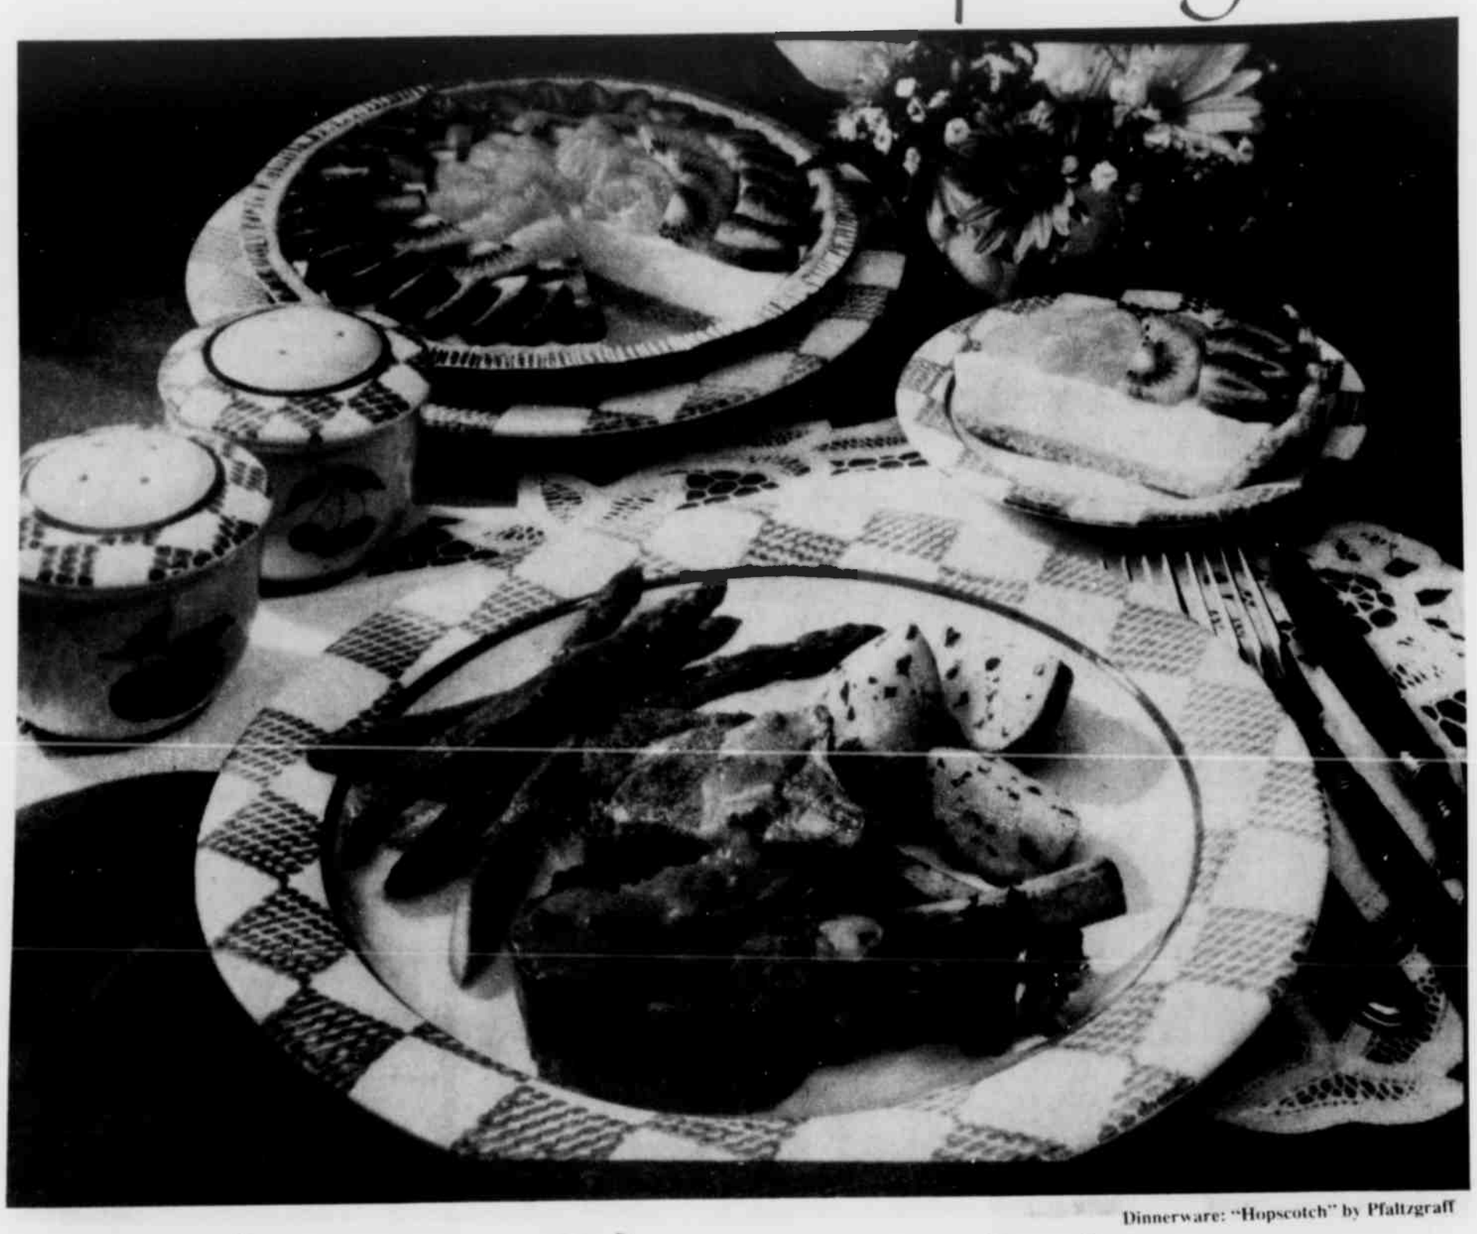
CHESTNUT RIDGE SEWER PROJECT

Notification is hereby given that the Farmers Home Administration has made a determination of no significant environmental impact for the Chestnut Ridge Sewer Project. The Garrett County Sanitary District Inc., has applied for federal and state grant funding to design and construct a community sewer system for Chestnut Ridge in Garrett County Maryland. A sewage collection system will be installed to provide sewer service for the Route 40-Chestnut Ridge area east of Grantsville. The sewage will be conveyed to the Grantsville Sewage Treatment Plant by means of a pump station and pressure interceptor line. The Grantsville Sewage Treatment Plant will be upgraded to accommodate the additional sewage loading.

The project will have a minimal temporary impact on land resources. Most of the system will be installed underground and within existing street and road right-of-ways. The sewer line will be installed under the Casselman River. The temporary disturbance will not adversely impact the river or water quality.



The District's application for federal grant assistance and the Farmers Home Administration Environmental Assessment are available for review at the Farmers Home Administration District and State office located at 151 Dixon Drive, Suite 2, Chestertown, Maryland 21620, telephone 410-778-1411. Any person interested in commenting on the application or the feasibility of the proposed action may do so in writing to the above listed location within fifteen (15) days following the date of this publication.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting Wendell R. Beitzel, Administrator of the Garrett County Sanitary District, Inc., 313 East Alder Street, Old Courthouse Room 200, Oakland, Maryland 21550, telephone 301 334-1980.

- ½ cup reduced calorie mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon dried tarragon leaves or 1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon leaves
- 4 (4-ounce) salmon steaks

In small bowl, mix mustard, mayonnaise, parsley and tarragon until blended; set aside. Grill or broil salmon, about 5 to 7 minutes on each side or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, turning and brushing with ½ cup mustard mixture frequently. Serve salmon with remaining mustard mixture.

STRAWBERRY RHUBARB PIE

Makes 8 servings

- 8 ounces rhubarb (without tops), cut into ½-inch pieces or frozen rhubarb
- ⅔ cup sugar
- ¼ cup water
- 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
- 2 cups halved strawberries
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1 Honey Maid Honey Graham Pie Crust
- 1 egg white, beaten
- Crumb Topping (recipe below)

In 2 quart saucepan, over medium heat, heat rhubarb, sugar, water and tapioca to a boil. Reduce heat to low; simmer 5 to 10 minutes or until rhubarb is just tender and mixture is thickened. Stir in strawberries and orange peel.

Meanwhile, brush crumb crust with egg white. Bake at 375°F for 5 minutes. Remove from oven; cool slightly. Pour rhubarb mixture into crust. Sprinkle with crumb topping. Bake at 375°F for 25 to 30 minutes or until topping is browned and filling bubbles around the edge. Cool completely.

GLAZED RACKS OF LAMB

Makes 8 servings

- 2 (8-rib) lamb rib roasts, trimmed (about 1½ pounds each)*
- ¾ cup Grey Poupon Dijon Mustard
- ⅓ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons reduced sodium soy sauce
- 3 tablespoons chopped scallions
- 1½ teaspoons rosemary leaves, crushed
- 3 cloves garlic, crushed

Place lamb rib roasts, bone-side down, in roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer into center of one roast, being careful that pointed end does not touch bone. Roast lamb at 375°F for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, in small bowl, combine mustard, brown sugar, soy sauce, scallions, rosemary and garlic until blended. Remove lamb from oven. Brush 2 tablespoons mustard mixture onto each rib roast. Return lamb to oven and roast 15 minutes more or until thermometer reaches 140°F for rare (about 40 minutes per pound) or until desired doneness. Remove roasts to cutting board. Let stand 10 minutes for easier carving. In small saucepan, heat remaining mustard mixture to a boil; boil 1 minute. To serve, carve lamb between ribs and serve with heated sauce.

*For easier serving, ask butcher to loosen backbone from ribs. After roasting, remove backbone before carving between ribs.

YOGURT FRUIT PIE

Makes 8 servings

- ½ cup orange juice
- 1 packet unflavored gelatin
- 1 (8-ounce) package light cream cheese, softened
- 1 (8-ounce) container plain lowfat yogurt
- ½ cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 Nilla Pie Crust
- 1½ cups mixed cut-up fruit
- 1 tablespoon apple jelly, melted

Measure orange juice into glass measuring cup. Sprinkle gelatin over juice; let stand to soften 1 minute. Microwave on HIGH (100% power) until gelatin completely dissolves. Meanwhile, in large bowl with electric mixer on medium speed, beat cream cheese, yogurt and sugar until smooth. Beat in gelatin mixture, beating until mixture is light and bubbly. Pour into crumb crust. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. To serve, arrange fruit pieces over pie; brush fruit with jelly.

FRESH HAM WITH DIJON CRUST

Makes 12 servings

- 1 (7-pound) butt- or shank-half pork leg (fresh ham)
- ½ cup Grey Poupon Dijon Mustard
- 1 tablespoon steak sauce
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- ½ cup fresh bread crumbs (about 1 slice white bread)
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- ¼ cup chopped shallots
- 4 cups sliced mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- Water
- ¼ cup port wine

With knife, remove skin and excess fat from pork leg, leaving a thin layer. Place on rack in roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer into thickest part of pork, being careful that pointed end does not touch bone. Roast in 325°F oven for 3½ to 4 hours or until meat thermometer reaches 170° to 185°F. Remove pork from oven.

In small bowl, combine ¼ cup mustard, steak sauce and garlic. In another small bowl, mix bread crumbs and parsley. Brush mustard mixture on pork roast. Carefully pat crumb mixture into mustard mixture. Return pork to oven. Bake 15 minutes more or until crust is lightly browned. Remove pork to cutting board. Let stand 15 minutes for easier carving.

Meanwhile, prepare gravy. Pour pan drippings into measuring cup. Skim 2 tablespoons fat from drippings into 2 quart saucepan; set aside. Skim and discard remaining fat. Pour ¼ cup water into roasting pan, stirring to loosen browned bits; add to pan drippings in measuring cup with enough water to make 1½ cups.

In fat in saucepan, over medium heat, saute shallots and mushrooms until tender. Add flour and cook until lightly browned. Gradually stir in pan drippings, wine and remaining ¼ cup mustard until blended; cook until mixture boils and thickens. Slice and serve pork with gravy.

RASPBERRY CREAM PIE

Makes 6 servings

- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen raspberries, thawed
- 1 packet unflavored gelatin
- 1 (8-ounce) package light cream cheese, softened
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 cup prepared whipped topping
- 1 Oreo Pie Crust
- Additional whipped topping and jelly beans, for garnish

Drain thawed raspberries, reserving liquid in glass measuring cup. Sprinkle gelatin evenly over liquid; let stand 1 minute. Microwave on HIGH (100% power) for about 1 minute or until gelatin completely dissolves.

In electric blender or food processor, blend cream cheese, raspberries, sugar and gelatin mixture until mixture is smooth; fold in whipped topping. Pour into crumb crust. Chill until firm, about 4 hours. To serve, garnish pie with additional whipped topping and jelly beans if desired.

Glimpse Of The Past . . .

MANY FAMOUS PEOPLE have visited Garrett County over the years, including at least five U.S. presidents. Pictured above is President William Howard Taft about to board a train at the Mtn. Lake Park railroad station. Taft was enroute to his home town of Cincinnati on this particular trip, but came to Mtn. Lake Park another time while president and spoke at the town's 5,000-seat amphitheater. Other presidents who have spent time in Garrett County were Theodore Roosevelt, Ulysses S. Grant, Benjamin Harrison, and Grover Cleveland. President and Mrs. Cleveland spent their honeymoon in Deer Park after a White House wedding. Another visitor was U.S. Senator Jefferson Davis, who later became president of the Confederacy during the Civil War. Spring Adventure Sports Courses To Be Held At GCC

Now that skiing courses have been completed for the winter, students in the Adventure Sports program at Garrett Community College are trading their skis for bikes, wet suits, and climbing boots as they prepare for the variety of outdoor skills courses being offered this spring. All of these courses will be taught by nationally-recognized experts in their fields and most of them will be given on three day weekends.

At the present time, a fly fishing course is underway, taught by Gary Yoder, Sull McCartney and Ken Pavol. Students in this class will have classroom instruction about the art of fly fishing, the equipment used, and the fish they hope to catch, as well as practical experience at nearby lakes and streams.

On the weekend of April 8, 9, 10, Intermediate Mountain Biking will be given, with Gunnar Shogren as the instructor. This course will cover body conditioning, care of the bicycle, and techniques needed to enjoy this fast growing sport.

Two courses in rock climbing -- introduction and intermediate -- are scheduled for the weekends of April 15, 16, and 17, and April 22, 23, and 24, respectively. Instructor for this course is Chris Warner, internationally known mountain climber who last year led an expedition to the 22,000 foot high peaks in Ecuador.

Beginning Orienteering, scheduled for the weekend of April 22, 23, 24, will be taught by Lt. Col. Robert Turbyfill, national champion orienteerer and head coach of the U.S. Orienteering Team. In this course students learn to navigate over land using compass and maps.

Two whitewater courses, Intermediate Kayaking and Rafting and River Guiding, are scheduled for the weekend of April 29, 30, and May 1. These courses employ classroom lectures, demonstrations and practical experiences on the rivers to teach students the skills, techniques and safety precautions needed for these whitewater sports. They will be taught by Mike Logsdon, director of the Adventure Sports program, Dr. Bob Kaufmann of Frostburg State University and Bob Ruppel, owner and operator of Riversport.

A course in Wilderness Search and Rescue is scheduled for the weekend of May 6, 7, and 8. It will be taught by a NASAR certified instructor.

Students may register for these courses at the registrar's office of the college, weekdays from 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m. Anyone desiring further information about these courses may call Logsdon at 387-3013.

BACK TO FRANCE went a group of French high school students this week after spending nearly three weeks at Southern High School as participants in an annual foreign exchange program between Southern and Lycie Lesage in Vannes, France. During their stay they enjoyed a number of days off from school because of severe weather conditions, but also participated in a variety of school, community, and recreational activities. The students are pictured above with their local hosts. In the front row, left to right, are: Marine Allain, Julie Bruckey, Catherine LeMen, Kerri Vanderbilt, Natalie Wolf, Evell Delzangles, Jaime Jacoby, and Gurvan Le Bourhis. In the second row, same order, are: Jennifer Wilson, Avery Johnson, Anne-Gaelle Quenéhervé, Matthieu Renaud, Jason Miller, Sarah Paugh, Jennifer Shillingburg, Sollen Allano, Jennifer Berkeridge, Jenny Finkel, Olivier Cado, Jean-Charles Rio, and Kelly Avona. In the back row, same order, are: Antoine Rouillon, Tony Doublet, Josh Teets, Sophie Plunian, Sophie Ruaud, Laurent Botherel, Julie Elswert, Christelle Rizio, and Abby Nichols. Each of the French students was presented an American flag and a booklet on the United States, courtesy of Lodge 11, Woodmen of the World, Oakland. Coordinating the exchange were Madame Janine Busson, English teacher at the Lycie Lesage, and Lowell Leitzel, French teacher at Southern, who have worked together on four such exchanges. Leitzel and a group of eight Southern High School students will complete the exchange by traveling to France on March 31 and spending three weeks.

Energy Assistance Applications Now Being Accepted

Garrett County Community Action Agency is still accepting applications for the Maryland Energy Assistance Program (MEAP).

MEAP will provide assistance to eligible low-income, elderly and disabled households. Renters, roomers and boarders are also eligible to apply for MEAP. To date, nearly 2,100 applications have been filed.

Individual MEAP benefits are based on the type of fuel used and households incomes. The gross income eligibility standards for one is $871 maximum; two persons, 1,179 maximum; three persons, $1,486 maximum; and four persons, $1,794.

The benefit is sent to the heating supplier after certification of the application. Renters, whose heat is included in their rent, will receive a letter indicating a benefit was sent to the landlord. That amount is deducted from rent payments.

MEAP is a one-time per year assistance benefit. Clients are urged to continue making regular payments for utilities and heating to avoid shut-offs. In the event of emergency situations, it is possible to have delivery of the fuel benefit provided within 24 hours. Proper documentation of income must be provided in advance of emergency delivery, and these deliveries will be deducted from the regular benefit.

Applications can be filed at Garrett County Community Action Agency, 104 E. Center Street, Oakland, on a walk-in basis. Persons may call (301) 334-9431, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m to 4:30 p.m., for more information.

At the Luke mill, Dandridge says the EPA proposal would cost $140 million. Westvaco is proposing to do essentially the same job for $32 million. The only significant difference is the Agency's proposed limit for AOX, or adsorbable organic halides.

AOX, Dandridge explained, is not a meaningful measure of toxicity.

The American paper industry has estimated that 30 mills will close and 275,000 jobs will be lost, including 19,000 mill jobs if the proposed rule takes effect.

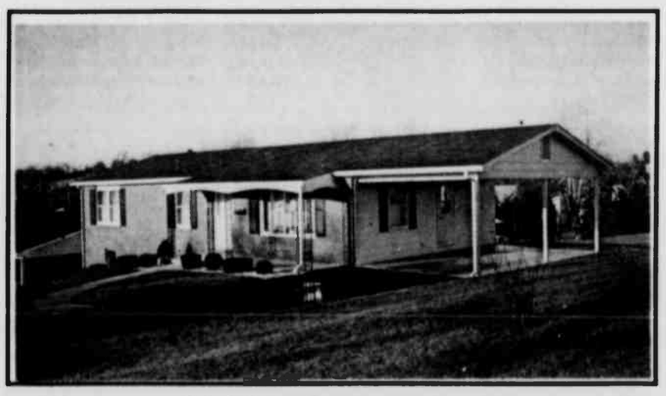
EPA Extends Cluster Rule Comment Period

The Environmental Protection Agency has extended until April 17 the comment period on the "Cluster Rule" controversy with the American Paper Industry, according to an announcement by Roger Dandridge, vice president and mill manager of Westvaco's Luke mill.

The controversy, which involves proposed new environmental regulations for the entire paper industry, has created significant differences between EPA and the industry, Dandridge said.

The company has asked for employee and community support concerning this controversy. The EPA rulemaking is potentially the costliest single regulation ever proposed by the Agency, Dandridge pointed out.



The Mill Manager expressed appreciation for the "outpouring of area support" for Westvaco's position.

Local Resident Earns Award In AQHA Horseback Riding Program

Thelma M. O'Brien, Swanton, recently earned an award for logging 1000 hours in the American Quarter Horse Association Horseback Riding Program, sponsored by Drysdales Western Store of Tulsa, Okla. The program provides AQHA members recognition for time spent riding American Quarter Horses.

Current AQHA members must complete an official application and pay a one-time $25 enrollment fee. Each participant receives an official AQHA log sheet to keep track of their hours. Members need not own their own horse, but all official hours must be accrued either riding or driving a registered American Quarter Horse.

The first award, a program recognition patch, is presented after 50 hours have been logged and verified. Additional patches are awarded at the 100- and 250-hour levels, with those achieving the 250-hour level receiving a belt buckle featuring the Horseback Riding Program logo. At 500 hours, participants receive a $25 gift certificate from Drysdales Western Store of Tulsa, Okla., good toward the purchase of an official AQHA jacket, a light-weight David James jacket, Justin Lace-up or Roper boots, an AQHA watch or a combination of two shirts, blouses or jeans. Any rider logging 1,000 hours receives a $50 gift certificate for Justin calfskin boots, Ladies Justin Spectator Lace-R's, selected Montana Silversmiths belt buckles, or selected AQHA watches or clocks. Those attaining the 2,000-hour level are awarded a $100 gift certificate redeemable toward Dan Post ostrich boots, a Resistol Black Gold hat, or Limited Edition masterpiece AQHA watches.

O'Brien says it took her almost two years to reach her 100-hour goal. She was working at the same time that she was trying to put in hours riding, and her horse, a six-year-old mare named Vanamoras Top Win, had a foal last June and it became even more difficult to find time to ride. She has owned her Quarter Horse for three years and takes her to the fair and to local shows. "I did ride in one 40-mile competitive ride in Ann Arundel County. That was really an experience. I had ridden in 25-mile rides before but never a 40."

She also owns another mare which will be 31-years old in May that she has had for 20 years. Most of her riding is done on the farm she and her husband, Tom, own on Rt. 495 near Swanton. The couple have three grown children, one still at home, and a three-year-old granddaughter who shows a lot of interested in horses.

O'Brien plans to continue logging hours in the AQHA program, and is working toward the 250-hour level.

For additional information about the AQHA Horseback Riding Program, those interested may contact AQHA at P.O. Box 200, Amarillo, Texas 79168, or call (806) 376-4811.

Farming In Maryland.....

Support Level Set For Wool

The federal support price for 1993 shorn wool marketings is $2.04 per pound, 7 cents per pound more than the 1992 level, according to Roger Richardson, chairperson, Maryland State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. Mohair marketings will be supported at $4.738 per pound, 12.5 cents per pound more than the 1992 rate.

Richardson said price support payments are computed as a percentage of each producer's returns from grease basis sales. "The percentage is the amount required to raise the national average for price for 1993 wool up to the $2.04 per pound support price."

Mohair will be supported at 85 percent of the percentage of parity at which shorn wool is being supported. The mohair payment rate will be determined to a manner similar to shorn wool, Richardson said.

"Pulled wool will continue to be supported at a level comparable to the price support level for shorn wool through payments on unshorn lambs," the ASCS official said.

Rural Income Opportunities Workshop Set

Farmers and other rural landowners can explore opportunities to produce additional income from their property at a workshop on "Income Opportunities For Rural Areas Utilizing Your Natural Resources."

Sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia and the Small Business Development Center, the workshop will be held Saturday, April 16, at the Center for Career and Technical Education in Cresaptown, just 5 miles south of Cumberland on Rt. 220.

"Response to this very popular workshop in past years has been extremely encouraging," says Jonathan Kays, a natural resource specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "Participants at past workshops have made it clear that private landowners are interested in using their natural resources to meet recreational demands and provide non-traditional products and services.

Kays believes that continuing concerns for the environment, especially as regards water quality and long term land stewardship will only increase interest in alternative income-producing enterprises.

The workshop will help prospective entrepreneurs and producers looking to diversify get started by providing them with information on how to produce, market and finance a variety of non-traditional products and services.

The morning program will explore various opportunities, examine legal and liability issues, discuss enterprise budgeting and marketing. After lunch there will be three breakout sessions:

1) Agritourism: Fee Fishing, Bed & Breakfasts and Guns, Grit and Glory.

2) Environmental Horticulture: Greenhouse Crops, Marketing Specialty Products and Maple Syrup Production.

3) Forestry & Natural Resources: Dollars from Woodlots, Mushroom & Ginseng production and Kiln Drying Opportunities.

A $12 registration fee includes lunch, morning coffee and donuts, break beverages, and informational materials. Pre-registration is required by April 8 and is being handled by the Allegheny County office of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. Call this office at (301) 724-3320 to request a brochure or to register by phone. Local Cooperative Extension Service offices in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia also have workshop brochures.

Pre-registration is strongly suggested to ensure those attending of getting the afternoon session of their choice.

For more information contact: Steve Bogash or Jonathan Kays at (301) 791-2298.

Number of U.S. Ag Workers Slightly Lower

There were 2.48 million people working on the Nation's farms and ranches during the week of January 9-15, 1994. This compares with 2.51 million people during the January 1993 survey week. Self employed farm operators accounted for 1.37 million of the total, along with 336,000 unpaid workers, and 637,000 workers hired directly by farm operators. Agricultural service employees working on farms and ranches made up the remaining 140,000 workers.

Farm operators paid their hired workers an average wage of $6.54 per hour during the January 1994 survey week. This rate was up 14 cents from a year earlier. Workers paid on an hourly basis earned $6.11 per hour compared with $5.99 in January 1993. Field workers received an average of $6.14 per hour, up 12 cents from the January 1993 survey week. Livestock workers earned $5.75 per hour compared with $5.64 a year earlier.

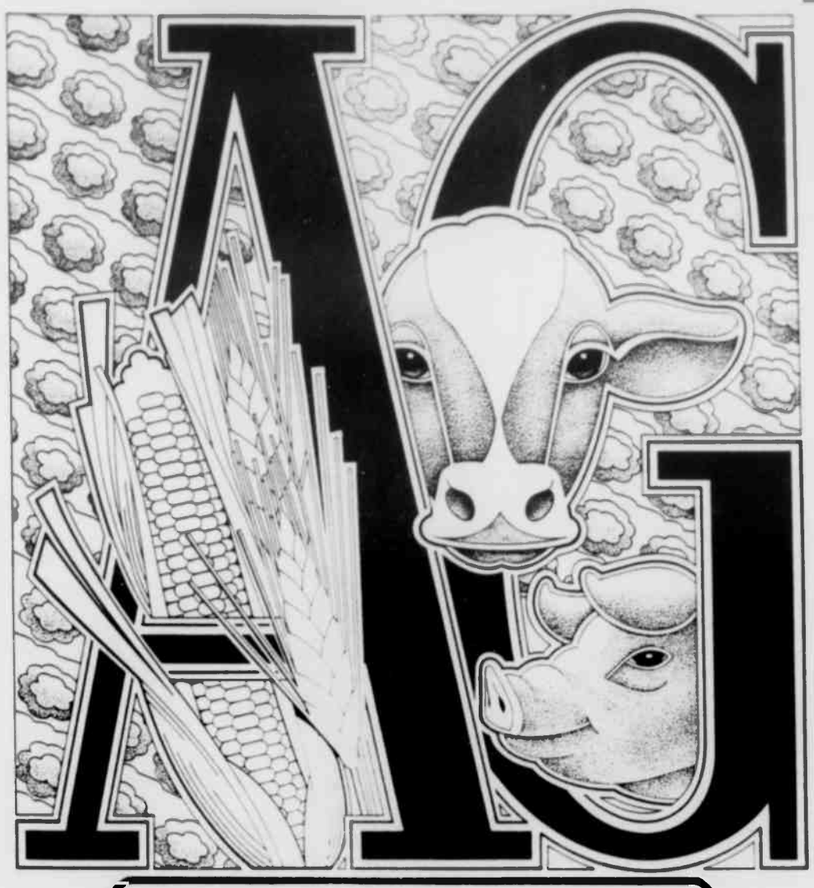
National Ag Day Celebration Today In D.C.

"National Agricultural Day" is a national observance to promote unity in the agricultural community and deliver positive and credible messages about the food and fiber industry to the non-farm public.

The celebration will be held in Washington, D.C., at the National Building Museum, Judiciary Square Metro (401 F. St. N.W.) on March 17. Exhibits open to the general public noon to 4 p.m., and Ag Day events will be held from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

This year's theme is new products and new uses from agricultural materials which are environmentally friendly.



The objective of ag day is to educate and create awareness among congressional and other federal officials, agribusiness representatives, farmers, consumer groups, environmental organizations and media about the importance and direction of new uses for agricultural materials and how this movement will have a positive impact on their lives. Approximately 1,500 people are expected to attend.

There will be nearly 40 exhibits from the federal government and the private sector. This includes major commodities like corn, soybeans, wheat, timber and new crops, particularly oil seeds and new fiber sources. The Departments of Agriculture, Defense, Energy and the EPA are also represented. Biomass to energy conversion, and alternative fuels are also featured. Exhibits show how public and private research is being cooperatively transferred into commercial products which benefit rural communities and are environmentally friendly.

A reception, hosted by the Agricultural Council of America, sponsor of Ag Day, will be held from 5:30 p.m. until 7:30 p.m. The program will feature Chairman of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees and Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittees, the Secretary of Agriculture, Mike Espy, and other federal representatives.

Rural America Is Diversified

The U.S. is now dominated and defined by its suburban communities, rather than by its rural edge. In 1990, for the first time in America's history more than half of the population lived in metropolitan areas containing over a million people. Most of the growth has been in this suburban ring since 1950.

Rural America's population is still declining. As a percent of the country's total population, rural population has been declining almost since the founding of the Republic. By 1990, only 25 percent of the nation's population lived in rural areas.

Approximately 84 percent of the contiguous land mass of the U.S. is rural.

Agriculture no longer dominates rural America. In 1890, 24.8 million Americans (42.3 percent of total population) lived on farms. By 1990, only 3.9 million (1.5 percent) lived on farms. Agriculture is no longer the major source of employment in rural America and it is no longer the major source of income for the majority of farmers.

Rural Americans are more likely to be poor than their urban relatives, and the gap is growing. In 1987, per capita rural income was only 73 percent of urban per capita income. Thirty-six percent of all rural children live near or below the poverty level, compared with 29 percent in urban areas.

Choose Poultry Replacements Carefully

With spring rapidly approaching, the time to buy day-old chicks for poultry flocks has arrived. Dr. Charles J. Wabeck, Extension poultry and food science specialist at the University of Maryland's Lower Eastern Shore Research and Education Center in Princess Anne offers some advice on buying and caring for chicks.

Dr. Wabeck says that one of the most important factors in buying day-old chicks is that the stock be purchased from a reputable source. The source has a large influence on the health and reproductive capabilities of the flock. He warns growers to be wary of hatcheries that sell bargain day old chicks at low prices. Often these are the source of weak, non-productive poultry.

Wabeck stresses that buyers should make sure their hatchery source is part of the National Poultry Improvement Plan (NPIP), which regulates standards of cleanliness and sanitation, to ensure a healthy flock. NPIP flocks also have been tested free of Pullorum-Typhoid, a disease that shows up in the infected parents' offspring as unthriftiness, slow growth, diarrhea and mortality. Buying from clean hatcheries is an important management practice that improves flock health.

"It's important that proper management and health practices are followed once the stock reaches your premises," declares Wabeck. If the following practices are put into use, the grower will have a greater chance of having healthy and profitable poultry:

1. Always feed a commercial starter ration that has vital nutrients necessary for proper poultry development.

2. Give baby chicks a medicated feed with a coccidiostat which prevents an internal parasite that decreases growth.

3. Provide fresh water at least once a day.

4. Practice good biosecurity to decrease spread of disease. Do not let persons with clothing worn in other chicken houses enter your premises and do not visit other people's chicken houses without clean, disinfected clothes. Also, keep your birds confined, so they can not roam and contract diseases from wild birds or animals.

5. Keep wild birds and rodents off your premises, they eat feed that is costly and are carriers of disease, as well.

The Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland at College Park, provides two valuable publications for the use of small flock owners. Sources of Poultry and Supplies for Small Flock Owners provides a partial list of commercial firms that supply eggs, as well as day-old and grown birds. It can be obtained from the Department of Poultry Science, Room 3115, Animal Sciences Center, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742, or from the Lower Eastern Shore Research and Education Center, 11990 Strickland Drive, Princess Anne, MD 21853-1247.

A second publication, Your Home Flock (MEP 400), provides management and health maintenance information for small flock owners. For a copy, those interested may write to Information and Publications, University of Maryland, 6200 Sheridan St., Riverdale, MD 20737.

The Garrett County Cooperative Extension Service is a source of additional educational materials, and can be reached by calling 334-1990.

Indonesian Diplomat Visits Dept. Of Ag

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker welcomed P. Natigor Siagian, agricultural attache for the Republic of Indonesia, February 24, to discuss biotechnology assistance for Indonesia.

"The Indonesian government plans to strengthen its beef and dairy cattle industry. Our state was approached for assistance because of our world renowned technical expertise in livestock industries. Along with the University of Maryland, we plan to help where we can," Walker said.

According to Walker, a Memorandum of Understanding between Maryland and Indonesia will soon be concluded to facilitate this technical assistance.

Maryland's Century Farm Program

Has your family farm been in ownership and operation for one hundred years or more? If so, you may be interested in the Century Farm Program. The purpose of this program is to recognize Maryland's agricultural heritage of farm families who have operated the same farm for a century or longer. The farm families who qualify will be invited to participate in an awards ceremony conducted by the secretary of agriculture and receive a certificate signed by the governor and secretary of agriculture. The farm family will also be listed in the Century Farms plaque at the Maryland Department of Agriculture and receive a sign suitable for posting on the farm. Families eligible for listing in the State or National Registers of Historic Places receive additional benefits (explained in application).

The farm must meet the following criteria:

- The farm must be owned by the same family for at least 100 consecutive years to date of application. The farm must either be lived on, or actually farmed by, a descendent of the original owner.
- The farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holding, and gross over $2,500 annually from the sale of farm products.
- Applications must include a copy of the legal description of the land from deed, abstract or tax statement.

Applications may be obtained by contacting: Garrett County Extension Service, 202 So. Third St., Oakland, MD 21550; phone 301-334-1990.

Are You Planning To Frost Seed?

March is the time to frost seed. Over-seeding with clover or birdsfoot trefoil generally produces good results. The concept is that the frost causes the soil to open up and engulf the seed. Before frost seeding a field, it would be advisable to check the field to see if soil heaving is actually occurring. If not, you would obtain better results by no-tilling the seed. Heavy snow cover has kept many fields from freezing.

Attention Horse Owners

You are invited to a special workshop on Tuesday, March 29, at 7 p.m. at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. Dr. James Price, DVM, will present a program on horse health and nutrition. Ken Seehler will be covering the topics of pasture management. A buffet dinner will be served promptly at 7 p.m., compliments of Southern States Cooperative, Mtn. Lake Park. Dinner reservations will be needed by March 25 by calling 334-3121. All youth are especially welcome to attend.

The class included learning about job hunt strategies, getting to know oneself, what self-esteem means to a student returning to classes or to the work world, ways to build self esteem, what stress is and how to manage it, combining work with family obligations, time and budget management, resume writing, and job interview techniques.

Several interest tests were administered to students to determine their career interests including the Career Assessment Inventory, the Holland Code Self Directed Search, and the GATB (General Aptitude Test Battery).

Maryland Bank Commissioner Issues Warning

State Bank Commissioner Margie Muller today issued a warning to financial institutions and consumers regarding the use of so-called "Certified Money Orders" that are "redeemable" at either of the following addresses: L. A. Pethahiah, P.O. Box 287, Tigerton, Wisconsin; and O.M.B., W.D. McCall, P.O. Box 500-284, Victoria, Texas.

Banks submitting these "Certified Money Orders" for redemption receive a worthless "Certified Bankers Check" that is not drawn on any financial institution.

Bank regulators and state and federal law enforcement officials in at least eight states are investigating these activities, which appear to have begun in the Midwest, but have recently spread to Maryland. Sellers of money orders in Maryland are licensed and regulated by the bank commissioner. The sale of money orders without a license is illegal. More importantly, consumers who acquire these instruments to pay off their debts will find that the debts remain unpaid. Both consumers and financial institutions are victimized by worthless money orders, Muller said.

Muller asks that anyone with any information on the source or promotion of "Certified Money Orders" contact Assistant Bank Commissioner Perry McAtee at 410-333-6817.

WEPCO Holds Annual Meeting

WEPCO Federal Credit Union, Bloomington, held its 44tb Annual Membership meeting on Saturday, March 12, at the American Legion Victory Post #155 in Westernport. Approximately 180 members, officials, and credit union staff gathered for the presentation of the annual report.

James Weasenforth, chairman of the Board, introduced guests, who included Harris LeFew, public relations manager of Westvaco Corporation; John Eckes, Maryland Credit Union League; Bill and Margl Hood, Piedmont Herald; and Rev. William Brown of the Bloomington Methodist Church and his wife, Sylvia.

Newly appointed to a three-year term on the board was David A. Mountain, Oakland, by petition. Three current directors were re-elected for three-year terms: Joseph "Pepper" Inskeep, William Smith, and Donald DeVore. Two credit committee members were re-elected for three-year terms: Robert Alkire and William McKenzie.

Weasenforth gave recognition to the staff, board of directors, supervisory committee, credit committee, Past President Melvin Foley, and Charter Member Chester Marsh. He also recognized Bill Hood of the Piedmont Herald and Mayor of Piedmont and his wife, Marg.

WEPCO management staff emphasized the growth of the credit union with the opening of their 10,000th member account, the lowering of the VISA credit card rate from 14.5% to 11.75%, the addition of the secured VISA program with a rate of just 6.00%, the very recent start-up of their MAC Card (Money Access Card) program, and their home-equity line of credit program.

Frank Woy, vice chairman, then drew tickets and awarded door prizes to winners. The big door prize, an RCA 19" color television, was won by Earl Stafford of Lonaconing. Other prizes were awarded to: Edith Jack, Bob Wiltison, Catherine Femi, Faye Kuhlmann, Rosetta Amann, Mary Foley, Bob Riser, Polly Weasenforth, Frank Fike, Doris Corrie, Jim Newlon, Elrose Smith, Phyllis Nicol, Tom Wilkinson, Red Harvey, Jessica Savage, Vicki Thayer, Joe Alongi, Norma Buckholtz, and Bill Jones.

Local Employers Being Sought For Job Fair

Local employers are now being invited to participate in the third annual Garrett County Job Fair which will be held Saturday, April 23, from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. The Deep Creek Lake Business Association is sponsoring this event in coordination with the Garrett Community College Job Placement Center, the Maryland Job Service, and the Western Maryland Consortium.

According to program coordinator Sandy Major of GCC, the Job Fair will provide an opportunity for local employers to recruit employees for summer or year-round jobs. Approximately 300 community members and students participated in last year's fair. Candidates seeking hospitality and entry level work, as well as those seeking management, bookkeeping, secretarial and skilled trades positions participated.

Major said an individual display table will be set up at the college for each employer. This display table will be staffed by the employer to provide details about job opportunities and application information. Employers may also display information about their business and conduct mini-interviews at the Job Fair. Employers who are not hiring in the near future are encouraged to provide information about their businesses and possible future job opportunities.

The GCC Job Placement Center will invite local students and community members, as well as students from West Virginia University, Potomac State College, Frostburg State University, and Allegany Community College to attend the fair.

Employers who would like to participate should contact Lynne Glotfelty or Ann White at the GCC Job Placement Center at 387-3080 immediately.

Deadline For Medicare Part B Is March 31

Persons who don't have Part B of Medicare and want it, have until March 31 to sign up, says Thomas W. Armbruster, Social Security manager in Cumberland. Every year, the government offers a three-month enrollment period during which people who turned down or previously dropped the Part B coverage can sign up for it.

Part B coverage, also called "medical insurance," helps pay for doctors' care, outpatient hospital visits, and other medical services. Individuals are offered the option of signing up for Part B at the same time they are automatically enrolled in Medicare's Part A program. Part A helps pay for inpatient hospital care and certain other services.

Individuals who want to sign up for Part B should call the Cumberland Social Security office or call Social Security's toll free number: 1-800-772-1213. Callers are advised to avoid peak business periods by calling later in the week and later in the month.

Student Art To Be Displayed At Frostburg State

High school students will display their art in a colorful exhibition at Frostburg State University from March 30 through April 5. The exhibit may be viewed from 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays through Tuesdays, and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Paintings, drawings, sculptures and other art forms will be shown by students of the following art teachers: Wayne Toote (Fort Hill High School in Cumberland), Beverly Johnson (Frankfort High School in Ridgeley, W.Va.), Sonia Pratt and Linda Reeves Cooke (Southern High School in Oakland), and Terry Rotruck (Keyser High School in Keyser, W.Va.).

On Saturday, April 2, faculty in the Department of Visual Arts at FSU will present an array of art activities for the exhibiting students. From 2 to 3 p.m., the art professors will conduct a kaleidoscope of art demonstrations and studio workshops. They will host a reception at 3 p.m., highlighted by an awards ceremony, in the Roper Art Gallery.

Other opportunities to see the exhibition may be arranged through the Department of Visual Arts at (301) 689-4797.

Jobless Rates For January Are Announced

The Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED) has announced Maryland's regional and area unemployment rates for January 1994. Among the state's 24 local jurisdictions, unemployment rates ranged from a low of 3.3 percent in Montgomery County to a high of 17.4 percent in Worcester County. The statewide unemployment rate was 6.4 percent in January.

DEED cautions that comparisons should not be made between January 1994 data and data from December or January 1993. Beginning in January 1994, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has made significant changes in the way data is collected. In addition, the January 1994 data incorporate revised population estimates based on the 1990 census, generally resulting in higher unemployment rates, particularly in areas with significant population growth in the past 10 years.

Colder than usual winter weather in the Western Maryland region resulted in the state's highest regional unemployment rate of 10.9 percent in January. Washington County experienced significant manufacturing layoff activity, causing the unemployment rate to increase to 9.6 percent in January. In both Allegany and Garrett counties, jobless rates rose to double digits at 12.0 percent and 14.5 percent, respectively. Garrett County's December rate was 12.8 percent and the January 1993 rate was 13.6 percent.

In Memory of
who passed away March 19, 1993

It hasn't been long since you were taken away
There are so many things we didn't get the chance to say.
Not a day goes by, we still don't get the urge to cry
Over our memories of you, when you were still by our side.
There are so many things we do that can't help but remind us of you.
We miss you more with each passing day,
And wish you were here with us still today.

Oakland Man Pleads Guilty To Sex Offenses

An Oakland man pleaded guilty to two sex offense charges last week in Garrett County Circuit Court. The charges against Daniel W. Wolfe, 33, arose over 10 years after the alleged offenses, according to the court document. Judge Fred A. Thayer presided.

Wolfe entered the guilty pleas to two charges of third degree sex offense following a plea agreement. Charges not prosecuted included child abuse, second degree sex offense, and sodomy. Thayer accepted the guilty pleas and ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Bail was continued.

The charges stemmed from incidents that took place in February through June of 1980. Wolfe was apparently babysitting two young boys, aged 6 and 8, during that time, and sexually molested both children. The defendant was 18 years old at the time, and when approached by law officers 13 years later in the fall of 1993, he apparently admitted to having committed the crimes.

In a separate case, a Frostburg man pleaded guilty to drug charges and was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Michael J. McQuaid, 24, was arrested in September 1993 following the execution of a search and seizure warrant of his home, which reportedly turned up seven five-foot-high marijuana plants and various drug paraphernalia. The "street value" of the

Penelec, DNR Agree To Reduce Management Fees At Deep Creek

Recent efforts by District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards and District 1 Senator John J. Hafer to negotiate agreements with the Pennsylvania Electric Company (Penelec) and the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to reduce by $70,000 the annual required fees at Deep Creek Lake have been successful.

The reduction pertains to and covers the first five years of a lease management agreement between Penelec and DNR, under which DNR would continue to oversee recreation at the lake.

That agreement, however, has not yet been approved by the Board of Public Works, according to reports.

Edwards and Hafer have both recently participated in a series of meetings with Penelec, DNR, and the Garrett County Commissioners in an effort to craft the fee-reduction agreement. The intention was to reduce the requirement by a total of $105,000, with the county, DNR, and Penelec each contributing a total of $35,000.

DNR and Penelec agreed to the reduction but the county commissioners voted 2-1 against the proposal, declining to contribute the requested $35,000.

Although Commissioner John Braskey voted in favor of the county's contribution, explaining that he felt the money could come from the county's accommodation tax, Commissioners Brenda Butscher and Elwood Groves opposed the action.

"The amount requested represented for us a new cash contribution, whereas DNR and Penelec simply had to reduce their fee requirements," stated Groves. "It is not appropriate to ask us to solve the problem when we have not been involved in the discussions over the past few years. By law, we do not own the lake and we don't regulate it."

Commissioner Butscher also voted against the proposal, and reportedly said it would not be fair to the average Garrett County taxpayer to take $35,000 from the county coffers to help defray the cost of dock fees at the lake.

Braskey pointed out,

Two Structures Destroyed, Another Sustains Major Damage By Fires

Local volunteer fire fighters were kept busy for several hours last Thursday afternoon and again Tuesday morning when fires broke out at a mobile home near Gorman, at a Grantsville area house, and at a summer residence along Lake Shore Drive at Deep Creek Lake. The mobile home and the summer residence were destroyed, while the Grantsville area house sustained major damage.

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management dispatched fire fighters from Gorman and Bayard at 12:47 p.m. last Thursday, and moments later sent additional help from the Oakland VFD, to the mobile home, which was located along the Chisholm Road off Rt. 560.

When firemen arrived on the scene flames were coming through the roof and windows of the trailer, which was owned by Roger Uphold. The blaze was believed to have started from an overheated furnace. The fire destroyed the trailer, most of its contents, and an adjoining addition, according to Gorman VFD Captain Drew Sheally.

Units remained on the scene until 4:56 p.m. Also responding was the county air cascade vehicle, presently being housed at Deer Park Community VFD, and the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

A fire caused by a person smoking a cigarette in bed caused an estimated $25,000 damage to the Grantsville area house later Thursday afternoon.

Grantsville and Bittinger volunteer fire fighters responded to the Harvey Minnick residence, located along New Germany Road about one mile south of Grantsville, at 4:24 p.m.

According to Jim Martin, deputy state fire marshal, the fire originated in the basement of the one-story wood-frame dwelling. He said that a member of the family uses the finished basement as a living area and that the fire was started in a bed by a person smoking a cigarette.

The fire was contained in the basement area, where it destroyed a stereo, the bed, and some of the floor. It also damaged electrical wiring and water lines, and caused considerable heat and smoke damage in the Local Soloists To Perform In Choral Society Concert

The Garrett Choral Society will present "Palm Sunday - A Celebration of Christ" at St. Paul's United Methodist Church on Saturday and Sunday, March 26 and 27. A repertoire of sacred music is planned, with several area residents performing solos or duets.

The concert will open with G.G. Wagner's Blessing, Glory, Wisdom, and Thanks, with an antiphonal choir consisting of Wayne Callis, Wilda Massi, Lowell Leitzel, and Jann Dehus. The Contemporary chorus Alleluia by Randall Thompson will be performed next, followed a Romantic period piece by Johannes Brahams, How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place. The concert will then return to the classical era with Mozart's Ave Verum.

Thomas Dubois's Seven Last Words of Christ will be presented in the second half of the program. The sacred cantata recounts Jesus Christ's final hours, with the anger and rejection of the masses shown in contrast to Christ's quiet compassion.

Performing solos or duets in this piece will be Maureen Mielenz, Bill Grant, Wilda Massi, Don Sincell, Jim Harvey, Mary McEwen, Susan Peterson, Pat Compitello, Tom Peterson, and Pegg Janney.

Ellinor Benedict, a professional cellist and Grantsville resident, will accompany the choral group in this work.

The concert will conclude with Beethoven's Hallelujah.

The Choral Society will be accompanied throughout by Dr. David Sheets, organist.

Saturday's concert will begin at 8 p.m., and Sunday's will begin at 2:30 p.m. Admission will be $5 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under. Tickets are available at Englander's Pharmacy, Oakland.

"Holding Our Own" Exhibit In Baltimore

The "Holding Our Own" installation project, which was exhibited at the Garrett Community College Bausch & Lomb Art Gallery in November, is currently on exhibit at Maryland Art Place, located on 218 W. Saratoga Street in Baltimore, according to curator Linda Reeves-Cook, Oakland artist and Southern High School art teacher.

The project is based on the personal experiences of 15 Garrett County women, who have displayed items of personal significance in furniture drawers.

Other local women contributed essays, titled, "If I Only Had One Drawer," that also became part of the exhibit. One of those essays was submitted by Pamela Ashby, who was killed in a car accident on January 11 of this year. Reeves-Cook has dedicated the exhibit to her memory.

The exhibit will run from March 26 to May 7. Gallery hours are 11 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.

Fugitive From New Jersey Is Arrested By Sheriff's Office

A New Jersey fugitive from justice was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office this week. Nigel A. Ciurleo, 30, Hillsboro, N.J., was stopped by an officer for displaying bad tags, according to the report. A check revealed that the vehicle Ciurleo was driving had been stolen in Somerville, N.J., on March 19.

Ciurleo was arrested and incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail, where is awaiting extradition to New Jersey.

In a separate case, a Friendsville woman was arrested on the charge of battery. Nancy J. Rothrock, 46, Friendsville, is alleged to have battered an elderly women who was in her care.

Wendell J. Yoder, 28, Salisbury, Pa., was arrested on the strength of two bench warrants, according to the report. He is accused of probation violations.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of William P. Gank, 20, Oakland. Gank apparently failed to pay deferred payments.

County Receives ARC Funding For Plan Update

Governor William Donald Schaefer announced last week that funding has been approved by the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) for Phase II of the Garrett County Comprehensive Plan update. The ARC grant for Phase II will support development of the County Comprehensive Plan, entitled "A New Development Plan for Garrett County." The plan elements will include Development Goals and Policies, Land Use, Community Facilities, Mineral Resources, Transportation, Sensitive Areas, and Plan Implementation.

In addition to the $55,917 Appalachian Regional Commission grant, the state has approved a Local Transportation Planning Assistance Grant of $30,983 for the Plan Update process. These funds are administered jointly through the Maryland Office of Planning and Maryland Department of Transportation.

An important component of the Phase II work program will involve the updating of seven Garrett County municipal plans. The degree of work required for each plan will vary. Each existing plan will be analyzed with particular attention focusing on transportation element policies and proposals and jurisdictional compliance with the state's Economic Growth, Resource Protection, and Planning Act. This joint initiative between a county and its municipalities to meet requirements of the Planning Act may serve as a model for the rest of Maryland.

A consultant will prepare the draft county plan for consideration by the planning and zoning commission. The planning commission is expected to recommend adoption of the plan to the Garrett County Commissioners in 1995 after receiving public review and comment.

Phase I of the planning process included a background study and analysis of the county. This was also funded in part by a $50,000 ARC grant. Planning grants provided by the ARC require a local match and are administered through the Maryland Office of Planning.

One Woman Killed, Two Injured In Monday Morning Car Accident

A Rawlings woman who was employed by the Garrett County Health Department was killed in a three-vehicle accident Monday morning on Rt. 220 near Danville. Sharon K. Snyder, 48, was pronounced dead at the scene after her car was struck head-on by a vehicle driven by Jennifer P. Moon, 23, Oakland. Moon remains hospitalized at Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was listed in stable condition this morning. A third person, Wanda M. Blauch, 54, Keyser, W.Va., was also slightly injured in the 8:05 a.m. mishap. She was reportedly treated and released at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland.

According to reports, the Moon vehicle, a 1989 Pontiac Grand Am, crossed the center line and struck the Snyder vehicle, a 1992 Toyota Tercel, head-on. The Tercel then spun around and hit a 1992 Ford Tempo, driven by Blauch. The accident apparently caused Rt. 220 to be closed for nearly two hours.

Responding to the accident scene were the McCoole and Rawlings fire companies and ambulances from the Keyser, Tri-County, and Cresaptown emergency services.

Sharon K. Snyder was born March 16, 1946, in Westernport. She was the daughter of Neva Elsie (Sweitzer) Lee, Savage River Road, and the late Elmer R. Lee Sr.

Ms. Snyder was a 1964 graduate of Bruce High School and a 1979 graduate of Allegany Community College with an associate of

Garrett County Memorial Hospital To Be Smoke Free As Of April 1

Effective April 1, Garrett County Memorial Hospital will be 100 percent smoke free, meaning that patients and visitors will not be permitted to smoke in the hospital.

"The change in the hospital's smoking policy initially came about because of a concern that was raised at a hospital safety committee meeting about employee exposure to secondhand or Environmental Tobacco Smoke (ETS)," said Tom Fowler, director of plant operations at Garrett Memorial and the hospital's safety officer.

Although visitors are not permitted to smoke in the hospital, patients are currently allowed to do so with physician authorization.

"The fact that Garrett Memorial will have an entirely smoke free environment as of April 1 sends a good message to the community," commented Richard Perry, M.D., director of emergency services at Garrett Memorial. Perry serves as physician advisor to the hospital's safety committee and played a key role in getting the current smoking policy revised. "When other public buildings are becoming smoke free, it only makes sense that institutions dedicated to promoting good health, such as hospitals, become smoke free as well," he said.

"This is the right thing to do for our employees at Garrett Memorial. Subjecting them to exposure of secondhand smoke should not be a condition of their employment," said Fowler.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency defines secondhand smoke as "a mixture of the smoke given off by the burning end of a cigarette, pipe or cigar, and the smoke exhaled from the

A LARGE CHIMNEY was among few remains of a Lake Shore Drive summer residence that was hit by fire Tuesday morning. Volunteer fire fighters from Deep Creek and Oakland fire departments were summoned to the scene just after 8:30 a.m. and, upon arrival, found the one-story wood-frame structure fully involved in flames. The house was owned by Louise Hickey, Gaithersburg, and was unoccupied at the time. The cause of the fire is still under investigation by the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office.

Opera Theater To Perform At Rt. 40 School

The Route 40 Elementary School invites the community to attend a free performance of the Opera Theater of Pittsburgh, to be presented at the school on Friday, March 25, at 1:30 p.m.

The "Music...Action...Opera," funded in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council, is a program designed to offer its audience an alternative to traditional opera. Its objectives are to give students a positive first experience with opera and to provide an opportunity for the students and artists to interact in the performance and in the discussion about the program.

Four singers and an accompanist will present costumed scenes from four of the following operas: Bernstein's "Candide," Mozart's "The Magic Flute," Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun," Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," Rossini's "La Cenerentola," Bizet's "Carmen," or Joplin's "Treemonisha." To aid in audience understanding, the selections will be performed in English.

"We look forward to this unique experience and hope the public will take advantage of this opportunity," stated a school spokesman. For further information or directions, persons may phone the school at 689-6132.

GCC Board Seeks Nominations For Top Contributors

The Board of Trustees of Garrett Community College announced this week that it is inviting nominations for the Award for Outstanding Contributions to Garrett Community College. The purpose of the award is to recognize individuals or organizations that have significantly and positively influenced GCC's mission and educational goals. Persons who wish to recommend a candidate may contact the GCC Office of the President at 387-3056 for further information and a nomination form.

To be considered, nominations must be delivered to the GCC Office of the President no later than April 6.

A new mayor and two new council persons were elected in the municipal election of Kitzmiller, held last month. E. James Barrick unseated incumbent Mayor William J. White III with 41 to 31 votes.

The two vacant council positions were won by Larry S. Gregg (57 votes) and Gerald Iman (50 votes). Judy A. Paugh received 32 votes.

There were two write-in votes, according to an election spokesperson.

The new mayor and council members assumed office on March 8. The mayor will serve a two-year term through 1996 and the councilmen will serve four-year terms through 1998.

Destruction Of Property Being Probed By GCSO

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is currently investigating incidents of property destruction in the local area. Three people contacted the office this week to report the apparent crimes.

Teresa J. Helbig, Mtn. Lake Park, contacted the police last Tuesday when she discovered that someone had scratched her car. The entire length of the vehicle was scratched, according to the report, causing approximately $800 in damage.

Ms. Helbig had parked the 1988 Chevrolet Beretta on the night of March 14, and the damage was done sometime between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.

In a second case, Benjamin Shaffer, Mtn. Lake Park, told police that someone had shot out the back window of his 1986 Chevrolet van. The vehicle was being driven by Gene Estill, and was parked at Midway Plaza on March 16. A pellet or BB gun was used to shoot the window sometime between 5:30 and 10:30 p.m.

The damage estimate was set at $200.

Carl A. Hinebaugh, Oakland, reported property destruction at the old "Oak Grove" bar on Rt. 39. Sometime after noon on March 20, an unknown culprit shot out two 3x5 windows and kicked in the front door, breaking the windows in it. A damage estimate was not indicated on the report.

Investigations into the incidents are continuing.

Swanton Woman Injured When Car Overturns

A young Swanton woman was injured Tuesday morning following a single vehicle accident on the Bittinger Road (Md. Rt. 495).

Eugenia M. Collins, 18, was initially listed in stable condition at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, but has since been released, according to a hospital spokesperson.

According to Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, Collins was injured when she lost control of the 1986 Ford Escort she was driving, as she rounded a curve at the bottom of a hill. The vehicle reportedly slid on an icy area, skidded across the roadway and overturned into a creek.

Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad responded to the 8:10 a.m. accident.

I-68 MISHAP

The driver of a tractor-trailer, was slightly injured after his rig skidded off I-68 near the Casselman Bridge, Grantsville, last Friday morning.

Charles McCallum, 30, Charlotte, N.C., was treated and released from Cumberland Memorial Hospital, according to a hospital spokesperson, after the tractor-trailer, owned by Builders Transport, Inc., Savannah, Ga., jackknifed, slid off the road, struck a guardrail and then overturned.

According to a state police report, McCallum was charged with an equipment violation and negligent driving following the 10:45 a.m. accident.

Northern Garrett Rescue Squad responded to the scene, as did the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department.

MORE ACCIDENTS

No citations were issued following additional mishaps caused by snow- and ice-covered roads Friday and on Saturday, according to MSP reports.

James M. Langley, 67, Oakland, was traveling south on the Foster Road, near Oakland on Friday, when his vehicle skidded off the road and struck a tree. Langley was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by a private vehicle.

Also on Friday, Hannah D. Kauffman, 42, Swanton, sustained minor injuries when her vehicle slid off New Germany Road, near Rt. 495, and traveled down an embankment.

Kevin L. Yoder, 19, Hyndman, Pa., escaped injury Saturday afternoon when he lost control of the vehicle he was operating on Rt. 495 near Bittinger. The vehicle struck a snowbank and overturned.

HIT & RUN

A hit and run mishap was reported at approximately 1:20 p.m., March 16, on an icy section of the Glendale Road.

Terry D. Murphy, 49, Keyser, W.Va., was operating a 1993 Ford F-350, owned by the Md. Department of Transportation. The vehicle was traveling up a hill near the State Park Road, behind an unidentified Ford pickup truck. The pickup reportedly came to a stop, backed into Murphy's vehicle, and then fled the scene.

THEFT/DEST. OF PROPERTY

The Westvaco construction workers' parking lot, Bloomington, was the scene of a reported theft and destruction of property Friday evening.

According to a report filed by Tfc. D.W. Broadwater, between 8 p.m. and 10:30 p.m., unknown persons entered the parking lot and broke windows in several vehicles parked there, and a small amount of money was stolen from one of the vehicles.

An investigation is continuing.

lungs of smokers." According to the American Cancer Society, recent studies estimate that ETS in the home and workplace is responsible for as many as 46,000 deaths of nonsmokers each year -- 3,000 of these deaths are due to lung cancer.

Garrett Memorial will work with patients who smoke to help them cope with the effects of not being able to smoke while in the hospital.

"The use of a nicotine patch may be prescribed by the physician to assist the patient in coping with the effects of nicotine withdrawal during their hospitalization," explained Perry.

"Medical evidence proves that smoking is harmful to health. It can cause diseases in smokers and those around them. Our hospital is taking the important step of eliminating tobacco smoke because we are committed to the health of our patients, visitors and employees," stated Benjamin Rosenthal, president of Garrett Memorial. "We are very aware of the stress that some of our patients may experience as a result of not being able to smoke in our hospital and will work with them to ensure that they have a comfortable hospital stay."

For persons wanting to stop smoking, Wellness Together of Garrett Memorial and the Garrett County Health Department offers the Smokestoppers Staying Stopped course. "This program provides behavioral support for individuals interested in quitting smoking by addressing weight control and stress management issues," said Debora Nichols, Wellness coordinator. "These two factors play major roles in keeping people from 'staying stopped' and we want to help to confront these problems."

For information about the Smokestoppers course, persons may call (301) 334-2155, ext. 443.

upstairs area, according to Martin.

Also responding to the scene was one unit from Salisbury VFD, the county air cascade vehicle, and the Northern Rescue Squad. Another Salisbury unit stood by at Grantsville's station.

The last unit left the scene at about 8 p.m. There were no injuries reported.

Fire fighters from Deep Creek and Oakland were summoned Tuesday at 8:36 a.m. when fire was discovered in a one-story, wood-frame structure along Lake Shore Drive, just over two miles south of U.S. Rt. 219.

The house, owned by Louise Hickey, Gaithersburg, was fully involved in flames upon the arrival of firemen. The wing of the house closest to the lake was already destroyed.

The house is used only during the summer months, so was unoccupied at the time. The cause of the blaze, which is under investigation by the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office, has not yet been determined. There was reportedly no heat on in the house. The loss has been estimated to be over $80,000.

Also called to the scene was a tank truck from Accident and the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported. A Deep Creek unit remained on the scene for nearly six hours and returned there Tuesday night after the fire rekindled.

Food For Thought

Chef Francesco Pisano
McClive's Restaurant

Americans eat, on an average, about 14.4 quarts of ice cream a year. Are you doing your part?

Want to cut fat and add flavor in baked goods? Substitute applesauce or fruit puree for some or all of the oil, margarine or butter in the recipe. Pureed banana, prunes or pumpkin work well.

Time was, only the fanciest cooks could create vol-au-vents, milles feuilles and other puff pastry treats. Today, though, easy-to-use puff pastry sheets in the grocer's freezer have made it a snap for any home cook to make these fabulous desserts.

Chicken must be cooked through to kill dangerous bacteria. It taste better that way, too. Juices should run clear if you pierce meat with a fork; leg meat should feel soft and the joint should move easily.

Smart cooks go to the market or the garden before they decide what to cook. Best bet is almost always the food that's in season--and it's always most reasonable, too.

Grantsville Man Found Guilty Of Drug Possession Charge

A Grantsville man pleaded guilty to possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

Lawrence D. Wilburn, 31, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, with all being suspended except 48 hours, fined $250, and placed on one year of supervised probation by Judge Ralph Burnett. Additional charges of possession of CDS with intent to manufacture, distribute and dispense, and possession of CDS paraphernalia with intent to use, were not prosecuted because of plea agreements with the state's attorney's office.

According to court documents, Tfc. S.W. Vincent of Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, Drug Enforcement Division, was issued a search and seizure warrant and, along with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, had entered Wilburn's residence on Oct. 1, 1993. During the search, three pipes containing marijuana residue, five bags of marijuana, four marijuana plants, and one pill bottle containing marijuana seeds were recovered, resulting in his arrest.

Wilburn was also found guilty on a violation of probation charge (his sixth offense), stemming from a June 1992 fourth-degree sex offense involving a 15-year-old girl. The judge reimposed the defendant's original incarceration time, with all suspended except 30 days. His sentence was ordered to be served concurrent with the CDS conviction.

Randall L. Mitchell, 26, Havre De Grace, also pleaded guilty to CDS possession charges in last week's court proceedings. A 30-day sentence, with all being suspended except 48 hours, a $350 fine, and six months of supervised probation were imposed by Judge Burnett. A charge of CDS possession with intent to use was not prosecuted by the state's attorney.

Mitchell was arrested by Natural Resources Police on Nov. 27, 1993, after they observed his vehicle parked partially in the roadway on Spring Lick Road. Upon checking the vehicle for possible illegal hunting activity, the officers detected an odor of burning marijuana. A subsequent search of the vehicle revealed a wooden container filled with marijuana, and a small, green, wooden pipe containing marijuana. Court records indicate Mitchell waived his rights and admitted to owning and smoking the marijuana, resulting in his arrest.

Not guilty verdicts were handed to Terry W. Sharpless, 32, Frostburg, for CDS possession and possession of CDS paraphernalia with intent to use, stemming from an April 1993 incident at the home of Brian DeBerry, Mtn. Lake Park. State police officers were in the process of executing a search and seizure warrant at DeBerry's home, where they found CDS and paraphernalia. According to the court record, Sharpless arrived on the scene later, and, following a search, was found to be in possession of a brass smoking pipe containing suspected marijuana.

Willie G. Friend, 41, Oakland, was sentenced in court last week after he had been found guilty of battery. He was sentenced to 12 months in jail, with all but six months of that sentence suspended, fined $350 and placed on one year of supervised probation upon his release. An additional battery charge, and a violation of a protective order were not prosecuted because of plea agreements with the state's attorney.

Friend was arrested following a Nov. 27, 1993 incident at the home of Debra L. Friend, Mtn. Lake Park, who filed a battery charge after he failed to comply with a six-month protective order, and entered her home. The defendant reportedly pulled the phone cord from the wall after a call was made to 911, and continued to strike Debra and Willie F. Friend, until police arrived approximately a half-hour later.

A sentence revision hearing was requested and has been set for April.

In other district court news, Tammy House, 23, Grantsville, had charges of telephone abuse, harassment, and disturbing the peace placed on the stet docket. She is to have no contact with the complainant, Karen D. Wiley.

James B. Richard Jr., 22, Oakland, was found not guilty to a charge of felony theft, stemming from a Sept. 3, 1993, incident at the Cecil E. Jackson Equipment Co., Oakland.

According to court records, a warrant was issued for Richard's arrest after an employee reported seeing him leave with two Goodyear tires and rims that had not been paid for, in the back of his pickup truck.

Two counts of battery, one count of malicious destruction of property, and one count of disorderly conduct in a public place against James B. Savage, 27, Friendsville, were placed on the stet docket. He is to have no contact with Vicki McCrobie or any member of her family.

Also placed on the stet docket was a battery charge against Mark A. Gallagher, 31, Oakland. He had been arrested by Cpl. L.E. Gnegy of the sheriff's office, following an Aug. 16, 1993 incident.

Joseph R. Welch, 18, was found guilty of being disorderly in a public place on Oct. 9, 1993, and was sentenced to 30 days in jail, with all being suspended except two days. He was also fined $550 and placed on six months of unsupervised probation.

Court records indicate Officer Shawn Groves of the Oakland Police Department was leaving the sheriff's office when he observed Welch exit his vehicle and run towards another subject, and strike him in the face. A fight ensued, and the officer intervened, separating the two and placing Welch under arrest.

A sentence revision request by Michael E. McDonald, 20, Elkton, was denied by Judge Burnett last week. McDonald had been convicted on credit card theft and forgery, both felonies, in August 1993. He was sentenced to three years in jail, with all but one year suspended, ordered to pay $1,104.35 restitution, and placed on three years of supervised probation for the offenses.

Probation before judgment was granted to James B. Wilder, 18, Baltimore, on one count of assault, and one count of battery, stemming from an altercation with a juvenile on Sept. 23, 1993, at the Backbone Mtn. Youth Center, Swanton. Wilder was placed on six months of unsupervised probation for each charge.

DNR CASE

Cases of hunting on private property without written permission against Henry O. Burns Jr., 52, Mtn. Lake Park, and Ralph J. Hardesty, 37, Crellin, were dismissed in last week's district court proceedings. Charges of hunting squirrels with a shotgun capable of holding more than three shells, and possession of deer during closed season, however, resulted in a $380 fine for Hardesty.

The two men had been cited by Department of Natural Resources Officer J. Milbourne on Nov. 8, 1993.

DWI CASES

Several DWI (driving while intoxicated) and DUI (driving under the influence of alcohol) cases were heard in Judge Burnett's court last week.

Rex A. Guthrie, 33, Md., was handed a guilty verdict for DWI and sentenced to one year in Garrett County Jail. All but 30 days of the sentence were suspended. Guthrie was also fined $800 and placed on two years of supervised probation. He had been charged with the offense on Dec. 13, 1993, by state police.

Richard B. Frambes, 23, Md., failed to appear in court on a DWI charge and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. His original bond was forfeited and a new bond set at $5,000. He had been charged with the offense by state police on Nov. 13, 1992.

Denver K. Eichorn II, 22, Md., had his DWI charge amended to DUI. He was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, fined $350, and placed on one year of supervised probation. Eichorn had been arrested by Garrett County Sheriff's Deputy Jeff Green on Oct. 10, 1993.

Mary E. Duckworth, 59, Md., also had a DWI charge amended to DUI. The judge imposed a 60-day suspended sentence, fined her $350 and placed her on one year of supervised probation. She had initially been arrested for DWI by state police officers on Feb. 11.

Two DWI convictions were handed to Anthony Kosowski, 50, Md., stemming from state police arrests on May 28, 1993, and again on Sept. 22, 1993. The guilty verdicts resulted in a total of seven months in jail, a $1,050 fine, and two years of supervised probation.

Margraff Seeks Sixth Term In Orphans' Court

Wilmer W. Margraff, Accident, has announced his candidacy for re-election as a judge of the Orphans' Court for Garrett County.

Margraff, who was appointed chief judge of the court by the governor, is currently serving his fifth consecutive term.

With 14 years of experience in the position, Margraff says he is "well versed and knowledgeable" on the Maryland Codes of Estates and Trust Laws and will continue his "consistent decision making while serving in this capacity."

Serving as his campaign treasurer is Linda Margraff

however, that the three percent accommodations tax on hotel and motel rooms, which brings in about $237,000 in revenues is to be used for promotion and economic development efforts in the county.

"Deep Creek Lake is certainly one of the most important economic development efforts in the county," he said. "I voted in favor of the request because I wanted to help the business people on the lake."

Groves then stated that he resented the county being asked to "sacrifice and make a long-term commitment.

"I have a problem with the attitude of DNR that was displayed at the recent public hearing where their position was one of a lack of commitment towards Deep Creek Lake."

Speaking for the Deep Creek Lake Business Association, Wendell Beitzel stated that an alternative plan was submitted by the group, along with the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners' Association, the Garrett County Commissioners, and the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council.

The alternate proposal called for DNR to continue its contribution of $105,000 to the lake -- an amount that had been cut from the budget this year -- and for the department to strongly consider instituting sticker fees, they say would generate about $150,000 annually.

"The real problem is that the lease management agreement is till unresolved," said Beitzel, who explained that the Board of Public Works will not sign the agreement between Penelec and DNR (which includes a permit agreement from the Water Resources Administration that would allow Penelec to use the lake water for the purpose of generating electricity) until a fee schedule is worked out between the groups involved.

"We want to get back to business, and it's getting late," he said. "The business community at the lake is at a loss, and we need to know what kind of fees to charge. DNR should have had this resolved and, instead, they've been a party to all this confusion."

Delegate Edwards and Senator Hafer stated they were pleased with the compromise agreement reached with DNR and Penelec. "We listened to our constituents and responded to what they were telling us," said Edwards. "We have worked diligently to reduce the fee requirements."

Commissioner Burcher, however, faulted the legislators, saying they did not get involved in the issue until recently and only after the commissioners requested their assistance.

A Slap in the Face...

Another prime example of short-sightedness and poor governance occurred this week in the Garrett County Board of Commissioners' office when two of the three commissioners voted against contributing $35,000 toward the management of Deep Creek Lake. The funds represented one third of a financial package that was agreed to by two other parties, namely Pennsylvania Electric Company, which is the owner of the lake property, and the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, each of which agreed to kick in $35,000.

The whole issue surrounding the lake management and dock fee schedule is complicated, and there are a number of "its" that have yet to be addressed. However, we see this rejection by Elwood Groves and Brenda Butscher as a slap in the face to the business owners on the lake, the lake property owners, and, indirectly, the Garrett County public at large, which benefits almost immeasurably from Deep Creek Lake.

We agree with Commissioner John Braskey that this money could have been taken from the approximately $2,537,000 that is generated by the accommodations tax, monies that come primarily from tourists and not out of the pockets of Garrett County taxpayers. This money is earmarked for promotion and economic development in the county anyway. The requested funds represent about 15 percent of the accommodations tax revenue and about one seventh of one percent of the total county budget.

The businesses along the lake, which attract visitors - and their money - to the county and which provide hundreds of jobs, could be extremely hard hit by whatever is ultimately worked out concerning dock fees. The lake property owners, who already pay the highest taxes of any particular group in the county and receive virtually no services for their money, will be asked to pay still more. The ultimate result of all this could be the closing of lake businesses, the departure of lake residents, and thus, the erosion of our tax base and all of its benefits which the rest of us non-lake residents enjoy today.

If nothing else, this was a golden opportunity for the commissioners to make a relatively inexpensive show of good faith toward the lake businesses and property owners. As it is, they appear to be totally uncaring and unconcerned about the lake, which is without a doubt Garrett County's greatest economical asset.

We applaud Commissioner Braskey for his sound logic and vision on this issue, and we urge competent individuals to come forth in this election year and file for the seats that are currently held by the other two commissioners, whose logic continues to escape us and whose vision barely reaches the ends of their noses.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I have not been happy about the negative articles about Tonya Harding. How do we know whether she is innocent or guilty? We seldom read a paper that someone is not blasting someone else. We have the same situation in our little town of Friendsville, because Spencer Schlosnagle supposedly did something he wasn't supposed to (I can't say he did or didn't, I wasn't there) our town has been criticized and laughed at.

At a meeting recently, a lady remarked she had been a "far piece" from home and when it was found out where she was from, people made snide remarks about the town and mayor.

I believe the first time Spencer did or didn't do something it was in the paper -- on the news down east that the "Friendliest little town in Maryland, Friendsville, wasn't so friendly." Why would what someone did in the town make the town unfriendly?

The only way this information could have gotten so widespread is if someone local called it in. I can't believe we have reporters from 200 miles -- more or less -- prowling around Garrett County waiting for some politician to make a mistake.

I have known Spencer Schlosnagle all his life. His parents had a local market and Spencer was always helping people. He was involved in local charities and his church. I don't think many people outside of the town of Friendsville ever heard of him until he was elected mayor and suddenly he is a hardened criminal and Friendsville is "Sin City."

For some reason he has been elected five terms for mayor and I believe by a fair majority. I have also heard people say he is the best mayor the town has ever had -- "that he gets things done." I do not know this, I do not mingle in the town business.

I also have seen a new car of his spray painted and with eggs thrown on it. I thought the days of lynching were over.

Has no other mayor in the state of Maryland ever made a mistake or done something wrong? Possibly. The locals probably thought enough of their town not to tell the world about it or condemn it.

My husband, children, and grandchildren are the sixth, seventh, and eighth generation (respectively) of the first John Friend, the founder of Friendsville. We live on part of the Friend Plantation where Gabriel Friend, (son of the first John) and his first wife, Betsy Bannel, lived. I lucked out when the wonderful man I married is a Friend, which made me a Friend and I am fed up with the "funny jokes about our town."

"He who is without sin, cast the first stone."

I work with animals and sometimes when I read this kind of "sludge" I am more convinced that I like animals better than some people. They do not talk about you, condemn you, out of jealousy, or try to destroy their habitat.

Of course, some people in the town of Friendsville are not natives and couldn't care less for this little town nestled in a valley along the Yough River where the Shawnee and Lenilenope Indians lived peacefully with the "white man" and his family.

As a member of the Friend Family Association of America (there are thousands of us) I believe there has been enough wrong done to this town. If people do not like it here, if they want to cause trouble for the town, move on. My decision to write this letter was based on a story I heard recently.

Someone told that while driving on I-68, Spencer Schlosnagle was seen on an overpass. I thought how could this be? I drove to an overpass on I-68 (I think they are all about the same height), stopped my car and looked up. There is no way -- while driving -- that high up, one could tell who a person was. How much else is not true?

Some people say Spencer has been framed out of jealousy over politics. I do not know what he has or has not done. I do not follow him around, but please let the town alone.

I do believe if there was a murder, rape, child molestation, or some other hard crime in Friendsville and Spencer Schlosnagle didn't do it the news would never get beyond Garrett and Allegany counties.

My late aunt, Amanda Schroyer once said, "It isn't the town; it's the disgusting people in it."

How true! How true!

To the Editor:

As one of the victims of the recent fire in downtown Oakland, I would like to thank the fire fighters who worked so bravely and tirelessly to extinguish the blaze. I am one of the fortunate ones in that I was able to relocate my business and become fully operational again within several days after the disaster.

A training film used by a fire department investigation division in Baltimore County illustrates the following ghastly facts:

One minute and four seconds after igniting, a sofa's polyurethane cushions melt, causing billows of toxic smoke.

At one minute 23 seconds, a living room is in flames, but there is no sign of fire in the rest of a house.

At one minute 35 seconds, a curtain of black smoke quickly falls in the living room and the temperature climbs to 190 degrees.

At one minute 47 seconds, the fire becomes restless and begins to prowl. Tendrils of smoke drift into a hallway and upstairs, tripping a smoke alarm. Fire professionals say when the alarm sounds, most people think of it as a two minute warning; however, this is not the case. When the detector goes off you have less than 30 seconds to get out.

Downstairs, the living room is an inferno. Two and a half minutes after the first flame, the temperature above the burning sofa is 400 degrees. A television set and VCR melt together, plastic toys become toxic blobs.

At four minutes the downstairs succumbs. Windows burst, releasing smoke and toxic gasses, the first outward sign of the inferno within.

Five minutes after the first flame, a single breath in an upstairs nursery is lethal.

It has been said that the power of fire deserves great respect and most people have no idea how quickly the benign flame of a candle or kitchen match can turn malevolent. The training film clearly confirms that.

Again, my sincerest thanks to the professionals who worked so diligently during the February fire.

Very truly yours,
Walt Renner

To the Editor:

It should be evident to all that the index of societal indicators is in a downward spiral. It is however, more difficult to ascertain the root causes of our present condition.

It is currently in vogue to point the finer at massive waste or mismanagement by our government as the root of our decline. In doing so we recognize the failures of governmental social programs, or shall we say socialism. We can sense that something has gone terribly wrong with America. Have we forgotten that we the people are the government?

John Locke in his Second Treatise notes: "yet the legislative being only a fiduciary power to act for certain ends, there remains still in the people a supreme power to remove or alter the legislative, when they find the legislative act contrary to the trust reposed in them ... And thus the community perpetually retains a supreme power of saving themselves from the attempts and designs of any body, even of their legislators, whenever they shall be so foolish or so wicked as to lay and carry on designs against the liberties and properties of the subject."

We are the problem! When we slam big government, we slam ourselves. With our right hand we say we want less government, less regulation and lower taxes; while on the other hand we glory in our local success in pilfering the public treasury!

Judgment begins at home, not in Washington D.C. We do not relish our hard earned money being poured into the bottomless welfare pit of Baltimore. Why then must we create and cherish our very own Garrett County welfare pit? We dislike lining the pockets of government housing developers. Why is it we stifle individual initiative by demanding subsidized projects in Garrett County? The government takes our money for so called public works projects and we scream pork barrel; unless of course said project will benefit us. There is public outrage when Joycelyn Elders says, when referring to public schools, "We've taught them what to do in the front seat (of a car). Now it is time to teach them what to do in the back seat." We should be equally disturbed when our local health department distributes birth control devices to minor, unmarried children without parental consent. Do we really want the board of education to undermine the family unit by providing psychiatric or psychological examination and treatment without parental knowledge or consent?

Just as surely as we are the problem, we are the solution! Now is the time to wean ourselves from the public coffers. Now is the time to rediscover our American heritage, and learn once again the roots of freedom. A free society is grounded in the morality of its citizens, and citizen morality is grounded in the principles of Christianity. Now is the time for personal commitment and national reconstruction.

Thomas Jefferson said, "And can the liberties of a nation be thought secure when we have removed their only firm basis, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are the gift of God? That they are not to be violated but with His wrath? Indeed, I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just that His justice cannot sleep forever."

Sincerely,
Patrick W. Riley

To the Editor:

After reading your article on page 1 of the Feb. 24, 1994 issue referring to the opposition comments made by Wendel Beitzel on the proposed PENELEC's lake user fees, I felt compelled to write and confirm my belief in the old saying, "What Goes Around, Comes Around."

I can well remember 10 or 11 years ago when Mr. Beitzel called a public meeting in the sewer authority office to hear public comments on the proposed Deep Creek Lake Sewer System. The meeting was held in the dead of winter forcing most lake property owners to drive hundreds of miles over very bad winter roads from Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh only to find out that so many people were in attendance that at least a hundred or more had to stand in the hall as we were told the meeting could not be moved within the same building to a larger meeting room.

Most of the questions put to the authority were met with blank stares and no comments, but when a P.O.A. member questioned why we had to pay full fee for the entire year and not a fee based on gallons of usage, as is the method used in all city sewage systems, a long pause occurred. We were then told by (guess who?) that the rate plan was developed by the engineering consultant and was not a subject for discussion.

It became obvious that the entire fee plan was designed to have the individual property owners build and pay for the local portion of the sewer system that would allow all the commercial business to expand and make lots of money.

The only simple solution to the problem is for the commercial operators to remove all their docks from the lake, which would result in no fee.

I did not have that option with the sewer system since it went past my house, I had to pay and pay and pay.

Thank you,
Charles E. McFarland

Out Of The Darkness

A NEW FRIEND IN TOWN
by Carol L. Cox

A new mutual-help support group for persons with depression or manic depression and their family members has formed in Garrett County.

Welcome DRADA! (Depression and Related Affective Disorders Association).

The mission of the organization is to alleviate the suffering arising from depression and manic depression by providing education and information, assisting self-help groups and lending support to research programs.

The new DRADA group meets the second Monday of each month from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

With accurate diagnosis and state-of-the-art treatment, more than 80% of persons with affective disorders can be helped. Depression and mania are lined to biochemical changes in the body, and one in every 10 people will suffer from an effective disorder in his or her lifetime. Unfortunately, only three in 10 persons gets any form of treatment. Currently treatment usually involves finding the medication which is most effective for the individual and supplementing this with supportive psychotherapy or counseling.

Recovery will be enhanced if one takes the opportunity to learn more about these illnesses. DRADA is a resource for information and help.

The next meeting will be Monday, April 11, at 7:30 p.m.

Interested persons are urged to call Joyce at (301) 359-0808 or Jean at (301) 334-2936 for more information.

Paying Taxes On Your Social Security Benefits

by Thomas W. Armbruster
Social Security Manager,
Cumberland

One of Ben Franklin's most famous sayings went something like this: "Nothing in life is certain but death and taxes." I have a hunch if Ben were around today he'd add: " . . . but nobody is certain about paying taxes on their Social Security benefits!" I'll try to make some sense of this very confusing issue.

First: if you're a Social Security beneficiary, the odds are you do not owe any taxes on your benefits. In fact, about 80 percent of all Social Security recipients don't pay taxes on the benefits they receive. Those who do are generally in the upper-income brackets.

Second: a word about income. You owe taxes on your benefits when your "combined income" exceeds certain limits. Combined income refers to your (and your spouse's) adjusted gross income as reported on line 31 of your tax return, plus one-half of your Social Security benefits, plus your nontaxable interest (generally, that's the interest your receive from bonds issued by a state or local government). To help you figure your combined income, we send you a "1099" statement at the beginning of each year showing the total Social Security benefits you received in the prior year.

Third: there are different rules for the 1993 tax return you'll file by April 15 of this year than for the 1994 return you'll file next year. I'm including 1994 information to help in your tax planning efforts for next year.

1993 Tax Returns

If you file an individual 1993 tax return and your "combined income" last year was over $25,000, up to 50 percent of your Social Security benefits will be taxable.

If you file a joint 1993 return and your "combined income" was more than $32,000 up to 50 percent of your Social Security benefits will be taxable.

Couples who file separate tax returns probably will pay taxes on their Social Security benefits.

1994 Tax Returns

If you plan to file an individual 1994 tax return and you expect your 1994 "combined income" to be between $25,000 and $34,000, up to 50 percent of your Social Security benefits will be taxable. If your income is above $34,000, you should anticipate 85 percent of your benefits being subject to tax.

If you and your spouse plan to file a joint return for 1994 and your "combined income" is between $32,000 and $44,000, up to 50 percent of your benefits will be taxable. But if your joint income exceeds $44,000, up to 85 percent of your Social Security benefits may be taxable.

For More Information

Although the subject has been Social Security benefits, questions about taxes are matters for the Internal Revenue Service. So if you need more tax information, you should call the IRS at 1-800-829-1040.

Area Agency On Aging Recognizes Older Workers

In observance of "Hire the Older Worker Week" (March 13-19), the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging (AAA) hosted a recognition luncheon for all Community Action Committee, Inc., (CAC) employees 55 years of age or older on Friday, March 18, at the Flowery Vale Senior Center.

"The luncheon was our way of recognizing the value of older persons in the workplace," stated an agency representative. "Often employers do not consider older persons when hiring. We hope to change that. The Area Agency on Aging has countless older workers on its staff, many of whom did not enter the workforce until they were at least 55 years of age."

Older workers bring many fine qualities to the workplace including punctuality, stability, dedication and productivity, the spokesperson said. The AAA urges employers to consider older workers as a viable resource when seeking to fill job vacancies.

CAC older workers attended the luncheon on March 18. Following the meal, each was presented a certificate of appreciation by a supervisor.

Also recognized for volunteer service to CAC and AAA were Bob Lyons, president of the CAC Board of Directors and Commission on Aging members, Holly Bartlett, Ruth Fell, Charles and Maxine Ross, Helen Vitez, Eleanor Teats, Velma Liller, Gerald Iman, Russ and Jane Bowser, Ruth Calderwood, Marilu Rowe, and Lester White.

Older workers recognized were Leona Beckman, Alice Bell, Jane Sickeler, Burlena Uphold, Louise Beckman, Gladys Betley, Lula Brown, Evelyn Clark, Mary Maxine Mills, Evelyn Steyer, Merrill Sturtz, Ruth Tuel, Betty Wildesen, Edward Zimmerman, Inise Bell, Alma Knotts, Sally Schwing, Norma Hinkle, Roy Hinkle, John Patton, Louise Kitzmiller, Melda Bittinger, Velva Blamble, Agnes Carey, Arlene Georg, Mona Hebb, Etta Jacks, Nellie Junkins, Peg Landon, Mabel Miller, Louise Pennington, Marie Skipper, Ellie Teets, Grace Ross, Mary Jane Gnegy, Ruth Fike, Ethel Cassell, Jim McRobie, Jack Ferree, Ray Teets, Bud Strawser, Hazel Broadwater, Sue Griffith, John Miller, Judi VanMeter, Bill Goldsworthy, Paul Green, James Casteel, Jean Tressler, Dolores Burrell, Leota Stover, Shirley Yommer, and Hilda Maddocks.

Mabel Miller

Bea Crosco

The Garrett County Community Action Committee, Inc., recently selected Mabel Miller as a nominee for the Maryland Association of Community Action Agencies (MACAA) Employee of the Year, and nominated Bea Crosco to MACAA's Volunteer Hall of Fame. Both will be recognized at MACAA's annual conference in May.

Mabel Miller was selected based on her dedicated service as a cook at the Jennings Senior Nutrition Site. She is a senior aide, assigned to the Area Agency on Aging (AAA). She began as a senior aide in 1971 and has been the cook at Jennings for 23 years.

"At age 78, Mabel epitomizes the ideal employee," said a Community Action spokesperson.

Bea Crosco has served as the coordinator of the AARP Tax-Aide program for the past four years in a volunteer capacity. She is responsible for recruiting tax preparers, arranging tax preparer training, scheduling, public relations, and reports. She also aided the AAA with its 1992 Health Fair by recruiting professional volunteers to assist with various activities.

house. Working space in the Clerk of Court's office appeared to be adequate. The high priority noted by the jury is the utilization of micro-film and microfiche.

The Grand Jury was informed that a recommendation for long-range planning for an additional off-site multi-correctional facility in Garrett County is under consideration. The sheriff's office and commissioners stated that the remodeling of the current jail facilities will be completed by the end of this year. The remodeling plan should alleviate the over-crowding for the short range time table.

Areas of over-crowding include the kitchen and jail cells. The jurors recommended the installation of monitors in the holding cell areas and the initiation of a maintenance program for the heating and air conditioning systems.

The Emergency Management facility was toured, and jurors noted that one of the two tape recorders was out of operating order.

The jail and courthouse seemed clean and presentable to the public, according to the jurors' report.

Sheriff Van Evans was commended for requiring all deputies to be trained as emergency medical technicians (EMT's). The address identification program that is currently underway in Garrett County was noted as a "great benefit" to the 911 service.

Landfill

The Grand Jury was given information concerning recycling efforts in the county. Recycling is to increase in the local area to

The county has an extensive safety program, Lousek told the jury, which includes a recent revised safety manual that is presently being reviewed by the union. Employees are brought in for safety training twice a year.

The recent casualty at the Oakland facility was blamed on a broken connecting link, which connects the chain to the hook. The roads department has yet to receive the final report on the accident from OSHA.

In the budget, Lousek said the roads department had a four percent increase over last year. This year's budget is $6.6 million, and the department is currently $113,088 over-budget.

Bartlett Becomes New Member Of Space Subcommittee

Sixth District Congressman Roscoe Bartlett this week was invited by his colleagues on the House Science, Space and Technology Committee to become the newest member of the Subcommittee on Space. He also serves on the Subcommittee on Energy and the Subcommittee on Technology, Environment, and Aviation.

The vote to place Bartlett on the Space Subcommittee was a bi-partisan unanimous consent vote during a full committee meeting, according to a spokesperson.

The Congressman's lifetime of expertise in the space arena includes heading up a group at Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, the Space Life Sciences Group and managing contract work for NASA. Bartlett says he was attracted to APL because of its early interest in manned space flights.

He was also awarded 20 patents for his work in designing life support equipment for the astronaut, aviator, and rescue worker. Bartlett was also involved in the famous "Monkey Baker" space projects in the late 1950's when a monkey was sent into space via a ballistic trajectory in a successful landmark project which helped pave the way for manned space travel.

Congressman Bartlett also serves on the House Armed Services Committee.

The Picture Of Health

But Today, My Picture Speaks For Itself

Looking at Coach Tom Bosley now, you'd never know that he went through a serious illness several years ago. Tom's family doctor had recognized some questionable symptoms during an office visit and referred Tom directly to the emergency room at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

A member of the surgical staff found that Tom was in need of a colostomy. Tom had two separate surgeries and spent 21 days in the hospital. Although the pain was severe at times and the surgery left him uncomfortable, Tom felt the care he received was second to none. Tom was very complimentary of his surgeons skills and found the nurses and support staff to be dedicated and kind.

Today Coach Bosley is the picture of health and challenging our young athletes to new heights.

The Lakers were defeated in their opening game Thursday afternoon, 89-79, by the eventual winner of the tournament, Joliet (Ill.) Community College, won their second outing, 85-70, over Mercer (N.J.) Community College on Friday, and then fell to Iowa Lakes CC on Saturday, 89-83.

The loss to Joliet knocked the Lakers out of the championship bracket, which meant that the best they could finish would be fourth place. They ultimately placed sixth out of the eight regional championship teams that had qualified for the national event. In the final national Division II rankings, the Lakers (28-7) are in seventh place, the best finish ever for any Garrett team in any sport.

Among the highlights of the tournament for the Lakers was that pre-season All-American candidate Wes Tubbs, who finished with a total of 60 points, 22 rebounds, and nine assists in the three tournament games, was named to the All-Tournament team. This honor, coupled with his selection to the Maryland All-JUCCO and All-Region teams and his being named MVP of both the JUCCO and Region XX tournaments, almost guarantees his selection as an All-American. Tubbs has been signed by Division I Eastern Kentucky for next season.

Had the tournament draw been different and not pitted GCC against Joliet in the first game, the Lakers probably would have finished higher in the tournament standings. The Joliet game was the first that the Lakers had played in three weeks since capturing the Region XX crown.

The Lakers played a strong first half against the Wolves of Joliet, as there were seven ties and four lead changes during that period. They utilized a 1-3-1 zone that was effective against 6-9 freshman Haris Mujezinovic, a native of Bosnia, and 6-9 Kelly Lynch.

A 7-0 run by the Lakers, capped by a long three-point bucket by Shane Scott at the 1:50 mark, gave them a 32-28 lead, but Joliet responded by forcing several turnovers and recording a 9-0 streak that gave the Wolves a 37-32 halftime advantage. They never relinquished that lead.

Joliet was up by 10 points, 56-46, six minutes into the second half, as Mujezinovic netted 10 of his team's first 19 points of the half, all from the inside. The Wolves had their biggest lead, 62-48, with 11 minutes to play.

Laker Coach Dennis Gibson was forced to abandon the zone defense and go to a man-to-man, which was more to Joliet's advantage inside.

Led by Tubbs, the Lakers cut the Joliet lead to seven points, 70-63, with about six minutes to play, but they could get no closer.

Mujezinovic led the Wolves (26-8) and all scorers with a 27-point performance, with 21 of them coming in the second half. He also grabbed 10 rebounds. Craig Brunes finished with 15 points, while Robert Krahulik recorded 13 points and nine assists, and Lynch contributed 12 points.

Scott and Tubbs led the Lakers with 20 and 19 points, respectively, and Tubbs also had a game-high 11 rebounds. A dozen of Scott's points were recorded from three-point range. Also reaching double figures were Oliver Jones with 14 points and George Hilton with 13.

The Lakers committed 19 turnovers, compared to 12 for Joliet.

The most difficult job for Gibson and his staff the following day was simply getting the Lakers motivated after they were eliminated from the championship round and knew that fourth place was the absolute best they could achieve. And it took until the second half against Mercer for the Lakers to put things together and finally record the 15-point victory.

Garrett hit only eight of 30 field goal attempts and 11 of 20 free throws in the first half, while being outrebounded 28-18 and having the ball stolen seven times. Despite these dismal numbers, the Lakers were down by only three points, 30-27, at intermission.

What helped keep the Lakers in the game in the first half was the fact that Mercer coach Bud Livingston had to bench his two top players, 6-6 sophomore Abdul Shabazz and 6-9 center James Coleman, midway through the half because of foul trouble.

An inspirational talk by Coach Gibson at halftime helped turn the Lakers around in the second half, as they came out and, instead of shooting 26 percent, shot 54 percent from the floor (20 of 37), converted 15 of 18 free throws, out-rebounded the Vikings, 24-18, and turned the ball over just six times.

"We talked a lot about pride at halftime, reminded them about what a great year we have had, and decided that we certainly didn't want to play like we had in the first half," Gibson said.

The Vikings (18-10) assumed the role that the Lakers had in the first half, as they made good on only 14 of 36 shots from the floor, converted just 10 of 25 foul shots, and were quickly in serious foul trouble.

Shabazz, who was a McDonald's high school All-American, was nailed with two technical fouls, which sent him to the showers, while Michael Moyer, a 6-10 center, also fouled out and Coleman had to play much of the half with four fouls.

The Vikings were still ahead, 41-35, with 15:39 to play when Shabazz was called for his first technical. Troy Sexton initiated a seven-point run for the Lakers at that point with a foul shot and capped it with a three-point bucket that put Garrett on top, 42-41.

A long-range goal by Scott, who scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half, gave the Lakers the lead for good, 53-52, with 10:15 remaining.

A free throw by Tubbs and a dunk by Oliver Jones put the Lakers up, 56-52.

The first double-figures lead, 70-60, was recorded as Kenny Gross and Tubbs each scored a bucket and Scott added two free throws. The advantage remained in double figures the rest of the way, with the final 15-point margin being the largest lead of the game.

Tubbs paced the Lakers' scoring with a game-high 21 points, while Oliver Jones scored 17 and grabbed a game-high 14 rebounds, despite his 6-3 height. Scott finished with 14 points, while Jermaine Jones and Hilton each contributed nine points.

Leading the Viking offense was Shawn Hammond with 20 points. Shabazz scored 17 and Coleman added 12 points and 10 rebounds.

"Their foul trouble was a big key to our win," Gibson said. "We started hitting from the outside, then inside, and we were able to run pretty well against them in the second half. Troy's (Sexton) three-point shot that gave us the lead for the first time really got us charged up."

In the battle for fourth place on Saturday, it was Iowa Lakes' Troy Meilborg who was charged up, as he poured in a record-setting seven three-point buckets and 33 points against the Lakers.

The contest was tight, particularly in the first half, when there were five ties and seven lead changes. Garrett led by as many as three points twice, trailed by as many as nine, and was down by four, 46-42, at halftime.

Both teams experienced some early foul trouble, as Hilton and Oliver Jones spend much of the first half on the bench, as did Iowa's Ben Meier and Marcus Owens, Iowa Lakes' top scorer and rebounder during the regular season.

The Lakers led only once in the second half, 56-55, but continually rallied from several deficits late in the contest. They pulled to within three points, 84-81, with about a minute to play and were down 86-83 with 34 seconds left; however, Iowa Lakes converted five of six free throws in the final half-minute to secure the victory.

Also reaching double figures for Iowa Lakes was Owens with 15 points and 11 rebounds, and Dan Heller with 18. Antoine Morris was credited with 13 assists, one fewer than the tournament record.

Tubbs, who hit 10 of 15 shots from the floor, paced the Lakers' scoring with 20 points. Scott netted 18 points, with four buckets from three-point range, Hilton recorded 11 points, and Oliver Jones finished with 10. Jermaine Jones was held to seven points, but pulled down a game-high 12 rebounds and dished out seven assists.

"Whenever you are off for as long as we were before the tournament you tend to lose your edge in timing and your confidence suffers a little," Gibson said. "Then we had to play the best team out there in the first round.

"I really believe that we were probably the second best team in the tournament," he said. "But after going into the Joliet game so emotionally high and then being knocked out of the championship bracket, our kids were really down, which you could tell by the way we played in the first half against Mercer.

"We also just weren't very healthy in the last game. Both Oliver Jones and Jason Brenneman were hurt. But all in all, we really played pretty well.

"This was a new experience for all of us, and we really learned a lot. It was a very well organized and well run tournament. There was good publicity and everyone was really helpful and supportive," he said.

"I was extremely proud of how well our players represented GCC and Garrett County," he said. "Everyone said we were the 'class act' of the tournament. The folks at the motel said our players were the quietest, best behaved team there."

Gibson said that the success of this season's team should be a boost for him and his staff as they step up their recruiting efforts, although the tournament cost them some valuable time.

"Everyone else has a three-week jump on us," he said. "Plus, it is very difficult for us to compete with other schools that can offer tuition waivers and other incentives. But we do have a lot of leads on some excellent players and we hope to be able to re-sign all of our freshmen from this season."

Gibson said he will meet today with the freshmen members of the team to talk about next season.

Bosley, Rams Anticipate Good Year With Return Of Seven Starters

With seven starters back from last season's 13-5 squad, a switch from Class 2A to Class 1A, and a four-season record of 54-17, Coach Jim Bosley and the Southern High School Rams are most anxious to begin another season. Their wait will be over this Friday when they travel to Petersburg to take on the Vikings, the defending area champions.

"Having seven starters back is pretty exciting," stated Bosley, the area's winningest coach with a 15-year mark of 179-77, "but obviously we have to perform well on the field, which is why I'm approaching this season cautiously."

Another reason he is "approaching the season cautiously" is that the Rams have yet to get outside and play on their own field because of the weather conditions, which is certainly nothing new for Garrett County.

"We still have two feet of snow in places on our field!" Bosley said. "We will probably play four or five games before we can set foot on our infield. The weather is really a disadvantage for baseball in Garrett County."

The leading candidate for first base is senior Mark Dawson, a part-time starter last year who recorded a .268 batting average. Dawson is expected to start Friday, but is still nursing a severe ankle sprain from basketball.

Starting at second base and short stop will depend upon who is pitching. Candidates for these positions are senior Mark Elliott, who batted .358 last year; junior Jeremy Fitzwater; sophomore Joey DiSimone, who was last year's MVP on the junior varsity team, and senior Chad Bittinger.

Bittinger will also be competing for the third base spot, along with Fitzwater and freshman Seth Tressler.

Catching duties will be shared by senior Steve Eyler and John Gordon. Originally expected to play behind the plate was Sonny Livengood, who has a shoulder injury and will most likely be used as a designated hitter whenever possible.

The outfield, according to Bosley, is the strength of the team, as three-year starting senior Josh Woods, last year's co-MVP, returns to right field with his .364 batting average. Also back are centerfielder Matt Newcomb, who batted .289, and senior left fielder Rich Warnick, who hit .333 last year.

Another player expected to see considerable action in the outfield is Brian Reams, who is still nursing a broken hand sustained in the later part of the basketball season.

The pitching rotation will include Doug Copeland, a hard-throwing right hander who finished with a 4-2 mark and 3.02 ERA last season. He also recorded 58 strike-outs in 56 innings pitched. Elliott, Fitzwater, Gordon, DiSimone, and Tressler will round out the pitching corps.

Fitzwater will start tomorrow at Petersburg, as Copeland is not ready yet because of the extended basketball season, plus a recent case of the flu.

When asked about the switch from 2A to 1A, Bosley said, "We welcome the challenge of being in single A. With teams like Northern, last year's state champion Mt. Savage, Beall, and Clear Spring to compete against, it will still be difficult to make it to the state tourney, but I would rather face these teams than the Walkersvilles, Alleganys, and Middletowns."

Bosley said he prefers not to make any predictions about the season, "but I would be very disappointed if we didn't challenge for the area title, as well as a spot in the Region I playoffs."

Assisting Bosley with coaching duties this year are Lew Marks and Dan Holler.

After Friday's contest with Petersburg, the Rams' next scheduled game will be Tuesday at Beall, followed by a game Thursday afternoon at Keyser.

AMONG THE SPONSORS of Cumberland late model driver Jeff Miller, who has switched from Chevrolet engines to a new Ford power plant, is Diehl's Ford Sales of Grantsville. Bob and Greg Diehl assisted Miller with the transition. The new Ford plant, which will be built by Miller with technical input from Robert Yates and Harold Eatmon, will be installed in a new Bullitt chassis. Miller said that the transition has been "tough and expensive," but noted that it was possible because of the support of sponsors like Diehl's Ford, Western Maryland Distributing of Cumberland, and several other sponsors.

Veteran Northern Team Opens With Easy 13-0 Victory Over Oldtown

The Northern High School baseball team opened its campaign in winning form yesterday afternoon by coasting to a 13-0 win over Oldtown on the Indians' diamond.

The contest lasted only five innings because of the 10-run rule, and the Huskies really needed only the first two innings to move out to a 10-plus lead. Coach Phil Carr's team scored a pair of runs in the first, nine more in the second, one in the third, and three insurance runs in the fifth to record the win.

The Huskies did all of their scoring on nine hits, with Alan Sebold recording a double and two singles for two RBI, while Bob Fritz doubled and singled and Chris Wright added a double.

Meanwhile, Aaron Blocher went the distance on the mound for the Huskies and allowed only three hits. He struck out eight and issued three walks.

Bobby Slider doubled for the Indians, while Steve Swick and Joe Lease accounted for the other two hits off Blocher, both of which were singles.

With a 12-6 finish last year and seven starters from that squad returning, Coach Carr is hopeful that his team can return to the Class A playoffs a fourth straight season.

"We were defeated by Clear Spring in the playoffs last year," Carr said. "Our goal this year is to again reach the playoffs and then take the next step."

Leading the list of returning starters are senior catcher Alan Sebold, an All-Area Honorable Mention last season, and senior second baseman Ryan Folk, who was an Honorable Mention infielder last year.

Also returning are seniors Derek Mason at short stop, Bobby Fritz at first base, Chris Wright in right field, Rob Speicher in center field, and junior Jeremy Brenneman at third base.

Another starter is senior Brad Williams in left field.

Finishing last season with batting averages of over .300 were Mason (.351), Wright (.341), Folk (.321), and Sebold (.302).

Three returning pitchers are also back in Mason, Speicher, and Brenneman, each of whom finished with 4-2 records last season. Newcomers include sophomores Aaron Blocher and Brian Heslop and juniors Danny Butler, D.J. Durst, and foreign exchange student Martin Strnad.

"This is an experienced staff that certainly should keep us in every game," Carr said.

Jon Hamilton, a senior, is expected to see action as a designated hitter and behind the plate, while Blocher, juniors Jason Reed and Shawn Beals, and sophomores Tim Sines and Andy Brenneman will be utilized in the infield. Jeramie Foy, Strnad, Danny Butler, D.J. Durst, and Heslop will also play in the outfield.

Carr believes his team's strengths are team speed, experience, defense, and hitting, while weaknesses could be pitching and depth at key positions.

"We have a very strong schedule," he said. "We are one of the few teams that plays everyone in our region, with the only exception being Williamsport."

Carr anticipates the stiffest competition to come from Southern, Beall, Clear Spring, and Mt. Savage.

"We just need to work hard and show that desire to win and no-quit attitude, and things will fall into place," he said.

The Huskies' next opponent will be Westmar next Wednesday on the Wildcats' diamond in Lonaconing.

Lakers, Wildesen Drop First, 7-4, To Potomac State

After opening the season with a doubleheader sweep of Prince George's CC last week, the Garrett Community College baseball team dropped a 7-4 decision to Potomac State College yesterday afternoon in Keyser, W.Va.

It was the first loss for new Laker coach, Ed Wildesen.

The Catamounts, who came into the season ranked number one in the NJCAA Division II poll, upped their record to 7-3 with the win.

Potomac State took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first on a solo home run by Brenden Dougherty.

The Lakers came back in the second to tie when Sam Alvaro walked, advanced to third on a double by Joey Pecarro, and came home on a single by Patrick Donahue.

The Catamounts recorded two more runs in the fourth, as Steve Person singled and later came home on a sacrifice fly by Dougherty. Then Jason Vindach singled home Dave King, who had reached on a walk.

A RBI single by Marc Salvator in the fifth inning put Potomac State up 4-1, but the Lakers were not finished yet and came back with three runs in the sixth to tie the score again.

Deron Godby and Todd Blackburn both singled and, after loading the bases, Godby came home when Catamount pitcher Mike DuVal walked Alvaro. Pecarro then singled home Blackburn and Hakim Edwards.

The Catamounts took the lead for good in the bottom of the sixth when Dougherty reached on an error and then scored on a double by Vindach. Tim Oakes then put the game away with a two-run homer.

Vindach and Marcischak each finished with three hits for PSC, who out-hit the Lakers, 12-6.

Garrett is slated to play again this Friday at CCAC South near Pittsburgh.

Concerns were raised about the expansion and development of Deep Creek Lake, but Groves said there are more controls and plans for the lake than any other place in the county. Braskey added that the Jennings Randolph Lake will soon become more accessible from the Maryland side.

Newsprint is recycled locally while other materials - such as glass - may cost money per disposed ton. Larger bins have been placed on site for the accumulation of larger quantities of recyclable materials. No plastics are being recycled in the area as of yet.

The new landfill is to open in June. Costs will be approximately $3 million to open and $2.5 to cap Round Glade. Leach from the new landfill will be recycled to aid in decomposition of garbage.

Friendsville Legacy Becomes "One With The Universe" In Art Project

by Sherry Frantz

Over the past few months, the town of Friendsville has become a more integral part of the universe by virtue of further preserving its heritage and extending it to the world.

The local perspective was melded with the global perspective most recently as an art project, known as "Home and the World," was unveiled at the James C. Lewis Museum of Art in Baltimore. The exhibit included a project created by Oakland artist Don Cook, called "Boarders," which utilized the talents of Friendsville artists. In simultaneous exhibits were the works of two African artists, Aboudramane and Bodys Kingelez, whose composite sculptures employ architectural forms that "consider the relationship between Africa's built environment and the continent's changing cultural identity," said a gallery spokesperson.

The coming together of these seemingly unrelated parts is revealed upon closer examination. As Cook said, "The separate projects were both attempts at creating small structures, or vessels, that move the concept and material of oral history "back into the flow instead of just in the archives."

With that accomplished on the respective fronts, a "visual dialogue" was thus created, he said, between the Friendsville artists and the two African artists as they placed their creations side by side and, together, presented these memory vessels to each other and to the rest of the world.

BOARDERS PROJECT GOES GLOBAL -- Shown above is one the "memory vessels" created by Friendsville resident Ina Hicks for the Friendsville community-based art project known as "Boarders," which utilized the individual and collective memories of the town's residents to create a visual presentation of its legacy. The project was included in an exhibit at the James C. Lewis Art Gallery in Baltimore, ,which also featured the works of two African artists who also worked with architectural forms to create structures they remembered or imagined from their homelands. The structure created by Hicks is titled "Wat Guard's Store." Below, Espy Hook, Friendsville, is shown with a sculpture created from a story about his grandfather, Quinter Hook, who was reportedly killed at the Riverside Hotel.

Locally, the seeds of this ambitious and innovative project were planted over a year ago when Friendsville resident Ina Hicks, librarian and genealogist for the Friend Family Museum and Library, saw a group of community-related works which Cook had developed with art students at Northern High School (NHS) during a Maryland State Arts Council AiE residency.

Hicks, along with NHS art student Jennifer Spear, felt that Friendsville might benefit from a project that would serve to explore the town's memories and cultural life.

They decided to contact Cook, who, along with Hicks, began the process that eventually involved the town in the project.

In Cook's overview description of the "Boarders' project, he stated, "Friendsville is a town rich in history and tradition, and provides a natural resource for a community project such as Boarders. The village site, located on the Youghiogheny River in the northwestern corner of Maryland's mountainous Garrett County, has witnessed continuous habitation for some 1,800 years. Groups of native Americans had maintained successive village and burial sites at his location prior to the arrival of Europeans. The Friend family began a settlement on the site during the early colonial period, and by the late nineteenth century that settlement had grown into a logging boom town and commercial center."

Cook was aware, through his contacts with Hicks, Friendsville students, and the Jim "Pappy" Ross family, that the community still retains a strong sense of its history, and that "vital links between generations remain intact.

"This strong community spirit is perhaps the single most important element in the success of the Boarders project at Friendsville," he wrote.

Hicks, who also contributed several significant pieces to the exhibit, has been intimately involved in that community spirit. As anyone who takes the opportunity to patronize the exhibit will experience, her pieces represent a collective memory bank that became, at once, both art and history through her unique and insightful interpretations.

"I set out to extract very vivid images from my memory -- images that future generations would have no way of knowing," said Hicks, who further explained that the project provides "a more tangible presentation of oral history."

Indeed, added Cook, "the most striking features of the resulting Boarders works are the use of oral history, the evidence of the photographic legacy, and the interactive and often humorous nature of the works. The oral history, or story tradition, present in the work represents a strongly underlying, yet fragile, aspect of the contemporary rural society. The photographic material provides evidence of an old and established relationship between the American rural community and the photograph."

One of the memory vessels constructed by Hicks was the result of a collaboration with Dot Spear, who has collected a total of six or seven scrapbooks filled with news clippings about Friendsville and its people. Hicks remembered observing that, as a child during the depression, Sears catalogs were altered slightly to serve as doorstops. That alteration involved folding down the corners of all the pages to create a triangular shape of each page and of the entire form.

"They looked like houses, or African huts, to me," said Hicks, who then proceeded to use the same technique in creating one of her sculptures, filling the pages of two "hefty" spiral sketchpads with the Friendsville articles, uniting them into one entity with the artful use of a dowel, and adding the finishing touches of a laminated photocopy of the town's seal (designed by Spear) and brightly colored dividers that allow the observer to flip through and read the articles.

Another of the pieces was a collaborative effort by some of the fifth-grade art students of Carolyn Collen-DuBose at Friendsville Elementary School who, utilizing some of the older residents' memories, constructed their rendition of the once-famous Friendsville bandstand. John C. Friend, 90, was the oldest person to lend his memories to the students.

As Hicks observed, "One person's memory can be executed by other people, and sometimes the artists would utilize their own memories along with someone else's memory, resulting in a collective memory of the structure."

Yet another town resident, newcomer Crede Calhoun, who owns and operates the Windrush Gallery with his wife Carol McMahon, collected his own photographs of doors and windows in Friendsville that had intrigued him, and created a structure that revealed what the inhabitants were able to see out of those doors and windows.

Hicks noted that one of those views is already in the process of changing as the First Christian Church is being torn down to make way for an apartment building.

Cook has contributed a piece that, he says, "captures the magic and the light of the Riverside Hotel," a building steeped in various versions of its own history, a place that has been sealed from the outside world since 1927 and is, reputedly, (predictably) haunted.

Cook explained that "the outer world keeps moving while the hotel interior remains static -- not unlike a time capsule -- and the model reflects that stillness

Q. I have a bronze bust of a cowboy in a hat. A letter with the bust says it was made by Frederic Remington. It is 12 inches high and is mounted on a marble pedestal. How can I prove it is by Remington?

A. Frederic Remington, the famous American artist, did a well-known bust about 1904 called "The Sergeant" or "The Rough Rider Sergeant." The first edition was made by the Roman Bronze Works of Brooklyn, N.Y., between 1916 and 1918. The height of the original edition varies from 10½ inches to 11 inches. It was signed on the base "Copyright by Frederic Remington" and a stamped "Roman Bronze Works, N.Y." with the number 59 inside the base.

Many reproductions of Remington bronzes have been made and are still being made. Your piece, with no name or foundry mark, is probably a later copy. It is very difficult to authenticate a Remington bronze. It should be shown to a dealer in bronzes or a museum curator who is familiar with American bronzes. Originals are worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. Copies may sell for as little as $100.

Q. Is there a story about the glass Christmas ornament shaped like a pickle? I hear it means good luck.

A. The glass pickle Christmas tree ornament is part of an old German tradition. The ornament was hung in an out-of-the-way spot on the tree late on Christmas Eve. The first child to find the pickle Christmas morning was given a special gift, and an adult who found the pickle was guaranteed good luck all year. Those who found the ornament would move it so it could be discovered again and another person could share in the luck.

Q. My mother's sewing chest is made to look like a small trunk with high legs. It is the height of a sofa arm so the sewing and knitting work inside is easy to reach. The top of the chest has two lids that swing to the side. Inside is a tray for thread. When were sewing chests first made?

A. Sewing was an important activity for women in past centuries. All clothing was made at home in the average 17th- and 18th-century household. Mending was a weekly chore because fabrics were hand-made and very expensive and had to be preserved. Elaborate sewing tables, some with hidden sections for storage, and small hand-held sewing boxes were popular.

The tradition of the sewing table continued in the 19th century. Victorian tables with lift lids and fitted interiors were often used in the living room. Many had carved or painted decorations. By the 20th century the sewing machine became a necessary household tool. Simple chests with swing tops became fashionable in the 1920s and 1930s, and they were often kept in a bedroom or a corner of the living room. One sewing chest was offered in the 1927 Sears Roebuck catalog for $4.55.

TOILET-TISSUE TUBE — I have a great way of reusing an empty toilet-tissue roll. I put my hair brush inside the empty roll and the bristles are protected in a purse or gym bag. Mae T., Valparaiso, Ind.

PASTRY BLENDER — I have discovered two new uses for a pastry blender. It's really useful for breaking up whole canned tomatoes for Italian dishes and casseroles. Just prick the tomatoes with a fork or knife first so the juice and seeds don't squirt all over. My other favorite use is for breaking up browned hamburger nice and fine for sloppy Joes. It works much better than a spoon or fork. Nadine L., Houston, Texas.

CHOCOLATE EROSTING — To make instant chocolate frosting, I use a milk chocolate candy bar. The number of candy bars needed will depend on the size of the cake. Break the candy into squares and place immediately on the hot, just-out-of-the-oven cake. Automatically, the cake frosts itself! Cheryl W., Jacksonville, Fla.

DELICIOUS YOGURT — While vacationing in Greece, I had the best yogurt. Every morning, I had a bowl of it with a spoonful of honey. I'd never tasted anything so delicious. When I got home, I experimented and came up with this method of duplicating that yogurt. I place 32 ounces of plain, low-fat yogurt in a strainer lined with paper towels. I place the strainer in a bowl and refrigerate overnight. The next day, I put the strained yogurt back into its container. The yogurt now has a thick, creamy texture that tastes great with or without honey and also goes well with fruit. Lynn R., New Ulm, Minn.

JUST THE FAX — Fax machines make life in the office so much easier but I've always had one annoying problem with these electronic marvels. I write the recipient's fax number on the cover sheet which has to be inserted upside-down into the machine before dialing, then I find I've forgotten the number.

A co-worker suggested writing the number on the back of the first page as well. It's so easy to read while dialing. Ken P., Washington, D.C.

SPECIAL EVENT — When I am blessed with a new grandchild, I save the newspaper on the day he or she was born. Then I add the news of the baby's arrival from the next day's paper, hoping that the recipient will be pleased. Janet M., Union, N.J.

TAX TIME is nearing, and if you need help with your tax returns, check with your library or local senior citizen center regarding the availability of tax preparers who volunteer for this every year. Keep in mind that the importance of filing a correct return isn't just concerned with paying taxes or claiming refunds. Unless you know what to look for in deductions, you could overlook some that might well reduce any tax you owe or allow for a much larger refund than you expected. So, if you qualify, take advantage of the help that may be offered in your area.

GOOD NEWS, but with an important caution, heralds the most recent report in the battle against Alzheimer's disease. Researchers have noticed a correlation between the taking of anti-inflammatory drugs usually used to treat arthritis, with some statistical evidence that they seem to impede the onset of Alzheimer's. However, they caution that no one should take any of these drugs to ward off the disease since the trials are still going on, and the results that have come in still need to be analyzed to make sure other factors aren't at work.

The study itself involved 50 sets of elderly twins, men and women, both fraternal and identical. Dr. John Breitner, a researcher at Duke University, found a later incidence of Alzheimer's onset (or no onset at all) among the twins who took the anti-inflammatory drugs.

A warning was issued by Dr. Leonard Berg, chairman of the medical advisory board of the Alzheimer's Association, that the evidence of benefit was "not convincing enough to advise the population at large to take anti-inflanimatory drugs to avoid Alzheimer's." An important side note is that the drugs had side effects which could cause otherwise avoidable health problems.

FOR MANY, listening to music is enough. For others, playing an instrument brings much satisfaction. Singing is a wonderful way to feel good. In recent years, seniors have gotten together to form orchestras or bands or glee clubs — or all three. Some members are veteran music makers, others are among the newly converted. The results have been gratifying, especially in heightened social benefits.

I would appreciate hearing from those of you who are involved in these musical efforts. Write to me c/o King Features Weekly Service, 235 East 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Jury Report

tal Services, but may become the county's responsibility. Plans are being made to man public disposal areas to eliminate out-of-county garbage and illegal dumping.

Treasurer's Office

Patty Glover, county treasurer, reported on the responsibilities at her office. The main function of the office, which employs five full-time employees, is the collection of county taxes. Two part-time workers are hired in the summer months to handle the overflow of mail related to tax collection.

Glover stressed the importance of keeping the office informed of any address changes to insure the delivery of tax bills.

Board of Education

Dr. Ryscavage dispensed the annual report of the Garrett County Board of Education to the jury members.

Concern was expressed about current teacher re-certification requirements set forth by the Maryland State Board of Education. Re-certification is currently required every 10 years, which seemed too long to jury members. Ryscavage said the process may be accelerated to require more frequent re-certification.

Concern with math instruction in the county and the need for competent instruction was also discussed. Math certification in elementary schools is not required to teach mathematics. Ryscavage has recommended to the school board to hire full-time math instructors (19 over a four-year period) to concentrate on early math instruction and free current teachers to concentrate on other areas. The jurors agreed with the recommendation.

Ryscavage told the jury that the "pay as you go" policy of the Garrett County Commissioners has limited the county's ability to fund necessary capital investment projects. Current capital investment requirements at Southern, Northern, and the consolidation of Loch Lynn and Red House require that alternative forms of financing be researched.

The lack of health nurses in the elementary schools was addressed this year with the hiring of two such professionals.

A tour of the education board building was conducted. The building is not handicapped accessible and is in need of repair. The outdoor stairs leading to the planetarium were wet and posed an obvious safety hazard.

Roads Department

Terry Spear took the jurors on a tour of the roads department facility, and Robert Fousek spoke with them. He explained that there are presently 142 employees, up from 112 in March of 1993. There are 51 at the Oakland garage, 42 at Accident, 40 at Grantsville, eight administrative persons, and one supervisor.

The department is responsible for 700 miles of road, 104 bridges (plus 46 that are fewer than 25 feet long). There are 125 miles of dirt road.

The jury was told that there is a federal mandate on the inspection of bridges. Three bridges were closed in the past year. Two of them have been repaired, and Bear Creek Bridge needs $30,000-$50,000 worth of repairs. These costs would be incurred if outside contractors do the repairs, but Fousek said he hoped the county workers could do it for less cost. A county maintenance bridge crew is to be formed, which would be a work crew specially trained in bridge repairs.

Fousek told the group that the old fuel tanks in Oakland were replaced in 1991. This included two new 10,000 tanks - one for diesel fuel and the other for gasoline. The tanks include inter-tank monitors, four monitoring wells, and an internal alarm system in the shop.

Tanks at the Accident location are to be replaced this year and those at Grantsville will be upgraded in 1996. Larger tanks are being installed so the county can utilize the truck load prices, which would save approximately six cents per gallon.

The road department plans this year to complete 160 miles of yellow striping and 80 miles of white center line. Fousek said no more could be afforded.

The facility was found to be clean and well-maintained. The new lunch room was toured and also found to be adequate.

In the area of road maintenance, Fousek told the jury that each of the three area garages have routes, and each truck is assigned to some of those routes and is responsible for snow removal or the spreading of ashes on that highway. School routes are done first.

This winter, the department has had 15.5 feet of snow to remove, which required overtime hours and extra night shifts. In addition to snow and ice, there have been floods and rock slides, and the roads have a substantial number of potholes.

In snow removal, the county does not use salt, but a mix of fly ash and sand. The fly ash and sand mix is hauled by the county trucks so that the drivers are utilized instead of outside contractors, which may save money. The county is not allowed to assist municipalities, and a juror asked if the law could be changed to give the town assistance if needed.

A spring and summer work schedule is developed each year by the county. The priorities of the list of improvements are based on the activity of the highway. This year there will be work on Hoyes Run Road and Fourth Street from city limits out past Food Lion.

The county has a policy to replace all mailboxes destroyed by the snowplows. A crew is sent out to correct the damage, Fousek said. The county usually replaces approximately 100 mailboxes.

cess to all major libraries through a "super information highway." All data should be available to the public by computer, reaching to any other library in the world. With this system, the card catalog will eventually be obsolete.

In addition to many services, the library now offers "Health Info To Go," a program that can answer a large variety of health questions.

Ferren pointed out a new lighting system and explained that she is trying to budget for new flooring to replace the original tile.

The library has a very tight budget, with a new 40-hour per week employee making only $11,300 a year. Ferren told jurors she is trying to obtain an increase but that it is a slow progressing project.

The basement has been newly renovated to house the Literacy Council. Students and tutors have private space to watch videos and teach reading lessons.

The Grand Jury concluded that with the enthusiasm of Ms. Ferren and the advanced access to information soon to be available, the Ruth Enlow Library is a definite asset to the community.

Hospital

Mikal McCartney, public relations for Garrett Memorial Hospital, greeted the jury members at the hospital. The tour of the facility included a look at the new physical therapy and rehabilitation department.

The lab facility was a topic of conversation because of the current concern about AIDS and the testing involved. The testing for this illness is sent to Roche Laboratories in Fairmont, W.Va., and disposal of the lab supplies takes place in the Baltimore area via private trucking.

New equipment at the hospital includes the most up-to-date mammography machine, ultra-sound equipment, and a CAT scanner.

A new non-smoking policy has been implemented for the entire facility.

The parking problem is currently being resolved by the construction of a new lot behind the hospital.

The Grand Jury found the local hospital to be a safe, sound environment.

General Recommendations

The Grand Jury recommended that some form of parking accommodations be made available to members of the jury - when summonses are mailed to each individual, a card indicating "Grand Jury" could be enclosed for placement in the car windshield. The jury recommended that the Oakland City Police be informed so that no parking tickets will be written for jury members.

The jury expressed thanks to Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer, James L. Sherbin, state's attorney; Wayne Wilt, bailiff; David Martin, clerk of circuit court; Brian Schlossnagle, deputy clerk; Ruth Warnick, court stenographer; Connie L. Forbes, foreman; Edward L. Garland, doorman; Jill G. Gracie, clerk; Delos M. Carpenter, clerk; and all other officials for cooperation.

and also the way in which corners tend to accumulate things by way of dust or a spider's web.

At some point, Cook would like to be able to house the piece inside the hotel.

As intriguing as this Friendsville project sounds, written descriptions of the 13 pieces are bound to fall short of capturing the complexity -- or the simplicity -- of each of the objects, so local folks are being encouraged to take advantage of the opportunity to witness, first hand, this exciting show in Baltimore where the project will continue to exist in the context of the whole "Home and the World" exhibit, which opened March 6 and will continue through April 1. The Boarders project will then be returned to Friendsville where the townspeople will be able to celebrate the homecoming exhibit at the Windrush Gallery in late May.

Participants and other interested persons were able to travel to the exhibit in Baltimore on March 12, when a round-robin discussion, titled "Dialogue Across Communities," was held with Aboudramane, one of the African artists. The group explored the exhibit from global and local perspectives.

In his discussions about the Boarders project, Cook has offered that the "interactive and humorous nature of the work reveals Friendsville's inherent warmth and openness. These images are an extended visual hand reaching out to both the individual viewer and the larger world."

The Boarders artists invite their neighbors to open the fanciful doors and windows they have created, and share with them the magical memories of the Friendsville legacy.

Comp. Goldste. Seeks Owners Of Unclaimed Funds

"We're placing full-size advertising supplements in newspapers throughout the state to help find about 21,000 individuals and businesses who are the rightful owners of unclaimed funds worth millions of dollars," said Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

The advertising supplements, with money bags and dollar bills on the cover, is enclosed in today's issue of The Republican.

The supplement lists the most recently reported names, regardless of the county of last known address, to help locate people who moved from one place to another in the state. "If you see your name or the name of someone you know, please call the unclaimed property office at (410) 225-1700 in the Baltimore area, or toll-free 1-800-782-7383 outside the Baltimore metropolitan area," Goldstein said.

The comptroller noted that the names in the current list are mostly reported by financial institutions and corporations. "The unclaimed funds include dormant bank accounts which had no deposit or withdrawal activity in the last five years, unclaimed wages, contents of safe deposit boxes, unclaimed security deposits, and stocks and bonds," Goldstein said.

The comptroller advertises recently reported names of unclaimed property owners each spring and fall. "Our statewide advertising campaign during the fall of 1993 was very successful, generating thousands of calls and letters," he said.

In another outreach effort, during April, the IRS will be sending notices to 12,824 individuals for whom they have a current address. "This is an excellent way to locate individuals who have moved out of Maryland and for whom we do not have a current address," the comptroller noted.

The advertising campaign is just one of the many outreach efforts to locate owners of unclaimed funds. "Other efforts include computer file match-ups with other government agencies and computer booths at state and local fairs, trade shows and shopping malls to allow people to check the unclaimed property files," he said.

Because of all these efforts, in fiscal year 1993 - which ended on June 30, 1993 - the unclaimed property section returned $5,248,400 in unclaimed funds to 7,188 individuals. Among the claims paid in fiscal year 1993 were two accounts worth $87,211 and $29,806. The average claim amount was $730.

"Our computer records cover more than 160,000 accounts worth about $60 million reported to us over the past 25 years, and there is no time limit on claiming the money that is rightfully yours," Goldstein said. "You can claim the funds any time, and legitimate heirs can claim the funds after the original owner's death."

Maryland law requires financial institutions, utilities, insurance companies and other corporations to report to the state comptroller any bank accounts, security deposits, wages, insurance benefits and the contents of safe deposit boxes which are unclaimed after five years

The Legacy of the Lily

Pale, pure and still, Christ Jesus' body lay drawn unto itself, shadowed in the transluscence of burial linen, hidden in the darkness of the grave.

So the lily slumbers, closed unto itself in the darkness of night, appearing without life or luster, yet God has created the lily to blossom with the light of day, to open wide its pale, pure, transluscent petals to greet the heavens and reflect His divine plan.

Christ's crucification and resurrection were the true personification of God's plan. Though we are born into sin and suffering, through His death on the cross our sins are forgiven if only we believe in this, God's sacrifice of His Son.

As we open our hearts with praise and thanksgiving for God's gift of salvation, may we appreciate these glorious white blooms of the season, their petals spread wide with promise... the legacy of the lilly.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ARE YOU SELF-EMPLOYED?

March 27, 1994

Background Scripture:
Romans 6
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 3:1-4, 5-11, 12-15b

A few days ago I sent to the IRS my fourth quarter estimated income tax payment for 1993. Like many of you out there, my wife and I are both "self-employed," so we are responsible for seeing that our income and self-employment tax are both estimated and paid. For some reason that partly escapes me, clergy who elect Social Security are legally regarded by IRS as self-employed, even though they are actually employed by a church or denomination.

So, my vocational self-employment over the years has been more a legal fiction than a practical reality. In reading Romans 6, it occurred to me that we are often similarly deluded when we assume that we are in sole control of our own lives. I like to think of myself as being rather independent and self-sufficient, but that picture is no more accurate than my legal designation by the U.S. government as "self-employed."

As children and youth, many of us can hardly wait until there is no one who is able to tell us what to do and we can make our own decisions. We yearn for the freedom of adult life. While there is no doubt that there is a lot of freedom that we enjoy as adults, it is not so complete and unlimited as we might have once assumed.

FREE AT LAST?

One of the friends of my youth was a young man who especially looked forward to the day when his parents could no longer forbid him to drink. Actually, he didn't exactly wait for adulthood to exercise that freedom, and by the time he was 17 he was already on his way to life as an alcoholic. So, is he free? No, not really. He is now free to drink, but he is not free not to drink. He has exchanged obedience to his parents for obedience to a habit that has made a slave of him. He is even less in control of his own life than he was as a teenage.

Thus, Paul writes: "Do you not know that if you yield yourselves to any one as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness?" (6:16). If we permit ourselves to be governed by anything or anyone, we are likely to let ourselves be enslaved--even while believing that we are quite free. Absolute freedom is an absolute delusion.

TWO OPTIONS

So, when we think about being in control of our lives, to which self do we give the control? Will we turn it over to our worst self, the self that lives only for indulgence, that asks and expects the very least of us, or to our highest self, the self that God created us to be? Will we be governed by the power of our own reason or by our basic appetites and drives? Will Christian love motivate and guide us, or will we allow ourselves to be dominated by our fears and prejudices?

Actually, there are only two choices open to us: to be employed by God or to be employed against God. The so-called neutral ground between these two choices is another of our delusions. If we give ourselves over to something or someone other than God, what are the wages of that employment? Paul asks, "But then what return did you get from the things of which you are now ashamed?... For the wages of sin is death..." (5:21,23a). That "death" is not just the death that is pronounced by the medical examiner, but a condition of the soul which is much more tragic than biological death.

Paul concludes: "...but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord."

So, who is your employer and what are the wages you are earning?

COVER STORY

Dan Cortese of 'Traps' can just call him George

BY JEFF PLASS

Dan Cortese

For Dan Cortese, the path to fame may not have been the road he was looking for. But, for now at least, he's riding it like the character he played in the failed NBC series "Route 66."

"I think more so than being nervous, I'm just excited," Cortese says. "All my life I've wanted to be an actor and now, here I am 26 years old and I'm getting to work with George C. Scott."

"Traps," premiering on CBS Thursday, March 31, stars Scott and Cortese as grandfather and grandson homicide detectives.

Cortese, the son of a Pennsylvania high school principal, has gone from being an MTV set worker to starring in a police drama with an Oscar winner in a relatively short period of time.

He was working as a production assistant at MTV in Los Angeles when he jokingly remarked to a talent executive that he was the best candidate for the channel's new sports program.

After one off-the-cuff screen test, he was hired as the host of "MTV Sports."

Now the hip-hopping, hyperkinetic host of the program that brings viewers sky surfing, barefoot skiing and bungee jumping is working with two of the most successful names in show business, Scott and executive producer Steven J. Cannell.

Does that intimidate the budding actor?

"When you see athletes who play with athletes of a higher caliber, like a Michael Jordan," Cortese explains, "that tends to elevate their skills. I'm hoping that working with somebody of George's skill (level) will help me elevate my skills and make me a better actor."

In his first acting job, the failed NBC series attempt "Route 66," Cortese found the disciplinary aspect of acting a bit difficult.

"What I do for MTV is totally ad-libbed," Cortese states. "We go out. We turn on the camera and they say 'Go ahead, Dan. Do whatever it is you do.'

"So, (with 'Route 66') I'd get into a scene which would trigger something in my mind where I just wanted to go off on a tangent."

In the premiere of "Traps," Chris Trapchek (Cortese) and his partner are assigned to the case of a well-known society woman's murder. Chris' grandfather, veteran homicide chief detective Joe Trapchek (Scott), is called in to lend his expertise to the case.

Chris and his grandfather have shared a strained relationship ever since Chris' father was killed in the line of duty. Bridging the gap between the two Trapcheks is Chris' partner, Joe Cloud (Bill Nunn), who had previously worked with Chris' father.

And how about the real-life relationship between the two?

"We met over lunch," Cortese relates. "I had called my mother beforehand and asked her, 'Do I call him George? Do I call him Mr. Scott? Do I call him Patton? Do I salute him?' He seems like a nice person, but I don't know. ...'

"So, I went in and I met him. I called him Mr. Scott. He told me to call him George."

Spencer Rochfort

Q: "The Loretta Young Show" used to be one of my favorites back in the 1950s and 1960s. Will it ever be on TV again as reruns? –Mrs. Kay Falieros, Lompoc, Calif.

A: Not while there's breath in her body. Always a very style-conscious woman, Young is said to fear that the drop-dead fashions she wore in the famous introductory segments would look absurd today.

Q: Could you give me the address for "Acapulco Heat" and some personal information on Spencer Rochfort and Michael Worth? –B.N., Spartanburg, S.C.

A: Rochfort has appeared in the theatrical films "Falling Down," "Hitman" and "Ski School." His TV credits include "Baywatch," "21 Jump Street," "Point of Murder," "Glory Days" and "Danger Bay." A sports enthusiast, he enjoys water and snow skiing, swimming, sailing and cycling.

Worth discovered martial arts in his early teens and, at 15, was competing in karate tournaments. Following small roles on "L.A. Law," "Unsolved Mysteries" and "E/R," he was cast as the villain in "Final Impact" with Lorenzo Lamas. Additional credits include "Teen Wolf Too," "The Legend of Billie Jean," "Street Crimes" and "To Be the Best."

Write them C/O "Acapulco Heat," All-American Television, 5301 Beethoven St., Suite 224, Los Angeles, Calif. 90066.

Q: I like Chuck Norris. Can you tell me about him? Where can I write to him? –Adam Conway, age 6, Dexter, Maine.

A: Chuck Norris was born Carlos Ray on March 10, 1940, in Ryan, Okla. The oldest of three children, he helped his mother raise his younger brothers in Torrance, Calif., where the family moved when he was 12.

After graduating from high school, Norris joined the Air Force, and began studying martial arts in Korea. Upon his return home, he worked for Northrop Aviation and moonlighted as a karate instructor. Soon his students included Steve McQueen, Priscilla Presley and the Osmonds. It was at McQueen's urging that Norris, at 34, turned to acting after being the six-time world professional middleweight karate champion.

Write him C/O CBS Media Relations, Television City, 7500 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036.

Q: Where can I write the cast of "Saved By the Bell: The College Years"? –Pam Heaton, Flint, Mich.

A: "Bell" bombed and has been canceled, but will return with a TV movie in May to wrap things up. Write the cast C/O NBC Television Network, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Send questions to TV Pipeline, Features Dept., TV Data Technologies, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, N.Y. 12804. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.

George C. Scott stars in the new CBS police drama "Traps," premiering Thursday. Scott plays veteran homicide chief detective Joe Trapchek.

Folk artists profiled in PBS' 'Songs' special

BY JOHN CROOK

"Great Performances" offers a colorful and engrossing group portrait of performing American folk artists and their extended families in "The Songs of Six Families." The 90-minute special, with host Kris Kristofferson, airs Friday, April 1, on PBS (check local listings).

Kristofferson takes viewers along American backroads to interview such performers as rhythm and blues master B.B. King. "These stories are not only about music," Kristofferson says. "They are about dreams, struggle and respect."

Exploring the vast cultural wealth that has been stockpiled by generations of immigrants, each segment is filmed at traditional performance occasions in each artist's home community. A conversation with the artist helps round out each profile.

Featured are Paul Trufant orchestrating a rare Eskimo Wolf Dance; flutist Jack Coen at an Irish ceili (social gathering); Steve Riley playing accordion and fiddle on a Cajun Saturday night; Allison "Tootie" Montana and his tribe of New Orleans Mardi Gras Indians; and a visit with Natividad "Nati" Cano at Tucson's Mariachi Festival, which also includes a brief interview and performance by Linda Ronstadt. Blues guitar master B.B. King is profiled in a visit to his hometown of Indianola, Miss.

All six subjects are Heritage Fellows of the National Endowment for the Arts Folk Arts program.

"I look at people and I hear music," King says. "I see people and there's rhythm there. I think I have a story to tell. I think that's what folk music generally is."

Blues guitar master B.B. King is one of the artists profiled in "The Songs of Six Families," a "Great Performances" segment airing Friday on PBS (check local listings).

IN FOCUS

Elizabeth Montgomery returns to television in the CBS mystery "The Corpse Had a Familiar Face," airing Sunday, March 27.

Montgomery portrays real-life reporter Edna Buchanan, a Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist in Miami. Edna's insatiable appetite for crime-solving often leads her to become personally involved with the crime victims and their families.

In the film, Edna becomes entrenched in the case of a missing 16-year-old girl.

Matthew Modine leads an all-star cast in "And the Band Played On," a made-for-HBO movie, coming to NBC on Monday, March 28.

Modine portrays Don Francis, a researcher at the Center for Disease Control, who was among the first to recognize the full horror of the AIDS crisis.

The film is based on Randy Shilts' best seller, which chronicles the early days of the epidemic.

MOVIE MARQUEE

'Search and Rescue' barely revives itself

BY PETE BUCCI

Robert Conrad

It's something like "Rescue 911" meets "Northern Exposure" when "Search and Rescue" premieres on NBC Sunday, March 27.

Filmed on location in California's High Sierras, the movie stars Robert Conrad in a role reminiscent of his "Pappy" Boyington character in "Black Sheep Squadron."

Conrad plays Griffin "Tooter" Campbell, a former Marine who now flies a helicopter for the Bear Valley Search and Rescue Team. "Tooter" dispenses fatherly wisdom to the team's other members, who seem to include most of the town's residents. Conrad was a member of an actual mountain rescue team during the 1970s.

As a series pilot, "Search and Rescue" isn't bad. As a movie, it is predictable, occasionally corny and moves slowly during the first half. It does eventually build to a climactic finish.

While the antagonism between an ex-hippie storekeeper (the only store in town), played by Dee Wallace Stone, and an arrogant deputy sheriff, played by Chad McQueen (son of film star Steve McQueen), is entertaining, the best aspect of the movie is the spectacular scenery.

Elsewhere on Sunday, CBS premieres "The Corpse Had a Familiar Face." Based on the experiences of Edna Buchanan, a Pulitzer Prize-winning Miami crime reporter, it stars Elizabeth Montgomery, Dennis Farina and Lee Horsley.

ABC airs "The Yarn Princess" on Sunday. Jean Smart, Robert Pastorelli and Giuliana Santini star in this drama about a developmentally disabled mother's struggle to keep her family together.

Renee Estevez, Lisanne Falk and Carrie Mitchum star in "Dead Silence" airing on Fox Monday, March 28. It is a suspenseful tale of three women trying to keep their accidental killing of a transient a secret.

CBS airs "Janek: The Wallflower Murders" on Tuesday, March 29. Richard Crenna, Helen Shaver and Tyne Daly star.

Birds with bad attitudes swarm on Showtime Wednesday, March 30, in Alfred Hitchcock's thriller "The Birds," starring Rod Taylor and Tippi Hedren. It's followed by the sequel, "The Birds II: Land's End." It stars Hedren, Brad Johnson and Chelsea Field.

On the lighter side, Saturday, April 2, the USA Network airs "Outrageous Fortune," starring Bette Midler and Shelly Long as two aspiring actresses who get the last laugh at the expense of their mutual boyfriend.

TIME OUT

Women's sports finally get the headlines

BY SARA BENNETT

Becky Smith

A basketball fan could easily name the starting lineups of a number of NBA and men's college teams.

But the same fan would have to think long and hard before coming up with the name of any woman who has played collegiate basketball. However, it's not that the programs don't exist: 292 colleges field Division I teams.

One in particular, Stanford University, attracted independent filmmaker Becky Smith to a game in the fall of 1989. After that, there was no stopping her.

"It was a bigger thing than just the playing," Smith says. "It was, to me, symbolic of where women athletes can go if they're really given the opportunity."

The resulting documentary, called "In the Game," airs Tuesday, March 29, as part of PBS' "Frontline" series (check local listings).

"I wanted to go behind the scenes and explore what the realities were for women athletes," Smith says. "Who are these people, what motivates them, why do they do what they do? I also wanted to capture what I had intuitively felt was the great drama of this team. How is it going to unfold and what is the ending going to be."

It is a storybook ending. While Smith rolled the camera, Stanford won the 1990 NCAA championship, its first of two in a row.

"I had not seen a sports team play with such camaraderie and such an obvious team concept before individuals. I said, 'This is just phenomenal.' Here women are given a chance to do something they're supposed to not be very good at, and they're just playing it in the most incredibly exciting fashion."

Stanford's women's basketball team outdraws the men's team by about 1,000 fans a game. Historically, however, women's sports have not been heavily supported. Even with the passing of Title IX, which bans gender discrimination in federally funded schools, women's programs still don't receive 50 percent of available funds. In most cases, they only receive between 15 and 30 percent.

"In the Game" gives viewers access to locker room talks, one-on-one interviews with the players and peoples' thoughts on women's athletics during one of the most successful basketball seasons in history.

And it airs in the midst of March madness 1994. CBS airs the women's NCAA championship game Sunday, April 3.

SOAP TALK

Jess Walton loves life in Genoa City

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Jess Walton

Jess Walton portrays the sexy and manipulative vixen Jill Abbott on "The Young and the Restless." Jill has slept with just about every lead male character on the show, positioned herself as one of the major forces in a large corporation, and in the process she has married one of Genoa City's most eligible bachelors, John Abbott.

"Actually," Walton says, "my character has mellowed a lot lately – I think mostly because of the baby. (Jill had John's baby a few months ago.) They have stopped most of my (witchy) scenes with Katherine (Jeanne Cooper), and I miss that. The (witchiness) is the spice of the character.

"I think I work with Jeanne better than anyone else on the show. When we get into our fighting scenes, I feel that is some of my best work."

In real life Walton and Cooper are the best of friends. During her years on "Y&R," Walton has made many friends, and she says that is partly due to the way the Bell family runs the show.

"Bill Bell is truly a family man," Walton says. "His sons, wife and daughter are all in the business. I think any organization takes its lead from the captain of the ship, and Bill sets the mood."

There was a time when Walton felt like her character wasn't headed in the right direction, and she decided to break one of the Bells' unwritten rules and say something about it.

"Once I told them how I felt, I realized it wasn't the right thing to do. I mean when you think about it, most actors, when they want to change something, are being self-serving, and you can't run a business by catering to everyone's egos."

Walton shares her home with her husband, son and an assortment of relatives. "I love having family around," the actress says.

In her spare time Walton is involved in working with recovering alcoholics at the Clare Foundation, as well as giving her time to the Adam Walsh Resource Center.

Walton's husband, John W. James, co-authored "The Grief Recovery Handbook," and she is also involved in supporting his Grief Recovery Institute.

"People need to learn how to grieve," Walton says. "Grieving is the only way to heal after a loved one dies."

The season of taxes and baseball gets attention from an unusual quartet – Request pay-per-view – this week. On Sunday, March 27, those who've faced their 1040 form and still haven't got a clue can turn to "The Wall Street Journal's 90-Minute Tax Break," with host Consuelo Mack. Topics include the Clinton tax plan, recommended tax software, ways to avoid an audit and the all-important lowering of taxable income. The pay-per-view charge includes a copy of J.K. Lasser's "Your Income Tax 1994." "Tax Break" will be repeated each Sunday through April 10.

Tuesday, March 29, brings "ESPN Baseball Tonight's Great Rotisserie" pay-per-view special. Anchors Keith Olbermann and Peter Gammons confer with the experts, including guidebook authors John Benson and Bill James, for up-to-the-minute stats and projections – because this is one rotisserie that isn't for chickens.

The "Life and Times of Jesus," which last looked at the phenomenon of the star of Bethlehem, continues Monday, March 28, with "Who Was Jesus?," a scientific and archaeological search for answers, on The Learning Channel.

Cat people and dog people can declare a truce over TBS' two-hour documentary "Cats & Dogs," airing Monday. Many of the stories were submitted by ordinary owners of not-so-ordinary pets. And remember: No mice were hurt during the making of this special – certainly not the curious white rodent that goes one-on-one on the artificial turf with the world's least motivated house cat.

Working girls in posh frocks return to A&E Sunday as Jean Marsh and Eileen Atkins' "House of Eliott" begins its third and final season. The saga of self-made couturiers Beatrice and Evangeline Eliott (Stella Gonet and Louise Lombard) in 1920s London continues as the sisters return from New York and have their first experience peddling dresses through a national chain.

Turning a corner for home, these final 10 episodes in the series work up a lather of high-class soap. Will Bea fall for the gallant CEO of Sears Roebuck? Will Evie's expedition to buy a handful of buttons make them Jack and the beanstalk rich, or will their reputation be ruined by upstart designer Grace Keeble? There's plenty to come in this popular imported drama that so successfully crosses class lines and mixes business with romance. For the uninitiated, there's a one-hour summary immediately preceding the first episode.

Brown Announces Creation Of DNR Speakers Bureau

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary Torrey C. Brown, M.D., has announced the beginning of the DNR Speakers Bureau, a new program that offers experts in a variety of natural resources fields to speak to groups throughout Maryland.

"For many years, talented DNR speakers have addressed thousands upon thousands of Marylanders on many natural resources issues affecting the state, the region and beyond," Brown said, adding that the Speakers Bureau makes it easier for groups to Contact DNR to find appropriate speakers on particular issues or let DNR suggest a topic currently in the news or of special interest.

"There are many stories to tell about Maryland's vast natural resources," Dr. Brown said. "The new Speakers Bureau will improve our agency's outreach with the citizens of Maryland. The bureau is regarded as an important part of DNR's effort to wisely manage and protect the state's natural resources because community support and feedback is so vital to our mission."

Speakers are available, free of charge, for groups of all sizes and affiliations. The speakers are prepared to talk to local or statewide groups or organizations on a vast list of topics and issues.

Some of the current issues include:

•The declining oyster population and the challenge for the Oyster Roundtable group, which is working to find ways to bring back the oyster population;

•Restoring Maryland's trout streams to world-class fishing;

•The success of DNR's nontidal wetlands program and what's ahead for this model program in Maryland;

•The Forest Conservation Act, urban plantings, forestry board and other important forestry issues; and

•What effects the Crab Action Plan will have on Marylanders and why now is the time to act.

Some general categories of topics that speakers are prepared to discuss are:

•Managing Our Resources - DNR's speakers can tailor their presentations on resource management to meet the particular interest group, be it wildlife management, river management, fisheries management or the planning of parks and forests.

•DNR At Your Service - DNR's speakers can make presentations on a wide variety of topics regarding permits, licenses, and special services such as hunter and boating education, fishing clinics and licensing, special services for the elderly or challenged people, and others.

Groups interested in booking a DNR speaker, free of charge, may contact the DNR Public Communications Office in Annapolis at (410) 974-3987 or contact one of DNR's four regional offices. The telephone number for the Western Maryland office is (301) 245-4115.

A brochure and other material can be sent by mail upon request.

CRELLIN STUDENTS CELEBRATE 100TH SCHOOL DAY - Students at Crellin Elementary School participated in a unique celebration on February 18, as that day marked the 100th day of school. The students participated in numerous activities, all based on the number 100. They put together 100-piece puzzles, created a "book worm" out of 100 book reports, and estimated and counted various finger foods to make a snack. The students pictured above counted Cheerios in sets of 10. Robbie DeWitt and Jimmy Sisler are pictured below as they display 100 Matchbox toys, and students shown above right counted pennies in sets of 100. The pennies had been collected by the entire student body, and the money - totalling nearly $30 - was then donated to the United Community Services, Inc., fund in Crellin. "The 100th day made a nice break in the everyday schedule of the school year," said Keith Harvey, principal. "The children enjoyed a day of learning while completing some regular tasks."

Students Being Sought For Math, Science Program

Frostburg State University's Regional Math and Science Center is currently accepting applications from area high school students to attend the third annual summer program held on its campus in Frostburg. This federally funded program is designed to encourage under-represented students to enroll in college programs leading to careers in science or mathematics.

During the six-week program, from June 25 to August 5, students will travel from the upper reaches of the Chesapeake Bay watershed in the forests of western Maryland to the salt marshes along the shores of the bay to study the human impact on soil systems, forests, streams, and wetlands. Students will also be studying mathematics, technical writing, environmental science and entering their collected data into computers for analysis.

Students live in residence halls on the campus of FSU and eat their meals in the dining hall free of charge. Students are under supervision from tutor/counselors who live with them, plan and supervise recreational activities, and organize evening study sessions. They also receive weekly stipends and transportation costs are paid by the center.

The program currently has 45 openings for students residing within the Mid-East region which includes Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C. To be eligible, students must currently be in the 9th or 10th grade, complete Algebra I by the end of this school year, and have an interest in the environment and mathematics or science.

Lose Weight:
Keep Food Intake Records

According to a report in American Family Physician, researchers at St. Louis University School of Medicine found that persons who were most diligent in keeping detailed records of foods eaten were more likely to lose weight than those who were not diligent in keeping such records. The weight loss program consisted of 14 weekly sessions conducted by dieticians, a phycologist, and an exercise leader. Thirty-two overweight persons participated in the program. The average amount of exercise per week was 37 minutes three days a week. A reduction of 500 calories per day in conjunction with a walking program was recommended.

CHEESY CRUST MINI PIZZAS

KiD PLEASERS

PIGS IN SOUTHWESTERN BLANKETS

Anyone who has children knows mealtime can present the ultimate challenge of the day. What can we have that's quick and easy to prepare, economical to serve and appealing to adults and kids? A dilemma, but not insurmountable if you keep one important rule in mind: most kids like foods and flavors that are familiar.

What kid doesn't love pizza? In keeping with the current trend of miniature versions of larger foods, try these easy Cheesy Crust Mini Pizzas. Cheese spread mixed right in the pizza crust, plus traditional mozzarella cheese on top, gives the cheesy taste kids love. And because these are individual-sized pizzas, the toppings can be individualized, too — pepperoni for the kids and shrimp and artichoke hearts for the adults!

Ethnic foods are in, even with kids. Classic Pigs in Blankets become Pigs in Southwestern Blankets when you mix salsa and baking mix for the dough. For extra kick, substitute pepper cheese for the American cheese and serve with a salsa ketchup.

Today, kids, as well as adults, are on the run from sunup to sundown. Cinnamon Crunchy Toast is a take-along breakfast that is sure to please everyone. It's as good as traditional cinnamon toast, with uncooked oatmeal added for crunch.

Remember what a treat it was to dive into a banana split? This updated version of that old-fashioned favorite takes those delicious ingredients of ice cream, chocolate, crushed pineapple and bananas and puts them into a delicious Banana Split Pie. Almond brickle chips mixed in the pat-in-the-pan crust give it a special twist. Kids of any age will enjoy this ice-cream pie.

CHEESY CRUST MINI PIZZAS

- 1-1/2 cups Bisquick Original baking mix
- 1/4 cup process cheese spread (room temperature)
- 3 tablespoons hot water
- 1 can (8 ounces) pizza sauce
- Favorite pizza toppings
- 1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese (4 ounces)

Heat oven to 450°. Mix baking mix, cheese spread and water; beat 30 seconds (dough will be dry). Turn dough onto surface dusted with baking mix; roll in baking mix to coat. Shape into ball, knead 50 to 60 times or until smooth. Divide dough into 8 pieces. Pat each piece into 4-inch circle on ungreased cookie sheet, using hands dipped in baking mix. (Circles should be placed slightly apart.) Pinch edges to form 1/2-inch rim. Spread about 1 tablespoon pizza sauce over each circle. Sprinkle with toppings and cheese. Bake 8 to 10 minutes or until edges are golden brown. 8 pizzas.

PIGS IN SOUTHWESTERN BLANKETS

- 2 cups Bisquick Original baking mix
- 1/2 cup salsa
- 2 slices process American cheese food, each cut into 4 strips
- 8 frankfurters

Heat oven to 425°. Grease cookie sheet. Mix baking mix and salsa; beat 30 seconds (dough will be dry). Turn dough onto surface dusted with baking mix; roll in baking mix to coat. Shape into ball; knead 10 times. Roll into 13-inch circle. Cut into 8 wedges. Place 1 cheese strip on each wedge about 1 inch from rounded edge. Top with frankfurter; roll up, beginning at rounded edge. Seal tightly by pinching point into dough. Place on cookie sheet. Bake about 13 minutes or until golden brown. Immediately remove from cookie sheet. Serve with salsa ketchup or drizzle with melted cheese if desired. 8 servings.

WHAT'S COOKIN'?

A PILE OF FUN!

Not all that's going on in the kitchen needs to be edible. A great way to teach children some of the basics of cooking, such as reading a recipe and measuring, is to let them prepare this playtime recipe for Modeling Dough. Microwave rather than stove-top preparation makes this safer for small cooks. But remember, accidents can happen in the kitchen, so be sure an adult is available to help.

MODELING DOUGH

1. Mix together in a microwavable 4-cup glass measuring cup
   - 1-1/4 cups Bisquick Original baking mix
   - 1/4 cup salt
   - 1 teaspoon cream of tartar

2. Mix in a liquid measuring cup
   - 1 cup water
   - 1 teaspoon food color

3. Stir the liquid into the dry mixture, a little at a time, until all the liquid is added. Microwave uncovered on High (100%) 1 minute.

4. Scrape the mixture from the side of the cup and stir.

5. Microwave uncovered on High (100%) 2 to 3 minutes longer, stirring every minute, until the mixture forms sort of a ball.

6. Let the dough stand uncovered about 3 minutes.

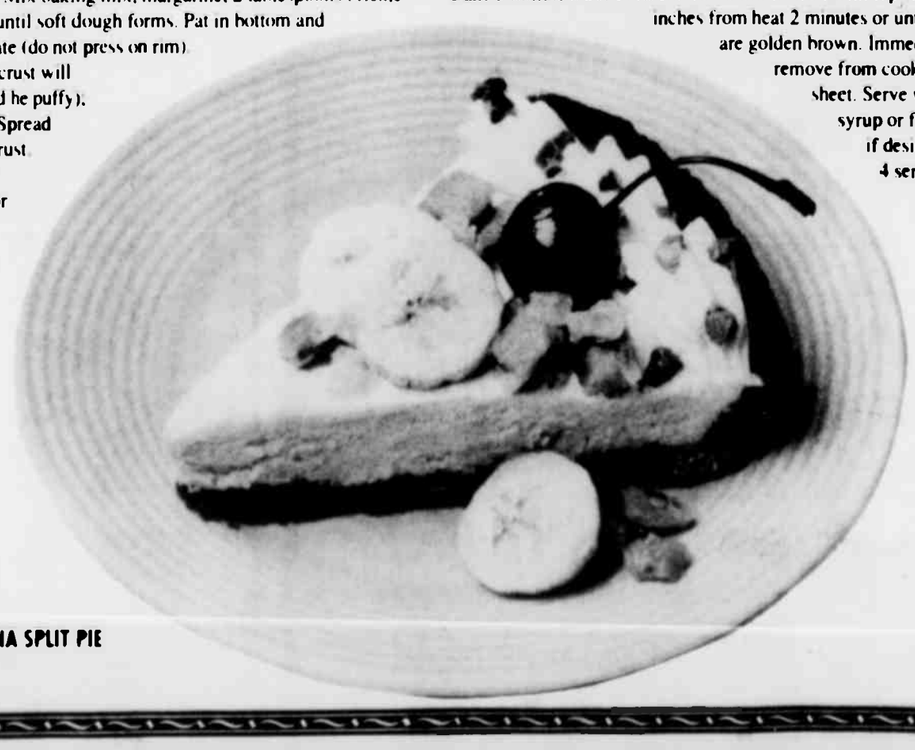
7. Spoon out of the measuring cup. Knead in your hands or on the counter about 1 minute or until smooth. Cool about 15 minutes.

8. Use to make your favorite shapes and designs. Place in a tightly covered container or plastic bag; refrigerate. About 1/2 pound.

Hints:

- This bold colored dough is fun to play with but not usually eaten.
- For pastel-colored dough, use less food color.
- To knead means to curve your fingers and fold the dough toward you, then push it away with the heels of your hands, using a quick rocking motion.

BANANA SPLIT PIE



- 1-1/4 cups Bisquick Original baking mix
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine or butter, softened
- 2 tablespoons almond brickle chips
- 3 tablespoons chocolate-flavored syrup
- 1 pint ice cream (any flavor), slightly softened
- 1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple, drained
- 1 medium banana, sliced
- Whipped topping
- Maraschino cherries
- Almond brickle chips

Heat oven to 450°. Generously grease glass pie plate, 9 x 1-1/4 inches. Mix baking mix, margarine, 2 tablespoons brickle chips and syrup until soft dough forms. Pat in bottom and up side of pie plate (do not press on rim). Bake 8 minutes (crust will shrink slightly and be puffy); cool completely. Spread ice cream over crust. Wrap and freeze at least 4 hours or until firm. Top with remaining ingredients. 6 to 8 servings.

CINNAMON CRUNCHY TOAST

- 1/3 cup Bisquick Original baking mix
- 3 tablespoons quick-cooking oats
- 3 tablespoons packed brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 3 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened
- 4 slices white bread
- Margarine or butter, softened

Heat oven to 375°. Mix baking mix, oats, brown sugar, cinnamon and 3 tablespoons margarine until crumbly. Spread each slice of bread with soft margarine. Sprinkle each with 2 tablespoons crumbly mixture. Place slightly apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 5 minutes. Set oven control to broil. Broil with tops about 3 inches from heat 2 minutes or until edges are golden brown. Immediately remove from cookie sheet. Serve with syrup or fruit if desired. 4 servings.

Richard G. Stanton, chairman of the Board, president and chief executive officer of First United Corporation, recently announced the promotion of B. Gene Flinn II to assistant vice president and loan review officer. This promotion became effective on January 1, 1994.

Stanton commented, "Gene is a very valuable asset to our corporation. First United scrutinizes loans carefully to fully understand and minimize any risks. For this reason, First United's loan portfolio continues to show high quality."

Flinn, a graduate of Southern High School, holds a bachelor of science degree in corporate finance from West Virginia University. After graduating from college, he joined First United in 1984. Local Resident Heads Western Health Board

The Board of Directors of the Western Maryland Health Planning Agency has announced the nomination and election of Robert Trantham as president of the Board.

The primary mission for local health planning is to represent and advocate for their local perspectives in the development of the State Health Plan, in the Certificate of Need process, and the improvement of the local health system. Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, and Carroll counties make up the Western Maryland Health Planning Agency. The Board is responsible for approving the recommendations of the Advisory Committee, and forwarding the recommendations to the Maryland Health Resources Planning Commission, in the Maryland Department of Mental Health and Hygiene.

The Agency, composed of consumer and provider volunteers, works for change and improvement in the region by providing a forum for the discussion of health care priorities and through the analysis of particular health care concerns, shares this information, in the form of recommendations, with the Commission.

Trantham, whose term will expire in January 1995, is a licensed nursing home administrator.

Correction Noted

In a Garrett County District Court case article in last week's edition of The Republican, it was reported that two Grantsville area men were convicted of assault, stemming from an Aug. 28, 1993, altercation on the property of Glenn G. and Delores Sisler, near Grantsville.

The report stated James H. Feist Sr., 41, had pulled a knife on Roy W. Bittinger, 67, and threatened to cut his heart out and cut his dog's throat. The report also stated Bittinger had been accused of threatening to send his dog to "tear Feist up," and then threatened to hit him with a club.

The report should have reversed the names in each incident. The Republican regrets the error.

AARP Driving Course Offered By Area Agency

The Area Agency on Aging and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) are working cooperatively to offer a classroom refresher course to help drivers 50 years of age or older improve their driving skills and prevent traffic accidents.

The two-session course will be held 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 6, and Thursday, April 7, at the Mary Browning Senior Center, 104 E. Center Street, Oakland. Each student will pay a $7 fee to cover the materials needed. The fee will be collected the first day of class.

The 55 Alive/Mature Driving course is designed to meet the specific needs of older drivers, according to an Agency spokesman. It covers age-related physical changes, declining perceptual skills, rules of the road, local driving problems, and license renewal requirements. Volunteer instructors recruited and trained by AARP conduct the course, which is presented through a combination of slide presentations and group discussions. Betty Foy will be the instructor.

For further information or to register for the class, persons may call 334-9431 or 334-3630.

Currently there is a bill sponsored by Senator John Hafer in the State Senate which will require automobile insurance companies in Maryland to provide a premium discount to graduates of 55 Alive/Mature Driving.

Burlington U.M. Family Services Gets Top Honor

Burlington United Methodist Family Services, Inc., Burlington, W.Va., was honored as Organization of the Year, a national distinction, at the annual convention of the United Methodist Association of Health and Welfare Ministries which was held in Williamsburg, Va., on Sunday, March 13.

In accepting the award, Gary K. Wilson, the organization's president and chief executive officer said, "Burlington gratefully accepts this recognition and the vote of confidence it represents on behalf of those we serve. What Burlington has done for nearly 81 years was not done for awards or accolades but as a continuing ministry of the church, day and night, to youngsters and families whose troubles persist and whose hurts are deep. It is a humbling experience to be recognized by one's peer organizations as a leader in quality, service and vision."

Burlington was nominated for consideration by Mrs. Martha Garrett of Parkersburg, W.Va., who is the chairperson of the United Methodist's West Virginia Annual Conference Division of Health and Welfare Ministries. Eligibility criteria for the honor included Burlington's new and continuing outstanding service programs which extend to surrounding communities; evidence and documentation of the need for services offered; and evidence that these services have been accepted by clients in the communities where they are offered.

"We are grateful to our dedicated staff in all our locations; to our Board of Trustees; our Management Team; the Auxiliary; the United Methodist Church, especially the Health and Welfare Division; the Association; and to the people of West Virginia and nearby areas for the vision, the support, the partnership, and the quality in service this award symbolizes," Wilson said. "This honor is shared by a lot of people over a large area and should bring a sense of accomplishment and encouragement to all levels of the church and the state government."

Burlington, which started as an orphanage in 1913, presently operates eight major out reach programs and serves the needs of more than 2,000 persons annually, mostly children and youths, through its traditional group residential care and treatment cottages and group homes, its professional foster family care programs; its adoption and birth parent counseling services; its child care resource and referral programs; its independent and transitional living programs; the Right From the Start programs for at risk expectant mothers and newborn infants; and its family based preservation services.

With its children's home campus and corporate headquarters still located in Burlington, and its satellite offices located at Keyser, Grafton, Scott Depot, and soon in Oakland, Burlington has grown to become one of West Virginia's largest and most diverse multi-service and multi-site nonprofit charitable organizations of its type.

"I firmly believe this award belongs to every member of the United Methodist Church in the West Virginia Annual Conference," Wilson said. "Our outreach and effectiveness in our ministries are truly a reflection of the prayers, the gifts, the labors, the hopes, and the love of our Christian sisters and brothers," he concluded.

JoAnn Dadisman leading a flag salute and Joyce Ely introducing the guests, who included Preston County Commission members Darwin Wolfe, Ron Crites, and Vicki Cole, Board of Education member Kathy McNeill, and Morgantown Area Assistant Representative Mary Bradley.

Providing the morning's entertainment was Sherry D'Angelo, the Randolph County Extension Agent, who reported on her trip to Russia in January. The group was entertained in the Russian space center and allowed to watch the return of one of their missions. They toured a creative school, visited in homes, and she showed slides and also displayed Russian coins and currency, a fur hat, jewelry, and other items purchased there. They were allowed to visit in Moscow and other Russian cities also, attended the ballet and circus, and will entertain students from Russia in Randolph County this summer.

Club awards and achievement ribbons for scrapbooks, for community projects, and recognition of a County Homemaker of the Year were included in the day's program, as well as a memorial service for county members who had died in the past year.

Randall Schoonover, employed as director of a special program for families, provided entertainment in the afternoon with several vocal selections. The meeting concluded with Mary Bradley installing the current county officers. This allowed members to begin their journey home before the arrival of snow, hail, thunder and lightning.

Agricultural Nonpoint-Source Pollution Meeting Scheduled

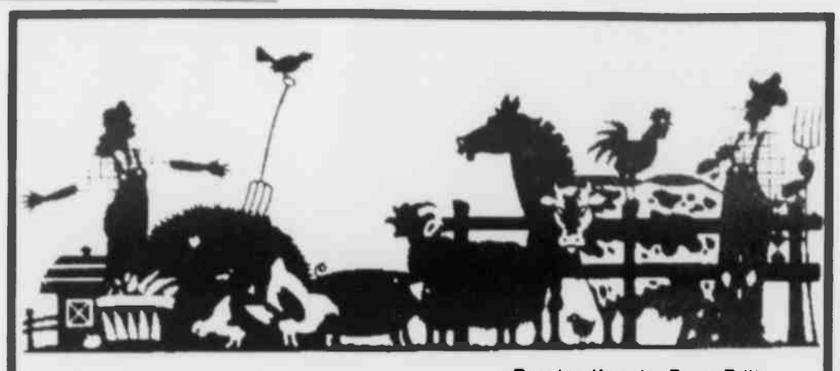
The agricultural community and other interested persons are invited to attend a special meeting on the draft Tributary Strategies being proposed to reduce agricultural pollution.

The meeting is specifically for Allegany and Garrett county residents, and will be held on March 31 at the Allegany County Office Building (former Kelly Springfield office building), located on Kelly Drive, Cumberland.

The meeting will be from 7 to 9 p.m. in the county commissioners' meeting room and will give those attending an opportunity to have input into the programs that are being developed for Maryland's tributaries, especially as it relates to agriculture here in Western Maryland.

This is the next major step in the continuing effort to restore the Chesapeake Bay. The states of Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia have made a commitment to develop and begin to implement specific nutrient reduction strategies for each of the Bay's major tributaries.

The Chesapeake Bay is the nation's largest and one of its most valuable and treasured natural resources. It is home to a rich diversity of over 2,700 plant and animal species while also serving as a major commercial and recreational resource for the citizens of Maryland. Unfortunately, water quality and living resources in the Bay have declined markedly through decades of abuse by the burgeoning population in its watershed.



Three major reasons for the Bay's declining health have been identified: (1) excess nutrients from agricultural and residential land, and from wastewater, (2) sediment runoff from farms and development, and (3) possibly elevated levels of toxic chemicals. While all three problems are being addressed, scientists recognize that the most extensive problem, and the one that should be addressed most aggressively, is excess nutrients entering the Bay.

Nutrients, mainly nitrogen and phosphorus, come from a variety of sources. They are used by homeowners to make lawns lush and by farmers to grow crops. They come from waste sent to sewage treatment plants and grass clippings that wash down storm drains. Even rain, which carries air pollution from cars and industries, pollutes the Bay.

To achieve its nutrient reduction targets, Maryland has subdivided its Bay watershed into 10 tributary basins. Each of these 10 tributary basins has been assigned a 40 percent nutrient reduction goal by the year 2000.

This meeting is part of a process to determine how best to reach the nutrient reduction goals in the Western Maryland tributary basin. It's a way for landowners and farmers to get involved in the process of reaching Maryland's nutrient reduction goals.

For more information, those interested may call either the Allegany Soil Conservation District at (301) 777-1747 or the Garrett Soil Conservation District office at (301) 334-1900.

Mountain Fresh Producers Hold Spring Meeting

The Mt. Fresh Producers Assoc. held their first meeting to begin planning for the 1994 market season on Thursday, March 17. This is the association's seventh year of operation, and its membership has grown from the original 19 members to 42 during the 1993 season. Those in attendance voted to keep the dues the same as last year, $10.00 payable now until June 1, and after June 1, dues will be $15.00. Set up fees will remain $3.00 for members or $35.00 for the season, and $6.00 for non members. Members also decided to keep the Wednesday and Saturday market hours the same as last year, with the starting time of 10 a.m. At the next meeting members will discuss the possibility of an additional market on Monday afternoons to accommodate a greater number of consumers.

Growers who find they plant a little more than they can use or give away should consider joining the Mt. Fresh Assoc. and take advantage of the low membership cost to sell that extra produce. Those interested in planting a larger quantity of certain vegetables in order to sell at the market are encouraged to do so. People may also join with the intention of selling baked goods or crafts. The only criteria are that they reside in either Garrett, Tucker, Preston or Allegeny counties and that they either grow it, make it, or bake it themselves. For more information, or to request an application for membership, those interested may contact the Garrett County Extension Office in Oakland at 334-1990.

The next meeting will be Thursday, April 21, at 7 p.m. at the Garrett County Extension Office, 202 South Third St. in Oakland. Anyone interested in joining Mt. Fresh or who would like more information is welcome and encouraged to attend.

Walker Named To Head NASDA Trade Committee

Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has been named to head the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture's (NASDA) Trade Committee tasked with the assignment of making proposals to be included in the Farm Bill to be debated in the U.S. Congress in 1995.

"It is crucial that we in the United States develop a clear and effective policy to promote agricultural trade in the international marketplace. Certainly people and countries all around the world want what we have in terms of agricultural and processed food production. We must position ourselves to take full advantage of the tremendous world market for our agricultural bounty. If we fail to move quickly, we will miss a golden opportunity," Walker said.

"One of my primary objectives as chair of NASDA's Trade Committee will be to come up with some specific recommendations to improve the effectiveness of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service," Walker said.

NASDA will be working throughout the calendar year to develop specific recommendations to the U.S. Congress for the 1995 Farm Bill. In addition to trade, other areas of focus will include dairy and commodity programs, natural resources and pesticides, research and marketing and rural development and finance.

NASDA represents the state departments of agriculture of all 50 states. It has headquarters in Washington, DC.

Revised Pesticide Regulations In Effect

Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) Secretary Robert L. Walker has issued a reminder that pesticide applicators and pest control firms must comply with recently revised regulations relating to the Pesticide Applicators Law.

"These revised regulations will affect farmers, commercial pesticide applicators and pesticide dealers operating in the state. I am pleased to report that the regulation changes were recommended and approved by the Governor's Pesticide Council," said Walker.

"There are many new requirements added to the regulations that will improve storage, use, and management of pesticides in Maryland," Walker said.

New pesticide storage and transport regulations include requirements for posting the storage area with a warning sign; keeping the storage area secured or locked to prevent unauthorized access; separating pesticides from food, feed, fertilizer, seed and safety equipment; maintaining a clean, dry ventilated storage areas with absorbent material for spills; and storing pesticides at least 50 feet from any water well.

Private applicators (farmers certified to apply restricted use pesticides) will be required to keep records for each application of a general use or a restricted use pesticide. Records must be maintained for two years and must include the name and address of certified applicator; location of treated area; date of application; brand or common name of pesticide applied; application rate and total amount applied; acreage or size of area treated; and crop or site treated. Federal requirements under the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 (Farm Bill) that became effective May 10, 1993 require private applicators to keep records for each restricted use pesticide application. However, the new state regulations will preempt the federal requirements and will be enforced by the Maryland Department of Agriculture instead of United States Department of Agriculture.

Pre-notification by the certified applicator will be required before application of any soil fumigant. Residents within 300 feet of the application must be notified at least 24 hours before the fumigant application occurs.

Revisions to the regulations also eliminate insurance requirements for pest control consultants and remove the requirement for a licensed pest control company to identify vehicles used only for pest control sales.

Copies of the revised regulations can be obtained by contacting Mary Ellen Setting, Chief, Pesticide Regulation Section, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 60 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Maryland 21401, 410-841-5710.

Regulations, Loss Of Property Rights Concern Young Farmers

Maintaining the freedom to farm in light of government regulations is the biggest challenge facing America's young farmers and ranchers today. They also want the government to do more to protect their private property rights, according to a survey conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Overall, however, the future of American agriculture is promising and appears to be in able hands, according to results of a survey of 91 young farm and ranch couples from across the nation. The survey of AFBF young farmers, ages 18-30, was conducted last month during the organization's 1994 Young Farmers and Ranchers Leadership Conference in Portland, Ore.

The survey tracked the attitudes and choices of young farm and ranch couples on issues ranging from the environment to the necessity of off-farm employmeut. A similar survey was conducted last year.

When asked about their present attitude toward the future of farming, 61.5 percent of the young farm couples said they are more optimistic than they were five years ago. Last year's survey group was a bit more optimistic at 67 percent. Seventy-six percent of this year's respondents said they are financially better off than they were five years ago--slightly less than last year's 77 percent.

When asked to select the biggest challenges facing young farmers and ranchers, maintaining the freedom to farm in light of government regulation came out on top with 33 percent of the vote. That was followed by overall profitability, last year's top concern, which drew 24 percent of this year's vote. The availability of financing was third with just over 16 percent.

This year's list of other challenges, each receiving less than eight percent of the vote, in order of ranking, were: the availability of capital (land and facilities); a tie between tax burdens and the willingness of parents to turn over the operation's reins; a tie between concerns about the health care system and the availability of adequate rural support services such as schools, social/cultural activities and other services; and competition from larger operations.

When asked to select the most important action that government could take to benefit their farm or ranch, 33 percent of the young couples said the government should strengthen protection of private property rights. Creating sounder fiscal policies was second with 18 percent of the vote. Providing cost/benefit analysis of regulations and ensuring the future availability of vital agricultural chemicals tied for third with 10 percent each.

Other suggested government actions, each receiving seven percent or less of the vote, in their order of ranking, include: reforming the nation's health care system; reducing self-employed social security burdens; a tie between developing cost sharing programs for environmental compliance and increasing government funding for farm programs; implementing rural development programs; reducing government involvement in agriculture; and continuing incentive-based conservation programs.

Recognizing the importance of both economics and environment in agriculture, 61.8 percent of the couples said they select their farming practices based on both but with an emphasis on economics. More than a third (33.7 percent) said they select their farming practices based on both with an emphasis on the environment. Only 4.5 percent said their farming practices are selected on the basis of economic or environmental considerations alone. Those numbers basically mirror last year's results.

Continuing a trend noted by last year's survey, the stewardship efforts of young farmers and ranchers are clearly on the increase. Results of this year's survey indicate that respondents have increased their overall use of voluntary stewardship practices in the last five years by more than 67 percent. The most widely used practices today, in order, include: regular soil or tissue analysis; conservation tillage or no-till farming; field scouting; integrated pest management; and buffer strips for wildlife.

When asked about their choice of agriculture as a profession, 53.9 percent said they chose farming based on both lifestyle and business aspects, while 46.1 percent said they selected farming based solely on lifestyle advantages. None of the couples chose the business aspects of agriculture as their sole reason for farming.

Sixty-two percent of the couples indicated that one or both spouses had off-farm employment. Wives were the sole source of off-farm employment in 65 percent of those instances, while husbands were the sole off-farm worker 12 percent of the time. Both spouses worked off the farm in 23 percent of the cases where off-farm employment was indicated.

Of the couples that said one or both spouses worked off the farm, 46 percent said the availability of health insurance was the primary reason for that off-farm employment.

Despite the need for off-farm jobs, 99 percent of the farm couples indicated their intentions to be life-long farmers or ranchers, compared with 95 percent in last year's survey group. On a similar note, 87 percent said they would like their children to follow in their footsteps as farmers. That compares to 81 percent last year.

As farming and ranching grow more competitive, contracting for outside agriculture-related services, such as crop and marketing consultants, is becoming more prevalent. Respondents indicated that their use of professional agricultural services increased by 144 percent over the last five years.

Similarly, more and more young farmers and ranchers are supplementing the sale of their commodities on the cash market. While 32 percent of the respondents indicated they use the futures and options markets, only nine percent of those respondents indicated they used those markets five years ago.

The same was true for the number of young farmers and ranchers selling their commodities through forward contracting. While 46 percent said they use forward contracting today, just 21 percent of those respondents said they sold their goods through forward contracting five years ago.

Preston Farmers Market Hires Truman Wolfe As Manager

The Board of Directors of Preston Farmers Market has announced that its search for a manager has been completed. Truman R. Wolfe, who is currently the Manager of the West Virginia Farm Commission, assumed the position of manager at the Terra Alta based business on Monday, March 21. "We couldn't be more pleased, remarked Tom McConnell, president of PFM. "It is very rewarding to be able to match a person of Truman's caliber to a job which offers so many opportunities." Wolfe also expressed his enthusiasm for the change. "The last eight years with the Farm Commission has been an invaluable experience. I am truly excited to be able to use what I've learned to help advance the role of agriculture in this area and make it more profitable for area farmers."

"Preston Farmers Market had a very good year in 1993," noted Berlin Graham, a member of the Board. "We met our expectations in volume and revenue, and in some places, even exceeded them. We anticipate that with Truman's guidance the business will expand in new directions and ultimately be able to realize its tremendous potential." Graham, along with other Board members and stockholders, views the hiring as both timely and worth the wait. "We got through our two busiest months and the succeeding five months through a careful division of labor among members of the board," added Kate Peters. "It is very satisfying to be able to turn over the responsibility to someone we have so much respect for and so much confidence in."

Truman Wolfe is a native Prestonian and a graduate of West Virginia University. He and his wife, Debbie, live and farm on Laurel Mountain. During his tenure at the Farm Commission, he received numerous certificates of achievement and many citations for his professional accomplishments. Locally, Wolfe has been involved in the Preston County Crime Solvers, having served as its chairman in its founding year. Earlier this year, his work was acknowledged by the Governor who commended his "fine work with the Farm Management Commission," and added, "I, too, appreciate your hard work and good deeds."

Preston Farmers Market is anticipating a very active spring. Two dates have been selected for special calf sales in April and the regular Horse Sales will commence in the middle of this month. "This winter weather has kept a lot of our consignors home," noted Joyce Taylor. "Every time we had a break in the weather, we have enjoyed big sales." "April is our third busiest month and sets the stage for the rest of the year," concluded McConnell. "With the help of Truman's considerable talents, we feel certain that PFM can make a real difference to the future of Preston County."

Leaner Diet More Available To Consumers

Farmers and ranchers have been working hard over the last decade to bring leaner, more nutritious meat to America's dinner tables. Cattle and hogs are dramatically leaner than they used to be, due to improvements in breeding and feeding. For example, today's pork contains 31 percent less fat after cooking and trimming than the same pork cuts did 10 years ago. Today's beef has 27 percent less trimmable fat (at retail) than in 1987. The leaner cuts available today can help Americans meet current dietary recommendations, while still satisfying their palates.

The dietary recommendations of all major health organizations (The American Dietetic Association, The American Academy of Pediatrics, The American Heart Association, The American Cancer Society, USDA) include lean meat. Generally, health experts advocate an average intake of six ounces of cooked meat daily. They recommend selecting lower-fat cuts of meat (noted in the following list) and cooking them in ways to further lower their fat content.

PORK: tenderloin, leg (fresh), shoulder (arm or picnic), loin chops, center-cut ham.

VEAL: all trimmed cuts except ground (unless extra lean); or breast.

LAMB: leg, arm, loin, rib.

Health experts recognize lean meat for its valuable complete protein, B vitamins, iron and zinc content. In order to consume all of the nutrients needed for a healthy body, health authorities stress eating a variety of foods from the food pyramid.

Spring Barley

Each year I see more and more barley being grown for animal feed. Barley yields very well in our area, many times out-yielding corn with less than one half the cost or risk. Some of the spring varieties that have been doing well in Pennsylvania's variety tests are Birka, Rodeo, Chapais and Vanier. The seeding rate is 2 to 2½ bushels (96-120 lbs.) per acre. I know where you can purchase clean seed for $5 per bushel. Call my office for information.

Bausch & Lomb Names January And February Employees Of The Month

DON UPHOLD

SELVYN BROWN

Don Uphold and Selvyn Brown were named as Employees of The Month at Bausch & Lomb, Inc., for January and February, respectively.

Don Uphold, Seiko Edger set-up, was recognized for his contributions to customer satisfaction, quality, job flexibility, cost reductions, productivity improvements, housekeeping, teamwork, and dedication to his job.

"Don performs above and beyond the call of duty. He is a dedicated Bausch & Lomb employee which is easily reflected in his job performance," a supervisor spokesperson said. "Constant attention to his job ensures customer satisfaction through the entire process."

Uphold has worked for B&L for 16 years and has held various positions in manufacturing.

Selvyn Brown, loss prevention coordinator, was chosen as B&L's February employee of the month. He was nominated by his peers for a project which resulted in an estimated savings of $120,000 to the Oakland facility.

"Selvyn's experience and knowledge of technical standards proves to be a valuable asset to both B&L and the community," the spokesperson said.

Area Publication Receives Honor

The Casselman Chronicle, published annually by the Springs Historical Society, has recently been recognized by the Pennsylvania Federation of Museums and Historical Organizations. The Federation receives numerous applications for award consideration each year and judges the applicants according to relevancy, historic significance, visual quality and innovative character.

The Casselman Chronicle has been published by the Springs Historical Society since 1961, documenting the history of the Casselman Valley region. The booklet was initiated by Dr. Alta Schrock, local historian, who has an intense interest in history and the preservation of it in the Springs area. Dr. Schrock served as editor of the Chronicle for the first 16 years and remains active on the Chronicle committee. When receiving word concerning the award, Dr. Schrock commented, "It is indeed gratifying to learn that the work of scores of contributors to 33 years of publication of the Chronicle is being recognized with an award. I have confidence that this recognition will provide an impetus for broader participation in the coming decades."

The specific issue of the Casselman Chronicle submitted in the publications project category was Volume XXXII, which discusses the history of religion, education, and family life in the Salisbury, St. Paul, and Summit Mills region. Pictures of churches and schools compare present day structures from those in the past. Articles talk about church practices, changes and early school life. Also mentioned is the opening of the Springs Farmers' Market and tributes to various community members who have passed away.

Award winners will be recognized at a special banquet at the Pennsylvania Federation of Museums and Historical Organizations Annual Meeting held at The Inn in Reading, Pa., on Monday April 11, at 7:30 p.m. The banquet and ceremony follow a reception at the Reading Public Museum and Art Gallery.

The Casselman Chronicle is given to Springs Historical Society members as a benefit of membership. Cost of joining the Society or the purchase of the Chronicle is $10 per year. Interested persons may contact Society treasurer Dixie Otto at (814) 662-4206.

Bartlett Supports Amendment For Balanced Budget

The Maryland's Sixth District Congressman Roscoe Bartlett voted in favor of a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget, saying he is "convinced this is the only way to impose much-needed constraints on Congress."

Bartlett, a member of the House Balanced Budget Task Force, says he strongly favors amending the Constitution for this purpose and that passing just a simple law will not be effective. Bartlett noted that no less than five times in the past, Congress passed legislation to balance the federal budget, yet somehow managed to amend the laws and run the United States further into debt. "In 1978, Congress passed a law requiring a balanced budget by 1981. Then in 1985, Congress passed a law requiring a balanced budget by 1991. In 1987, Congress passed a law requiring a balanced budget by 1995. Finally, in 1990, Congress passed a law requiring a balanced budget in 1995," lamented Bartlett.

The Stenholm Balanced Budget amendment, however, did not receive the required two-thirds vote to amend the constitution, and therefore was not adopted. A total of 290 votes were needed, but only 271 votes cast were in favor of a balanced budget amendment. A balanced budget amendment also failed passage in the Senate.

School Enrichment Students Work On Thematic Studies

Selected fourth and fifth graders at Accident Elementary School recently participated in thematic studies as part of the School Enrichment Program. Both talent pools of students did research and utilized high level and creative thinking skills in the program. They completed written and creative items related to their studies.

The fourth grade talent pool studied spiders. They used graphic organizers to list researched information, wrote reports, drew habitat sketches, composed creative stories or poems, and created filmstrips to accompany the creative writings.

Those students included in the fourth grade talent pool were Brooke Butler, Amanda Bell, Erin Neal, Micah Plevyak, Mark Roberts, Todd Foley, Tom Crozier, Steffanie Kahl, and Rebecca Friend.

SPIDER STUDIES AND MASK MAKING were among activities underway recently at Accident Elementary as students in the fourth and fifth grade participated in thematic studies. The projects were part of the school's enrichment program. Fourth graders, shown above, studied spiders and created visual and written projects in connection with that subject. Fifth graders researched Native American history. As part of the fifth grade project, students created Iroquois masks. Mark Otto is pictured below as he works on the plaster cast of his face to build his mask. Students shown above, left to right, are Brooke Butler, Amanda Bell, Erin Neal, Micah Plevyak, Mark Roberts, Todd Foley, and Tom Crozier. Kneeling in the same order are Steffanie Kahl and Rebecca Friend.

The fifth grade talent pool studies North American Indians. They used graphic organizers to list researched information, compiled reports, compared and wrote Indian legends, created Iroquois masks from plastercraft gauze, and learned a basic Native American dance.

Those included in the fifth grade talent pool were Mark Otto, Katie Sizemore, Matthew Hames, Leigh Ann Schefft, Grace Glotfelty, A.J. Thomas, Emily Haydel, Bradley Maust, Jeremy Moyers, Joel Kolbe, and Jeremy Carr.

Both talent pools presented their studies to their respective classes.

Area Tax Office Receiving More Calls This Year

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said state income tax representatives in his Cumberland office have helped up to 32% more taxpayers over of the telephone so far this year compared to the same period last year. "Many of the more than 6,500 callers are asking about the status of their refund checks, and we have a new service to help them," Goldstein said.

Taxpayers may now call toll-free 1-800-218-8160 when inquiring about their state refund checks. "Please wait at least four weeks after you have filed your return before calling. Using the toll-free refund line will free the taxpayer assistance lines for individuals needing help with their tax questions," Goldstein said.

Many of the more than 9,700 callers and visitors contacting the Cumberland office are asking about the new look of state income tax forms, the 60% local tax rate for Allegany County residents, Maryland's earned income credit, and the requirements for filing a state income tax return.

The comptroller said taxpayers are committing a frequent error by neglecting to round numbers on their state forms.

"Remember to round all dollar figures you enter on the form and write as neatly as possible in blue or black ink. Rounding and using blue or black ink will cut down on math errors and help make sure our data imaging equipment processes your return accurately and speeds up your refund check," Goldstein said.

Figures from W-2s and other documents which end with 50 cents or higher should be rounded up to the next higher dollar when entering them on the Maryland income tax form. Figures of 49 cents or less should be rounded down to the next lower dollar. Taxpayers should enter only whole dollar amounts, and not use dollar signs, commas or decimal points with double zeros.

"Remember: any mistake will only slow down the processing of your refund check. So, please be careful," Goldstein said.

The comptroller said that taxpayers can also speed up the processing of their tax returns by using only one staple to attach the W-2 and other papers to the tax return and by using the envelope provided in the tax instruction booklet.

He noted that state income tax refunds are averaging $393. About 70% of Maryland taxpayers receive refunds.

Goldstein reminded taxpayers that local officials increased the local income tax rate for Allegany County residents to 60% for tax year 1993. The rate for Garrett County residents is 50%.

"Last year, local tax rate changes accounted for errors on more than 37 of Maryland returns. The usual rate for the top error is only one percent. So please be sure to use the correct rate for your county," Goldstein said.

The comptroller reminded taxpayers that the local income tax rate is based on where one lives - not where one works or where one's tax preparer's office is located.

"All of the local income tax rates are listed in the state tax booklet instructions, along with helpful worksheets to assist taxpayers to correctly calculate their local income tax. Please be sure to enter the correct amount of local income tax on line 62b. Remember: any error will slow down the processing of your refund check," Goldstein said.

The comptroller urged taxpayers to check the filing levels listed on Page 1 of the state tax booklet instructions to see if they even have to file a Maryland return at all.

"The filing levels were increased, which allows taxpayers to have more income before they're required to file. For example, single taxpayers under 65 do not have to file a Maryland return unless their gross income is $6,050 or more in 1993. The filing level for taxpayers 65 or over filing jointly is $12,300," Goldstein said.

Another benefit that generated many calls to the Cumberland office is Maryland's earned income credit.

Like its federal counterpart, Maryland's earned income credit is available to workers whose earned or adjusted gross income was $23,050 or less for 1993, and who maintained a home for a child or children for at least six months of the year.

"Taxpayers are eligible for Maryland's earned income credit only if they are eligible for the earned income credit available on the federal return. The Maryland credit is 50% of the federal earned income credit," Goldstein said.

"We also offer a brochure that will help eligible taxpayers claim the earned income credit on their state return. It's available free of charge at any Maryland taxpayer service office, including the one in Cumberland," Goldstein said.

All of the Maryland taxpayer service offices offer free state taxpayer assistance Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Extra hours of tax help will also be offered on certain weekends between now and the April 15th filing deadline and they are listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet.

"We'll even complete your Maryland return free of charge if you bring a completed federal return and all W-2 statements to one of our offices," Goldstein said.

The addresses and telephone numbers of all the Maryland taxpayer service offices, including the one in Cumberland, are listed on the back of the state tax booklet and in most local telephone directories. The Cumberland office, is located at 9 Market Street, can be reached by Garrett County residents at 334-8880.

Tips Offered On Carbon Monoxide Poison Prevention

In light of the recent scare in which a Mountain Lake Park family was overcome by carbon monoxide poisoning, the Garrett County Health Department has urged county residents to check their heating system to prevent carbon monoxide fumes from poisoning their house.

Carbon monoxide is an odorless, tasteless, colorless gas that can initially cause symptoms often mistaken for the flu - headache, dizziness, and nausea. These symptoms can lead to irregular breathing, unconsciousness, and ultimately death, as the exposure levels increase or persist over an extended period of time, according to health officials.

Common sources of carbon monoxide are a faulty furnace, gas water heater, or a clogged chimney or flue back-drafting fumes into the house. A motor vehicle left running in a closed garage attached to the house can be another source of the deadly gas.

Following is a list of some precautions and safety tips to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning.

• Clean and adjust the burner of furnaces and other fuel-burning appliances. The flame should be blue; a yellow flame indicates incomplete combustion which produces carbon monoxide fumes.

• Replace dirty filters on furnaces and space heaters and remove lint from the air-fuel mixing chamber alongside the burner.

• Clear vents and chimneys of obstructions, such as leaves, soot and debris.

• Check flue dampers to make sure they work properly. These are temperature-sensitive and designed to conserve energy by automatically opening to release hot and dangerous combustion gases and closing to keep cold air out when the furnace is not operating.

• Make sure all gas lines are metal pipes or tubing, and never rubber hose.

• Never use a gas range or oven to warm a cold house and never leave a car running in closed garage.

• Have a qualified heating expert check the furnace and other fuelburning appliances at least every five years or if malfunctioning equipment is suspected.

• Vent fuel-burning heaters not equipped with oxygen depletion safety devices to the outdoors, and make sure connections are tight.

Public Meeting Set In Bloomington

A public meeting will be held on Tuesday, March 29, at 7 p.m., at the Bloomington fire hall, concerning the slide area north of Bloomington along Route 135.

This is an informational meeting for individuals and/or businesses that may be impacted.

For more information, persons may contact Nevin C. Bittner at the State Highway Administration District Six office at 777-2145.

During the cycle, recruits are taught general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 occupational fields.

Studies include seamanship, close-order drill, naval history and first aid.

"Although the Navy is getting smaller, the state-of-the-art ships, aircraft and high tech systems in today's fleet require bright, talented young men and women to operate them," stated a Navy spokesman, who added that the Navy has over 56,000 job openings this year, most of which include guaranteed training.

Winning joined the Navy in November 1993.
